DIPHTHERIA.

The presence of diphtheria in the City in fatal form with some deaths resulting has naturally caused some alarm. The disease is a deadly one and is distinctly infectious. Whether rightly or wrongly there is a prevalent belief that proper precautions have not been taken with the promptness and energy that ought to be manifested on such occasions of grave public danger. A first requisite is strict isolation of infected premises to be at once established, and to be maintained until the disease no longer exists, and all germs of the malady have been eradicated by the most approved methods.

What is of quite as much importance is that house-holders shall look to the sanitary condition of their homes. Diphtheria may at any time manifest itself in a household without any of its members coming into contact with diseased persons. Very commonly the cause is in an ill-kept cellar, or cellar drain. With the cellar rendered practically air tight by banking, the effect of fires in the living rooms is to suck up the foul air out of the cellar into the kitchen or the sitting room, where the disease germs are inhaled. Or, it may be that the family cat, a favorite of the little ones, brings the infection from the basement to the living rooms. It has been clearly established that diphtheria germs may be propagated by decomposing vegetables or other filth, and transmitted in the way above referred to.

Some persons credit their medical attendants with the statement that a case under discussion was not true diphtheria but merely a case of "diphtheritic croup." If they would inquire further they would probably find that in the effort to allay their reasonable fears they were given an entirely erroneous impression. Diphtheritic croup carries with it the virus of true diphtheria, and a case of that kind needs to be guarded with all the care as to isolation and warning to the public that has been demonstrated to be imperative in regard to diphtheria. Diphtheria is not less dangerous than smallpox; healthy persons cannot be protected against it by vaccination, and it is really more difficult than smallpox to eradicate when it once obtains a foothold in a community.

After reading Mr. Longworth's letter and the resolution of Council therein quoted many citizens will be in doubt whether to vote yes or no on the lighting question. We fancy very few would be willing for the City Council to proceed to instal and manage the plant.

Travelling Libraries

Hon. Richard Harcourt, Minister of Education, has been considering the question of travelling libraries, with the result that he intends to ask the Legislature at its coming session to make a small grant to start the scheme in Ontario. It appears from Mr. Harcourt's inquiries that in no fewer than thirty of the States of the American Union the system has been in successful operation for some time. The administration of the system is very simple. In some of the States the initial grant was as small as $1,000 per year. In others it has ranged from $1,500 to $3,000 or 4,000. It was never contemplated that boxes of books, say 25 or 50 in a box, would be sent to localities which were already in enjoyment of some public library. The system, there, is intended for the advantage of some remote sections, distant from the towns and villages in which were kept any public libraries. Boxes of books containing 25 or 50 volumes, as the case might be, if Ontario followed the United States practice—and Mr. Harcourt thinks it likely we shall do so—would be sent to any locality from which would come a request signed by fifteen or twenty residents in good standing, who would ask that the books be sent for the good of the people of that locality. The box of books in question would remain in that particular locality for say, 6 months, the charges to the residents of the locality being only nominal, say, sufficient to cover freight or other charges for transportation.—Farming World.

Every Form of Piles

Mr. George Thompson, a leading merchant of Blenheim, Ont., states: "I was troubled with itching piles for fifteen years, and at times they were so bad I could scarcely walk. I tried a great many remedies, but never found anything like Dr. Chase's Ointment. It cured me."

Mr. Jas. Jackson of the Laurie Spool Company, St. Alexis des Monts, Que., writes:—"I was troubled for two years with that cruel disease, bleeding piles, and after using Dr. Chase's Ointment I can say I am entirely rid of it. It is a treasure to all suffering from piles."

Mr. W. D. Thornton, blacksmith, Calgary, N.W.T., states:—"For fifteen years I suffered untold agony from blind, itching piles, and have been under treatment with well-known physicians. I had 15 tumors removed, but obtained no positive cure. I have suffered more than I can tell, but can now say that, thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment, I am positively cured, and by one and a half boxes. 60c a box."

THE EDITORS' MAIL.

Cheese Making Value of Milk.

In a former letter I spoke against the practice of dividing the proceeds from the sale of cheese in proportion to the per cent of fat in the milk. I also condemned the pooling plan and advocated the adoption of the fat-casein method. Your issue of the 6th inst. contains an extract taken from the Farmers' Advocate, which is claimed to be an answer, in the sense of a contradiction, to my letter. If the party who handed it in said extract, considers it an answer in that sense, he fails to grasp the object of the experiment as conducted by Prof. Dean. The result of the experiment is a strong vindication of the principles of the fat-casein plan.

The clipping in question shows the proportion of cheese from milk of different degrees of richness, and it expressly states that milk should be paid for according to its cheese making value. There is a nice difference between the cheese making value of milk and its value according to the per cent of fat. The former is the fat-casein value in its entirety. It recognizes the value of the fat and also the casein, which goes into the composition of the cheese.

Anyone who reads the extract will readily see that Prof. Dean does not commend the Fat System, but shows plainly the injustice of the "pooling" practice. That he supports the Fat-casein theory, we will show by his figures as given in the Advocate.

In the two samples of milk mentioned he states that there should be a difference of value of 18 cents per 100 lbs. But if we value it by the per cent of fat, we find one pound of fat to be worth 20.97 cents. This will give the first lot a value of 91 cents and the second 66 cents per 100 lbs., a difference, not of 18 but 25 cents per 100 lbs. Now if we add two to the per cent of fat the values will be changed to 87 and 70 cents or a difference of 17 cents. Again if we add 1.25 to the per cent of fat the values will be again changed to 88 and 69 cents, or a difference of 18 cents. Verily the Fat-casein gives a measure of justice but the fact that the quantity two is a fixed quantity is one of its defects.

I would again call the attention of patrons to this question. Let them consider it from a common sense point of view and they will soon wonder why they ever countenanced such a farcical practice as the Fat System, in its relation to cheese making.
