Household Remedies

—Levy's Studio

"My household remedies for years have been Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Pleasant Pellets and Favorite Prescription," said Mrs. Mary Ellen Miers, (above) of 89 Monmouth Road, Walkerville, Ont. "My husband owes his life today to the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the 'Pleasant Pellets.' He was a very sick man when I first wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. He could not retain food and gas would form in his stomach. Finally, he lost all desire for food and would have fainting spells. Thru the advice of Dr. Pierce, I purchased some of his 'Discovery' at the drug store and very soon my husband was well and able to work. "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the tonic and nervine that brought me safely thru the critical period of life when I had been having hot flashes, dizziness and spells of melancholia."

"The Story Without A Name"

The much-heralded Paramount picture, "The Story Without a Name," made from Arthur Stringer's radio adventure-romance, recently featured as a Prize-Title story in Photoplay Magazine, opened at the Prince Edward Theatre yesterday.

Agnes Ayres and Antonio Moreno are featured in the principal roles. Moreno has the role of a young scientist and inventor who has been experimenting in secret for the U. S. government. The picture opens with the first test of his invention, and with it the "death ray" makes its motion picture debut.

Here's a feature that has gotten pages of publicity in the papers of the nation of late brought to the screen in as timely a production as we've seen in many a long day. And the novelty of the picture does not end here by any means. The radio, too, plays a prominent part in the production, which is a fast-moving melodrama — de luxe thriller in other words.

"The Story Without a Name" was adapted to the screen by Victor Irvin. It includes in the supjorting cast such well known names as Tyrone Power, Dagmar Godowsky, Maurice Costello, Louis Woleim, Ivan Linow and Jack Bohn. Irvin Willat directed.

Here's something out of the usual run of pictures.

"Poor Butterfly" a rip-roaring comedy completed a program which will be repeated today for the last time.

Graduation Exercises

money from the city and country is being paid into the Campaign Fund, not one cent goes to the yearly maintenance of the Hospital. From this source the Trustees got about $4,000 per annum, and instead of a defecit of $7,000 to $10,000 as is currently reported I do not think there will be a defecit of over $1,700 or $1,800, and if the Campaign subscribers pay up their subscriptions there would be a sufficient amount over and above the cost of the improvements to take care of these small annual deficits.

I trust that the three elements that the Hospital depends on for success, the Superintendent and the Medical Staff and the Trustees will continue to turn out annually such bye products as we have here tonight in this graduating class, and which we are now about to turn into the completely manufactured article by presenting them with their diplomas.

When the last diploma had been presented His Honor called on Dr. Rupert F. Seaman who delivered the following address to the graduates:

Your Honour, Graduate Nurses, Ladies and Gentlemen,

Another year has passed, and we have met again to wish another graduating class God speed, as they go forth to their noble calling.

You, our graduating nurses, will soon leave your training school and hospital which we may, indeed, call your Alma Mater, and take up work in the different branches of your profession. Yet, I trust, you will always look back with satisfaction and with pride to the time spent in training.

Our hospital has, for many years, been filling a most important place in our city and province. From its humble beginning, at a time when accommodation was small, and equipment meagre, when instruments were sterilized in a large wash-boiler on the kitchen range, and carried up two flights of stairs to the operating room, the hospital has gradually grown in size and efficiency, until, today, it is recognized by the Hospital Commission of the American College of Surgeons, as a Class A. hospital. This means that the American College of Surgeons is satisfied that any patient in our hospital will receive the best and most modern treatment that can be given. Year by year, our methods have been improved, and new instruments for the diagnosis and the treatment of disease have been added to our equipment. This improvement will continue as time goes on, and you may always feel confident that this hospital will maintain its present high standard.

With such assurance, you will, I firmly believe, be always enthusiastic supporters of the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

It is easy to find fault. It is easy to pick out, in any great work, little things, which, though unimportant may by the idle talker, be magnified into the most serious defects. Today, people who should know better, and who should be our most loyal supporters, are, for some strange reason, our most destructive critics. We welcome criticism. Honest criticism is always stimulating, but fault-finding and cruel insinuations are unjust and degrading. Adverse criticism, spoken publicly, may do a world of harm. A word of praise, given opportunity, may do a world of good. Let us then, all be boosters, trying to elevate our hospital to higher and higher levels of service.

The present high standing of our hospital is largely due to our efficient matron and her excellent staff of nurses, whose untiring efforts and devotion to duty, have carried us steadily onward, in spite of difficulties, and disappointments, which at times, have seemed more than could be overcome.

To you, Graduate Nurses, we give credit for a fair share of the success of our work. You are now about to leave us. During your three years of study and hospital training, which have not been easy years, you have always had someone to go to with your difficulties. In future, you must depend largely on your own resources.

Possibly some of you in starting out thus, may feel that your knowledge is not as great as, at the outset of your course, you had expected it would now be. You must remember that the past three years have really been only the beginning of your training. Nothing but constant study and post post graduate work in the branches of nursing wich you will follow, will ever advance you to a high place in your profession.

As your teachers, we feel satisfied that you will make a success, either in private practice, or in institutional work. Bear in mind, however, that daily reading and study are just as important to your success in the years to come as they have been in your obtaining of the diploma which you will receive tonight. There is no "royal road" to success in any walk of life. It is said that a real nurse is born, not made, but I assure you that, without constant work, you will never reach the top. You are not now at a resting place in your course. You have only laid a firm foundation on which to build for the future. You cannot stand still. It is yours to decide whether your progress will be on and on to the greater things, or backward to disappointment and failure. Be regular and systematic in your work, never allow laxity or carelessness to enter into your treatmnet of patients. Even though they may be well on the road to convalescence, they still have a right to as constant and as prompt care as they had when in the acute stages.

In your life's work, you have two duties to perform; first, your duty to those by whom you are employed; second, your duty to yourself. We grow proficiient by the faithful discharge of duty. By neglecting duty, we lose self-respect and the power to grow. It will be your privilege to spend your lives in the service ofothers, to pass your days and nights soothing those whose bodies are racked with pain and disease, comforting the fears which are so often inspired by sickness. May you be given strength of heart and of mind which will enable you to be always ready to serve rich and poor, good and bad, friend and enemy. May every patient be to you, a fellow creature in need of your service.

You will meet all kinds of people. Human nature is very complex, and whether your work lies in the hovel or in the mansion, you will find that nature much the same. Some patients will be thoughtful for your well-being, and grateful for your services; others will be mst exacting and unreasonable, and will consider that your services can be paid for with money, and that they must get full return for that money. These latter cases will try your ability and your devotion to duty. Yet, even amid such ingratitude, you will know that nothing can give you as great satisfaction and peace of mind, as is given by the consciousness of duty well done.

The mental attitude of the nurse toward her patient, is often the most potent factor in the recovery of that patient. If the nurse is bright and cheerful, and shows by her manner that she is confident and hopeful, she cannot fail to instill similar confidence into her charges, and to help them along the road to recovery.

In order to carry out her duty, a nurse must be careful of her own health. Your habits of life must be regular. The training you have received in this line in the hospital, should continue to guide you. No nurse can do proper work withoht sufficient sleep at regular times. You must also have your recreation from duty. Work and pleasure should not clash. Each has its appointed place. Your own inclination should never, in any way ,interfere with your nursing. On the other hand, when you have your hours off duty, leave your work behind. Do not carry cares and worries with you during rest or recreation. In this way only, can you truly give your patient, your best during working hours, for otherwise you keep your mind constantly tired from worry.

In closing we congratulate you on your chosen profsession. There are many fields open to you in the nursing world, many specialties into which a trained nurse may go, some more remunerative than others. There is the great field of social service, with its unlimited opportunity for relieving suffering, and for doing good. There are also the great fields of institutional work and of private nursing. Whichever of these you may choose, give your work the best that is in you, and your reward will be assured.

We congratulate you on your admission into the great army of trained nurses, and our best wishes will always be with you.

When the applause which marked the conclusion of Dr Seaman's address had died down Miss Annie MacDonald, one of the graduating nurses, daughter of John N. and Mrs MacDonald of Kilmuir, P. E. I., read the Valedictory. Miss MacDonald's delivery of this important address was excellent and she was accorded very hearty applause. The Valedictory was as follows:

Your Honor, Members of the Medical and of the Nursing Staff, Classmates, Ladies and Gentlemen,

Almost three years ago, we the class of 1925, came from homes in different parts of our Province, all with one purpose—to train as nurses in the Prince Edward Island Hospital. Through trials as probationers, through hard work as juniors, through eager expectations as intermediates, and through the stress of examinations as seniors, we have gradually made our way to this realization of the ambitions that brought us here.

During our training we have been through much sunshine, and much shadow, and have learned from both. We have worked long hours, we have been sometimes disheartened and discouraged, and through it all shine the bright spots made by the gratitude of patients the good times at our impromptu entertainments, and the cheerful sympathy and kindly advice of our Superintendents.

We feel that we cannot leave the Institution without some word of farewell to those who have made our time pleasant and profitable. The time has came when we must bid adieu to our "Alma Mater". We shall ever cherish memories of the Prince Edward Island Hospital and of the happy times we have spent here. The ideals left with us by former graduates, and the examples set by our associates have left a mark not soon to be erased.

To you members of the Medical Staff, we wish to express gratitude for your patience and forbearane with us in all our blunders. No matter where we may go, or in what field we may labor, we shall look back with pleasure to the time we have spent under your direction in practical work and in the class room.

We hope that our relations with each one of you in the future may be as cordial as they have always been in the past.

To our Superintendent and her Assistant, whsoe untiring efforts have done so much for us, we must say farewell. It has been a privilege for all of us to have known you so intimately, to have lived with you so long, and to have been under your careful and painstaking instructions. The lessons you have taught us will ever be a guide to us.

To you citizens of Charlottetown who have made our sojourn among you a happy one, we express our gratitude. You have made us feel at home among you, when we were strangers, and we trust the friendships we have made here will be lifelong.

To you under-graduates, we must also say farewell. We are leaving to you the task of keeping the record of nurses up to the high standard it has always held. May you learn by our mistakes and remember us with the same sincere feelings with which we shall remember you.

And now we have come to the hardest part of our task, to bid farewell to our fellow class-mates as we go forth each to her own task, cheerful under difficulties and ready for whatever we may meet, may we always strive to live up to the examples set by those who have trod this road before us and to keep stainless the reputation of our "Alma Mater."

Let us have ever before us the resolve:

"Let me be a little kinder
Let me be little blinder
To the faults of those about me
Let me praise a little more,
Let me be when I am weary
Just a little bit more cheery
Let me serve a little better
Those that I am striving for."

"Let me be a little braver
When temptation bids me waver
Let me strive a little harder
To be all that I should be.
Let me be a little meeker
With a sister that is weaker,
Let me think more of my neighbor
And a little less of Me."

Following the delivery of the Valedictory Mrs Frances H. Trainor sang "Sunrise and You" with violin obligato and was obliged to respond to a hearty encore. Mr George Beers gave an interesting reading and Mr. Acorn sang "Even Bravest Heart" from Faust. A quartette "Gently Sweet Afton" sung by Mesdames Stewart and Bell and Messrs McKay and Stewart was well received. The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening's entertainment to a close.

The graduating nurses were Misses Florence Elizabeth Bell, Annie MacDonald, Ruble Davison, Evangeline, Marie Annie Victoria Watts, Etta Constance Coles, Mabel Miller Slackford, Margaret Ellen Cross, Bertha Helen Darrach.

Present on the platform, which was beautifully decorated with ferns and cut flowers loaned by Mrs. J. Williams were Reverends Malcolm Mulligan, and Eaton, Doctors Seaman, Jenkins, Dewar, Trenholme, H. Johnson, Archibald, Houston, Bagnall and McKenzie, all of whom congratulated the graduates.

The graduates entertained their friends at the Prince Edward Island Hospital after the exercises and many complimentary and congratulatory speeches were made. Songs and music by different guests present made the evening more enjoyable and at its conclusion the graduates sang "Auld Lang Syne."

In union with their many friends and well wishers the Guardian extends hearty congratulations to the Graduating Class of 1925. To the Ladies Aid of the Hospital a great deal of credit is due for the successful manner in which the exercises were conducted. A silver collection, taken at the door, realized a splendid sum.
