

NUXATED IRON —MASTER STRENGTH BUILDER OF THE BLOOD

The Power Behind the Strong
Sturdy Men and Healthy
Beautiful Women of Today

"To make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron" says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells throughout the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and endurance into the whole system. It often increases the strength of weak, delicate people in two weeks' time. It is estimated that over 2,000,000 people use Nuxated Iron annually as a tonic and blood-builder.

MAKE THIS TEST YOURSELF And Find Out Where Your Blood Stands

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of men and women who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form.

Manufacturers Note: Nuxated Iron recommended and prescribed by physicians is not a secret remedy but one which is well known throughout the world. Hence the older formulae from Bordeaux. It is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, makes them clean, and causes no indigestion. The manufacturer guarantees success, and will refund your money in every instance if they do not find your money well spent. This depends on all good doctors.

SOLDIER BOYS HONORED.

On Friday evening, May 2, a large number of friends of the soldier boys belonging to South Milton and Highfield, gathered at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Rodd to do honor to the lads just returned. A short program of recitations and instrumental music was called off by Mr. Bruce Duck, who ably acted as chairman. A short address, which appears below, was also read to the boys, six in number. Each of them in reply made a few remarks thanking the association for the address and their gifts, which consisted of ten dollar gold pieces. Following this every soldier in the house who could be captured was sent to the ceiling. The remainder of the night was spent in supplying the wants of the inner man at a sumptuous table. The following are the names of the returned men:

Samuel Elliott, Jos. Holroyd, Daniel Bell, Harry Stewart, Wm. Howard, Otto Campbell.

The presentation was made by the Misses Jean Rodd and Doris Stockman. The address was as follows:

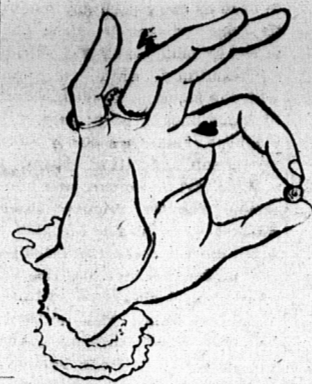

It gives us great pleasure tonight to welcome back to our midst from the historic battlefields of Europe some of the men who, at the first sign of danger to the Empire, were ready to leave their chosen vocations and their loved ones to submit to the stern discipline and the dangers of war. In doing so you men, unknowingly perhaps, took part in what has been proved to be the most disastrous war in the history of the world. To have "done your bit," as you have done in this war, fraught with such momentous consequences to the whole world, is an honor which comparatively few of our countrymen can hope to emulate. We can never forget the names of Ypres, St. Julien, Festubert, Lens, the Somme, Cambrai and a dozen other places where the soldiers of this Empire have won a name which will endure so long as there are monuments to British heroism. We realize that you had to resist the same old enemy who has crossed the Rhine nearly fifty times in the past two thousand years, who when victorious committed the most terrible atrocities and when defeated, whimpered and promised never to act thus again.

We, as British subjects will not lose sight of the fact that the soldiers in the lower ranks have certainly done their share with great credit to themselves, and have nobly measured up to the old standard. England expects that every man this day shall do his duty.

We can only hope that the great statesmen of the victorious nations now in secret assembly may as gloriously complete the task allotted to them, and coupled with this cherished desire, we express another, viz that the government of this great Dominion of Canada, likewise in convocation will see to it that due reward shall be meted out to the noble hand of heroes who did their bit in preventing German militarism from taking root on this side of the Atlantic.

Let us pray that the result of the deliberations at the great Peace Conference will not be a treaty signed by six nations as heretofore and which one third of them may think can be violated with impunity, but will be the framing of a document signed by the conquered and of such a binding nature that it will be impossible for any nation, or group of nations to violate it without calling down upon themselves the severe chastisement of the major portion of the League.

In our hour of rejoicing, welcoming, etc., let us pause for a moment to think of another scene. You as soldiers have perhaps seen some of your dearest comrades fall to rise no more upon the field, but you did not have time to reflect what heart-rending grief on the part of loved ones follows: the fall of each mortally wounded man. There are hundreds of homes in this fair land where one or more brave men are sadly mourned. It is our duty fellow soldiers and citizens to see that a suitable and worthy memorial be erected to the honor of their name. We consider no remembrances too good for them, who died in the fight for British liberty and freedom.

In bidding you a cordial, sincere "Welcome Home," we pray that you will accept these small tokens as a slight mark of our esteem and of our appreciation of your services rendered in helping to subdue the greatest menace known to the civilized world. Like all Britons, without in anyway boasting, we assure you that we feel we can truly say that our boys have honestly won a name and place on the enduring page of our Country's history.

Signed on behalf of So Milton and Highfield Patriotic Association.

A good example of the untrimmable hat which, nevertheless, looks most elaborate, is developed in a Copon hagen blue hair straw, very soft and supple. At one side the straw crown has been cut away and a puff of blue velvet of the exact shade placed between crown and brim so that the vertopping straw has a slight "tam" look. Satin and straw make a good combination. Dark blue satin appears to excellent advantage when placed on a flat, wide frame with a straw facing under the brim. The satin is placed at the back in high puffs, which add height and dignity to the smart chapeau. As yet, the little taffeta hats are somewhat in the background, though doubtless they will be used extensively later, as women are just learning the art of embroidering them at home with the bright and gay colored threads so much seen during the winter.

Flowers have not had such a vogue in years. The methods of using them vary from crowns made of tiny single blossoms petal effects forming one enormous rose as the only trimming. This last has been effectively used on a wide sailor with a higher crown than most have. Dark blue taffeta is the material, and the only trimming is one very large rose with wide petals placed directly in front. The silken rose has shed some of its blue petals, and these lie close beside it on the wide blue silk brim. There is a tendency to trim hat brims extensively. Flowers are placed in long rows against the brim. Usually it is upturned in a deep saucer shape. Of course, only the smallest blossoms are used for this sort of ornamentation—tiny lilac blossoms, forget-me-nots, lilies-of-the-valley and pink arbutus buds.

KEEP YOUR CITIZEN SOLDIERS.

The returned man is the best human asset Canada has. This point is well adduced by the Belleville intelligencer when it says:

"Good citizens are as pearls above price and to lose even one is a calamity not to be taken lightly or without regret. Canadian soldiers who served overseas have had their outlook upon life immeasurably broadened and mellowed by the strenuous discipline of military life and the ennobling influences of the daily sacrifices and splendid brotherhood of the trenches. Those men, encouraged and appreciated, will make the best of citizens and valuable assets to any community. Among the recently returned officers of the C. E. F. is Capt. Dan Cameron who saw active service in its most strenuous phases on the battlefields of France, and for distinguished service in the war was awarded the Military Cross. Capt. Cameron before responding to the call of his country was one of the most popular citizens of Belleville and his musical talent so freely given at all times for the benefit of the public was always appreciated. His reception upon his return shows that he lost none of his popularity; rather has it increased. The feeling of the citizens of Belleville is embodied in the universal desire that Capt. Cameron resume his accustomed place in the life of the community and give the benefit of his experiences overseas to the upbuilding of a better citizenship founded upon these high ideals which carried Canadian soldiers through the hell of a Hun-made war with a smile on their faces, a song on their lips and the helping hand ever ready to serve a comrade. Ottawa, May 5th, 1919.

RECONSTRUCTION A JOB FOR A BUSINESS WIZARD.

The secret of Luther Burbank's unusual public service, for instance, is not that with a magician's wand he has summoned from the thin air new creations of vegetables and flowers; but that he has taken natural laws and natural forces that were already at work, and by mixing human intelligence with them has produced in a short time a Shasta laisy, a bigger, better and finer daisy than nature would have produced in a century if left to herself.

In the readjustment period we are entering we shall need the services of a great many Luther Burbanks of business, of industry, of politics, of education, men who by the grace of analysis can see where contemporary forces and current ideas are leading the country, and by adding

THE LAUGHING PLANT

There is a curious plant that grows in Arabia and is known as the "laughing plant."

This name comes from the fact that anyone who eats its seed cannot control his laughter. The natives of the district where the plant grows dry the seeds, and reduce them to powder. A small dose of this powder makes those who eat it act in a very strange manner. The soberest person will dance, shout, and laugh like a madman, and rush about, cutting the most ridiculous capers for an hour.

At the end of this time the reaction comes. The danger is exhausted, and deep sleep comes upon him. After a nap of several hours he awakens, with performed.
