Teacher and Aircraft Worker

ALBERTA MAN IN A DUAL ROLE
Experience in a garage helped

Today you'll find him teaching school at Willingdon, Alta., but in between school sessions this is where you'll find George Kelba. Picture above Mr. Kelba dismantling an aircraft motor at Aircraft Repair Limited, Edmonton, one of Canada's big overhaul establishments. He is one of a group of school teachers, women as well as men, who alternate between the classroom and a war job. Part-time experience in a garage gave Mr. Kelba a footing for aircraft work.

Edison Fraser, President of Pictou Presbyterial. Saturday there will be a Leaders' Conference held here. — News Glasgow News. Miss Webster will be in Charlottetown next week the guest of her parents, Rev. G Carlyle and Mrs. Webster

SERVICES APPRECIATED —At a recent director's meeting of the North Wiltshire Telephone company, a resolution of appreciation was tendered unanimously to Mr. G. B. Noy, retiring secretary, stating that the directors and members of the North Wiltshire Telephone Company wished to express their sincere appreciation for the splendid way in which he had cheerfully carried on the work as secretary of the company. They knew his duties were arduous, and quite often took much time, yet through all the twenty-two years he was serving they never knew him to murmur or complain. They were deeply sorry that Mr. Noy deemed it necessary to sever his connections as secretary of the Board, and wanted him to realize that he had their heartiest thanks for services rendered.

The Suprising Sanctuary

By Leslie Cargill

CHAPTER X
UNKIND FATE

Hugh woke with a splitting headache and a taste in his mouth like the aftermath of a feast on acid drops. Reconnoitring, he found a clear runnel of water to slake his thirst, collected a dozen edible eggs, and called the party to partake a repulsive but presumably nourishing meal.

"Couldn't we have something cooked," Muriel pleaded. "Grandma may have been an adept at egg-sucking, but I'd rather go hungry."

"No fires," Hugh insisted. "Far too risky. These waters are strewn with uninhabited isles and we'd soon give our position away to Ellendorf."

She went off to rummage in the boat, returning with a tin of coarse chocolate. "Intuition," she triumphed, "I thought there might be something stowed away. Concentrated nutriment."

Between sleeping, forcing themselves to eat unpalatable fare, and preparing for sailing time, they avoided boredom. Not that the unkind fates were permitting the utilization of Pewsey Mason's patient observation of the sun by which he hoped to make navigation easier. The submarine came along as though they had left a permanent trail in their wake.

Bringing up the rear of the landing party, his face black as a thunder cloud, stalked Ambrose Martin, shouldering a rifle.

"Can't do much about this" Mason observed, eyeing the advancing horde grimly.

"Take to the hills, pop."

"And be shot down at leisure? No thank you, my dear. This is big stuff. These gentry have as much regard for our lives as they have for pheasants. Hold back, Jessop!"

George was crouching for a spring. "As you wish, sir," he agreed, with manifest reluctance.

Bowing to overwhelming odds they accepted this major defeat in a mood of pessimism. No mercy was shown. They were tightly trussed up, bundled on board the submarine, and conveyed back to Ovarn in dismal plight.

Ellendorf presided over the travesty of a court martial. "It would avoid further trouble if I destroyed you utterly," he announced. "Fortunately for you I am a humane man. Unnecessary slaughter does not appeal to me. This time your wings are properly clipped. There is no other craft and the guards will be doubled."

"If you will listen to me—" Ambrose Martin broke in.

"Another time."

"It is dangerous to leave them alive."

A faint flicker of a smile twitched the lieutenant's lips. "They are a nuisance, I grant. Hardly dangerous."

"Suppose they do get in touch with the authorities?"

"For you, my friend, that would be most objectionable. According to international law my crew and I have nothing more to fear than internment."

"Why you——"

Ellendorf was out of his seat in a flash. Striding up to Martin he held him by the coat collar and shook the wretched man until his teeth chattered.

"Dummkopf!" he snarled.

"Leave me alone! Let go!"

"I'll feed you to the fishes. Do you think I am unable to get along without you, Verfluchter Engländer? I tell you something, yes? The Herren and Fraulein stand higher in my esteem than you. I will not have my ruling disputed. Their lives are spared, mark you well, unless I gives orders to the contrary". His rage evaporated as suddenly as it flared up. "Now we know each other, Nicht Wahr?"

Martin fawned obsequiously.

Talking over the incident in private Hugh Everard said he would willingly give a fiver to know what the traitor intended saying.

"Something the Lieutenant didn't want us to hear," Mr. Mason remarked. "Not an ordinary expletive, either. Perhaps it was as well it never came out."

"Meaning?"

"That our lives already hang by a thread. Ellendorf would not hesitate to cut it if we knew what he is trying to hide. I'll wager they keep Martin from contact in case he spills the beans."

Mr. Mason's guess was not far wrong. Although they saw Martin frequently it was invariably in company with English-speaking Germans.

Conditions had become very much less tolerable since the frustration of the attempted getaway. Deciding that discretion was the better part of valour they settled down more or less philosophically under the new dispensation.

Of the prisoners Hugh Everard reacted most surprisingly. All his preconceived notions went by the board. The liking for solitude disappeared overnight, and there was no hiding the fact that he had fallen head over heels in love with Muriel Mason. She was aware of it from the beginning, being a woman. Only she could say if it had been calculatingly nurtured. Also, being a woman, she kept this to herself.

This tremendous development made a new man of the erstwhile dreamer. Pushing him into the leadership was a thing of the past. He assumed it as his constituted privilege.

"Your old friends wouldn't recognise you," Muriel told him.

In Memoriam

GEORGE W. McEACHERN

There passed peacefully away at the P. E. I. Hospital on Thursday evening, January 13th, George W. McEachern in his 77th year. Although in declining health for the past year he was always up and around as usual, until a week before his death but he commenced to grow weaker and was removed to the hospital where he remained only a few days. In spite of all medical care and kind attention his spirit softly and tenderly went back to God who gave it.

George as he was familiarly known, will be greatly missed not only by his loved ones in the home but in the surrounding community.

He leaves to mourn his beloved wife, namely Letitia McDougall of Argyle Shore, two daughters, Mrs. Mary, Mrs. Russell Gay, Charlottetown, Melinda, Mrs. James Beaton, Bonshaw and one brother Joseph, also four grandchildren, George Arnold Burhoe on the homestead, Lomer Earl Gay attached to H.M. C.S. Queen Charlotte, Catherine Beverley and James Eardley Beaton of Bonshaw.

The funeral which was largely attended was held from his late residence on Saturday afternoon, January 15th. Services at home and grave were conducted by Rev. Harvey Bishop assisted by Rev. D. K. Ross of Pownal. The following were sung, 23rd Psalm: 121 Psalm and the 55th paraphrase which was the deceased favorite.

The following were the floral tributes:

Spray—The family.

Spray—Lydie M. Dyer.

Spray—Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Gay.

The ball bearers were James Munn, Russell and Henry Jenkins, John MacDonald, Frank Driscoll and Leigh Ferguson.

His body was gently laid to rest in Mermaid Cemetery.

Card of Thanks

Mrs. George McEachern and family wish to thank their kind neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness during their recent sad bereavement. 2-12-1i.

IN MEMORIAM

JAMES EMMETT HUGHES, Kinkora, February 12th, 1942.

In loving memory of James Emmett Hughes of Kinkora, who gave his life in the service of his country.

A member of the Canadian Merchant Marine, he was returning to America on convoy, reaching Bermuda safely after his ship, crippled and storm-tossed, without fuel or needed food supplies had drifted aimlessly for many days.

Here the ship was repaired and re-fitted and left for Philadelphia, a four days run from Bermuda.

The ship nor any member of her crew were ever heard of again, and without doubt were victims of an enemy U boat who were at the height of their destructive work in the Atlantic about this period.

James is fondly and lovingly remembered in the hearts of his parents and members of the family and his many friends throughout the province.

Gallant and young he donned the blue,
True as the truest that wore it,
Brave as the bravest he went away
Tears on the cheeks of his mother lay,
Bravely aloft waved our flag one day—
He sank in the sea before it.

A grave in the sea with the sky overhead,
A grave in the heart of his mother—
His clay in the one lies lifeless and lone:
There is not a name, there is not at stone,
And only the voice of the winds maketh moan
O'er the grave where never a flower is strewn
But—his memory lives in the other.
Requiescat in pace.

PRESENTATION BEFORE HIS DEPARTURE OVERSEAS

The admiration and esteem in which the men of the forces are held was again exemplified when the friends and relatives of Gunner Carl Hagan gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice McDonald, Kelly's Cross, to bid their school chum and friend farewell before his departure overseas, following the completion of his initial training at No. 62 C. A. B. T. C.

A jolly good time was had by all present in dancing to the music furnished by the local orchestra consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice McDonald, Charles Costello and William Monaghan.

Immediately following the evening of enjoyment Gunner Carl Hagan was presented with a well filled purse and the following address read by Francis McDonald.

Tonight we your friends, relatives and school mates have assembled here to bid you farewell before your departure. We appreciate your patriotism in joining the forces instead of continuing your college career. This spirit which is in the heart of every one in the forces will no doubt bring the enemy to their knees sooner than is anticipated.

Before going we ask you to accept this small gift not for its value but for the spirit in which it is given.

We the people of Kelly's Cross assure you that our best wishes will follow you wherever you go and we sincerely hope you will be back with us soon again. 2-12-1i.

MRS. WILLIAM B. CLEMENTS

The community of White Sands and vicinity lost a lady beloved by many and respected by all who knew her in the person of Mrs. William B. Clements. Though not in her usual good health for some months, she had been able to take an active interest in her home until a month previous to her death when she entered the P. E. Island Hospital for treatment, where she peacefully passed away on December 16, 1943. Her sudden passing came as a shock to her family and friends.

The late Mrs. Clements was born December 10, 1873 the daughter of the late Alexander and Mary Stewart. From this Scottish ancestry she inherited strong Presbyterian religious viewpoints. These she carried with her into the United Church movement.

The deceased was extremely hospitable in her home and devotedly interested in her church. A cheerful giver of the best that human hand or heart may command, her comforting voice, her silent charity, her soul full of sympathy will not soon be forgotten. Her countless christian deeds were the light of her life, and go before her as a proficious offering to the city of God.

She leaves to mourn their loss two sons and two daughters namely: Stewart and T. Harry, White Sands; Mrs. Louis Simmons, Charlottetown; and Mrs. Simon Stuart, Belle River; also one sister Mrs. G. J. MacLure, Murray Harbor North. A brother Angus Stewart, Michigan, U. S. A., also seven grandchildren. Her husband predeceased her by fourteen months.

The funeral which was held from her late residence White Sands on December 17th was very largely attended despite the severe cold. The service was conducted by her pastor Rev. W. Pickells who paid a fitting tribute testifying to the sterling qualities of her exemplary life, taking his text from Deut. Ch. 33 verse 27 "The eternal God is thy refuge and underneath are the everlasting arms." The following hymns were rendered by a mixed choir: The Lord's My Shepherd, Asleep in Jesus and In the Sweet Bye and Bye. A quartette composed of Mrs. Albert MacNeill, Messrs. Carl Jordan, Louis Harris and Will Jordon feelingly rendered "There's a Land Where We Never Grow Old."

The floral offerings were very beautiful.

The following acted as pall bearers: Messrs. Joseph Buell, William Buell, Lawrence Stewart, William Glover, Austin Bell and William Derby.

Interment was made in the Murray Harbor Cemetery there to await the coming of Him who said I am the resurrection and the life. 2-12-1i.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. CHARLIE MacQUARRIE

At her home in Winsloe on October 9th, 1943, there occurred the death of Mrs. Charlie MacQuarrie at the age of 78 years.

The deceased had been in failing health for a number of months, but her passing came as a sudden shock to those near her.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Ford of Ebenezer.

She was of a cheerful disposition always ready and willing to help her neighbours and friends, her many acts of kindness will not soon be forgotten. She will be greatly missed in the community, but most sadly missed in her home where she was a devoted wife. She was charitable in speech and action, none came to her who did not receive a hearty and sincere welcome.

She leaves to mourn besides her sorrowing husband, the following step-sons and daughters. William, Charlottetown; Henry, Winsloe; Bruce, Winsloe; Robert, Brackley and Jim at home. Lill, Charlottetown; Eliza Millvale; also four sisters Mrs. Benjamin Smith, Winsloe; Mrs. John Chandler, Milton; Mrs. A. McDonald, Ebenezer and Mrs. John Neill, Milton.

The funeral which was largely attended was held from her home on October 21st. The service was conducted by Rev. T. Constable. The hymns sung were, Jesus Lover of My Soul, Safe in the Arms of Jesus and What a Friend We Have in Jesus.

The funeral was under the direction of Mr. J. J. Andrews, Hunter River. The pall bearers were: Messrs. Robert Roberts, Benjamin Smith, John Chandler, Garnet Ford and Gordon McInnis.

Interment took place in Winsloe North Cemetery where all that was mortal of a loving wife was tenderly laid to rest, there to wait the Resurrection morn. 2-12-1i.
