SHAMROCK SCHOOL

The semi annual examination of this and Shamrock school was held on the afternoon of Dec. 23rd. A large number of ratepayers and visitors being present.

The examination of the pupils was conducted by the teacher, Mr. J. H. Moan, assisted by Mr. Thomas C. Gillis, student of Allison College. The pupils acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner, and their interest and enthusiasm was a marked feature of the examination. A suitable programme was carried out in which many of the pupils took part. At the close Master Mervin Hughes on behalf of the pupils read the following address to the teacher while Master Augustine Stanley presented him with a handsome Christmas gift.

ADDRESS Mr. John H. Moan, Dear teacher: It was indeed very gratifying news to us, when we learned at the beginning of the term that you were to be our teacher once more.

We realized that you were no longer a stranger to us but one who had the welfare of each and every pupil of this school at heart.

Your most cherished desire was to lead us ever onward and upward. Your ardent zeal for the promotion of education in this district is worthy of recognition. Yes your years as teacher amongst us were years of labor of love given cheerfully and unselfishly. Unfortunately for us we sometimes do not take the advantage offered us and show little appreciation of your work. But this we ask of you to overlook, and often in the past we have been negligent in the past we have been negligent in our duty to do better in the future.

As this joyous season of Christmas is now on, and the hand of hearty good-will is being extended, we all join in wishing you from the bottom of our young hearts a very merry Xmas and a happy New Year. Kindly accept this small gift as a

THE MIRACLE OF INDUSTRIAL CHEMISTRY

IT has been said that the chemical engineer who first made sulphuric acid achieved a discovery of more importance to the human race than the discovery of the continent of America by Columbus. For, if the art of making it were lost today, we should be without steel, and the foundation of our industrial structure would disappear.

The world's debt to the chemical engineer is continually mounting. It is he who brought to mankind comforts and conveniences that a century ago were only wishes; it is he who is almost daily finding new substances, new uses for them and new ways of using present materials.

Canadian Industries Limited not only maintains its own staff of chemical engineers, but also has the advantage of an interchange of technical information with two of the most forward-looking of the world's great industrial enterprises—Imperial Chemical Industries Limited, of Great Britain, and E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Company of the United States.

Originally all three companies produced explosives only, and in seeking to improve them, their chemical engineers developed a series of products seemingly unrelated, but actually cousins in the same family because the basic materials are similar.

Thus came Pyralin, used in the manufacture of toiletware, combs, collars, etc.; thus came Fabrikoid, so largely used in the upholstering of automobiles and furniture, in binding books, in making luggage and many other things; thus came Duco and a complete line of New Process Paints and Varnishes for the decoration and preservation of the country's homes, cars, furniture, etc.

The Canadian Industries Limited trade-mark on all of these products, so varied in their use, is a guarantee of excellence—a guarantee of the best Canadian workmanship, based on the world's latest chemical engineering knowledge.

Duke In Scandal (By British United Press) BERLIN, Feb. 8.—The 26-year-old Duke of Anhalt, who made a romantic marriage with a pretty actress last February, has an immense quantity of valuable pictures, statues, tapestries and books. Some time ago he made up his mind to part with treasures worth about $1,250,000 and entered into an arrangement with a Berlin art dealer, Dr. Gurliitt, to put them on the market. The duke's upholsterer, who doubtless regretted the loss of the commission which formerly accrued to him, maintained that things were sold at far too cheap a price. Perhaps this was why the duke declared that the contract with the art dealer was invalid. A portrait by Carpaccio and a rare Bible were taken away from Dr. Gurliitt's premises on the ground that the portrait was really the property of Prince Eugene, the Duke's brother, and that the Bible had to be handed over to the Free State of Anhalt. To Dr. Gurliitt's astonishment, the portrait was exhibited in London and sold for $22,000 to a Munich customer, and as to the Bible the Anhalt authorities say that they have not received it. Dr. Gurliitt is bringing an action against the duke for $125,000 which he would have received had the contract been carried out.
