Politically he supported the Conservative Party, and with the return of the Party to power in 1911, he was appointed Provincial Auditor, a position which he filled capably until his retirement in 1931.

Early in life, Mr. Anderson became a member of the Sons of Temperance and gave many years of service to that order, of which he was president for one year and grand worthy scribe for two years. MacInnis, to extend happy greetings and to shower presents upon them. Mr. Charles Ross called the gathering to order, and the presents were opened by girl friends, while Mrs. Earnest Morrison read the humorous verses attached to them which caused much merriment. All the various cards contained good wishes for a happy future. Mr. Stafford Coles, on behalf of himself and Mrs. Coles, thanked the good friends for their kindness in bestowing such lovely gifts upon them; also for the hearty welcome given, and the good wishes. The crowd sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows", after which the remainder of the evening was pleasantly spent in music and dancing and social intercourse. Lunch was served by the ladies.

Last evening the staff of Prince Street School entertained their ex-principal, Mr. C. F. Hine at a social function given in his honor at the home of Miss Mary Irving.. In a cleverly written original poem, Mr. Stewart Williams, basing his remarks on the "Patience of Jobe" showed the grace and fortitude with which Mr. Hine withstood the charms of his teaching staff of the gentler sex, during his tenure of office in Prince Street School, and was rewarded with gales of laughter as they all enjoyed the fun.

In accepting the gift Mr. Hine expressed his sincere appreciation of the kindly feelings and acts shown him at all times by the Prince Street teachers.

Dainty refreshments were served by the staff, tea being poured by Miss Annie Watson.

It is gratifying to note that 32 cases were discharged from the clinics—8 as cured, 15 as improved, 1 unimproved and 8 for whom there was no treatment that could be prescribed at this type of clinic. A great number of children were referred for exercise and massage to the Red Cross Corrective Clinic conducted three times weekly at Red Cross House in Charlottetown under the direction of Miss A. M. Price, Physiotherapist.

The four-engine Douglas American Army transport plane which made an emergency landing at the Charlottetown Airport Wednesday night, took off for Mitchell Field, New York, at 10.30 a.m. yesterday.

Among the 25 military personnel, which made up crew and passengers, was Mr. Maynard Owen Williams, war correspondent and chief of the foreign editorial staff of the National Geographic magazine. Mr. Williams was returning to Washington after 16 months in the Near East where he was preparing an article on Saudi-Arabia.

Mr. Williams and Capt. Van Doren, in charge of the plane, had warm words of praise for the hospitality shown them by the ladies of the Canadian Legion and those of the local Red Cross. Refreshments were served the crew and passengers of the plane by Mrs. Arthur Henry, Mrs. Lew Howatt, Mrs. Hugh MacKay, and Mrs. A. B. Cosh. Transportation from the airport to various places in the city, where the passengers and crew spent Wednesday night, was arranged by Mrs. P. E. Palmer and Mrs. E. M. Bagnall.

He then called on Mr. Jerome O'Brien who read a most complimentary address to Mr. Samson making special mention of his ready help and effort on behalf of the local A.R.P. He was then presented with a beautiful chair by Messrs. A. B. McAdam and E. W. Anderson. Mr. Samson replied in a few well chosen words thanking each and every one for the gift. Mrs. Samson was then waited upon by the ladies of the Morell Women's Institute and a pleasing address read by Mrs. W. E. Aylward. She was then presented with two lovely plaques. Mrs. Samson also expressed her thanks for their kind remembrance. Speeches were made by a number of the men and women present speaking in the highest terms of Mr. Samson's courtesy and efficient management in the bank and of both Mr. and Mrs. Samson's interest and help in all community activities.
