INDUCTION SERVICE AT TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

A Large Congregation assembled last evening to witness the induction of Rev. Hammond Johnson into the co-pastorate of the Church.

A large congregation assembled in Trinity United Church last evening to witness the induction of Rev. Hammond Johnson into the co-pastorate of the church as colleague of Rev. Dr. Ramsay. A fine choir led the musical portion of the service, which included besides appropriate hymns, the anthem "Father Thy Children Keep." (Sullivan.)

Rev. F. E. Boothroyd, chairman of the Presbytery of Prince Edward Island (United Church) presided, and, associated with him in the service were Revs. Dr. Heartz, D. M. Grant, T. A. Wilson and Dr. Ramsay.

The session of the church, as a body occupied seats at the front. After an opening hymn followed by scripture reading and prayer the sermon of the evening was preached by Rev. D. M. Grant of Malpeque, who took for his text I Corinthians, the second chapter and the second verse: "For I have determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified."

The speaker brought out the fact that the church, to be successful, must be inspired by, and centre its whole work in the cross.

Criticisms that religion is failing in its work can only be true when Christ is not exalted in and by the church.

The church needs to recapture the crusading spirit. The young people are ready to show the heroism of active service for Christ and faith in an ideal.

The cross exemplifies the Fatherhood of God, the Brotherhood of Man, and the great principles of service and sacrifice. In this lies the world's hope of redemption.

In the presence of the Standing congregation, Mr. Boothroyd by authority of Presbytery put to the minister-elect the prescribed questions and carried through the ceremony of induction, after which Mr. Johnson was given the right-hand of fellowship by the ministers assembled as also the elders.

The Venerable Dr. Heartz, nestor of ministers of the United Church in all Canada, then addressed the new minister. Following words of appreciation of Rev. Dr. Ramsay, Dr. Heartz mentioned that both Dr. Ramsay and Mr. Johnson as well as their wives were native Prince Edward Islanders. He was sure these ministers would be worthy followers of the predecessors in Trinity United Church so long known as the Brick Church.

From 65 years of experience in the Christian ministry he gave valuable advice and dwelt on the responsibilities and privileges of a clergyman. Dr. Heartz' powers as an orator seems not one whit abated in spite of his advanced age.

The address to the people was given by Rev. G. A. Wilson of Covehead, who said that the duty and proper attitude of a congregation to its pastor might work. Loyalty—loyalty in personal support and in what he undertakes in the spiritual activities of the church.

Dr. Ramsay followed with a few words of welcome expressed most feelingly, and Mr. Boothroyd conveyed the greetings of Presbytery, and a very memorable service was brought to a close with the benediction pronounced by Rev. Dr. Heartz.

The congregation then went forward and were introduced to their new minister who will be very cordially welcomed in his new home and work.

JAS. GORMLEY FOUND GUILTY, WILLIAM GORMLEY ACQUITTED

Jury in second trial of prisoners for assault upon Patrick McKenna, occasioning serious bodily harm, after twenty minutes' deliberation take down above verdict.

The second trial of James Gormley and William Gormley, indicted on the charge of assault occasioning actual bodily harm to Patrick McKenna, commenced yesterday morning in the Supreme Court before Justice Arsenault, with Mr. Donald McKinnon appearing for the Crown and Mr. D. Edgar Shaw for the prisoners. Seven witnesses were examined and the case went to the jury in the afternoon.

After the addresses by the counsels and the charge by His Lordship the jury retired as the clock was striking five. In less than twenty minutes they retrned with a verdict of "Guilty" for James Gormley, and a verdict of acquittal for William Gormley.

Justice Arsenault before dismissing the jury thanked them, saying it was most satisfactory to the court to have a jury which could come to a conclusion.

Court then adjourned to meet again at 11 o'clock Monday morning. The first witness called was:

Patrick McKenna, Sydney St., Charlottetown, having given information concerning his premises on Sydney St., testified that he was assaulted about 9.30 at night.

He had been attending the horses, when he saw three fellows—James Gormley, William Gormley and Francis McDougall, three other fellows also appeared in the gangway, who were told by McDougall to "beat it we got him." He was then assaulted. He described the extent of his injuries. He became unconscious and when he gained consciousness there was nobody about. He finally got into the house and later the doctor arrived who dressed his injuries.

During the cross-examination by Mr. Edgar Shaw he sketched on paper a plan of his premises on Sydney St.

He is living now in the residence of the late Owen Trainor, corner of Queen and Sydney Streets, at his former residence he was a taxi-man and also sold liquor. He had two kegs the night of the assault, in a sleigh. It was in his possession but he said "I didn't say it belonged to me," He complained to the Chief of Police about the assault. The prisoners were not among his customers, his was the "classiest kind." All the kegs went that night. He heard no shot that night. He knew the prisoners one from another. He was convicted for break of the Prohibition Act, after the asault, on information supplied by Gormley, for having liquor in his possession.

Dr. Richard Ledwell, told of having attended Patk. McKenna, in March 1926, on arriving at the house he found him suffering from injuries, some of which were severe. There were several woundes over the top of the head; the immediate effect of which renders a man semi-unconscious. The ear was effected by way of deafness, for months afterwards.

Cross-examined he testified that a patient was brought to his office that same night—William Gormley. He sent him to the hospital under the observation of the doctor of the month. He was, he thought, treated for gun-shot wounds.

This ended the evidence for the Crown. That of the defense opened with the testimony of William Gormley, Upper Hillsboro St., he testified that on 12th March he was not with his brother James or Francis McDougall, but with Andrew McLeod with whom he took a walk. Standing on the corner, he saw a crowd in front of McKenna's. He (the witness) lived then in that direction. Going past he was shot. He saw Patk. McKenna and Lincoln Doyle in the gangway. Doyle was down on one knee. He lost a finger as a result of the shooting. I was not in Patk. McKenna's yard that night.

Cross-examined. He testified having gone by McKenna's to see what was going on. Mr. McKinnon wanted to know how a man standing on the last corner of McKenna's building, could shoot him on the left hip when facing north. He was convicted in the Police Court for carrying firearms. He was convicted twice for being drunk, McDougall is a first cousin. After he (the witness) was injured he went to Barney Carragher's then to his aunt's.

Court took recess until 2.30.

The witness, William Gormley was again called to the stand in the afternoon session, and asked if he saw anyone he knew after he left McLeod. Barney Carragher was the only one, he said.

Mr. Shaw in his examination of the witness, asked the witness for more information concerning his position when he was shot. He gave his age as 21 years. There are two William Gormley's in Charlottetown. The light from the street was shining in the gangway, past the two men there. He didn't know anything about the rum taken that night.

Clarence Dunn of Upper Prince St. said he saw people go into McKenna's. He said he was talking to McKenna last Saturday night. He (McKenna) said he had a paper to go to court. He (McKenna) said it should have been dropped long ago.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gormley, testified that she was the mother of the prisoners. She remembered when her son was shot. Both boys were out that night Willie went out first with a McLeod boy. James went out later. She didn't hear her son was shot until the next morning..

James W. Shaw, ex-Chief of Police, tesetified that he laid the information in the case, through the report of Officer Joseph Trainor. The idea of laying the information was to get who did the shooting. It was not through complaint of McKenna that he laid information.

Cross-examined he said information for the shooting was laid against Lincoln Doyle. He thought, the case was before the Supreme Court.

James Gormley, one of the accused, stated his brother was not with him the night of the 12th March, 1926. He was near Patrick McKenna's' that night with McDougal to get a bottle of rum. They met McKenna and Doyle. He took a keg of liquor from the sleigh. He didn't

Withdrawing From Trades Union Congress

(Special to The Guardian)

LONDON, July 8.—The Post Office Workers Union, largest among the civil service organizations, is withdrawing from the Trades Union Congress and closing its political fund, in anticipation of the passage by parliament of the trade union bill.

The bill, among other things, debars civil servants from association with any trades unions other than these solely composed of civil servants and having no political objectives.

Several members of the House of Commons in the past have fought with the financial assistance of the post office union. The union's official organization says "parliament will expect in return for this enforced surrender that the government will do something to strengthen the existing machinery for expressing and settling grievances.

BREAKDOWN OF CONFERENCE IS FEARED

Crisis at Geneva Has Become More Acute

(Special to The Guardian)

GENEVA, July 8.—That the crisis in the tripartite naval conference is far from passed and not only continues but has become more acute, was indicated by a statement issued to the press this afternoon by Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the British Admiralty. Without naming the United States Mr. Bridgeman hinted broadly that maintenance of large sized warships might be construed as aggressive rather than defensive.

The first lord declared it was impossible to arrive at a low total tonnage if the maximum tonnage in each type of warship was to be pushed up into types that became aggressive weapons. Arguing that the British proposals were based entirely on a desire to give Great Britain proper security and defence, he said: —"The more that is understood, the more will be the hope of getting an aggreement."

Mr. Bridgeman declared that Great Britain had not favored the 10,000 ton offensive cruisers when these were authorized at the Washington conference of 1922, and that she only has them now because she was obliged to build some in self protection. Hence it was not Britain's fault if her total tonnage was high, he said "as it has been forced upon us."

LONDON, July 8. —Possibility of a breakdown in the naval negotiations at Geneva was emphasized in despatches from Geneva Washington and New York displayed in today's newspapers.

J. H. THOMAS WARNS RUSSIA

"Useless to Try to Engineer a Revolution in This Country," Mr. Thomas Declares.

(Special to The Guardian)

CARLISLE, Eng., July 8.—J. H. Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen served notice on Russia that it is useless to try to engineer a revolution in this country. Mr. Thomas was speaking at a conference of the national union of railwaymen.

"I hope Russia will immediately abandon the absurd idea that she can engineer a revolution in this country, or dictate to a movement like ours as to how we are going to conduct our business" he declared.

"It is no secret that there is Russian money to subsidize their particular form of propaganda, but the mistake the Russians are making is that they are subsidizing the wrong people."

Neither the minority movement nor communist propaganda is going to divert the great mass of workers in this country, from following a constitutional path to bring about the social changes required."
