Stresses Needs Of 2nd King's Producers

Requirements of both farmers and fishermen in his constituency were brought to the attention of the Government by Mr. R. L. Burge, Conservative member for the Second District of King's, in his maiden speech on the Draft Address in the Legislature on Monday.

Mr. Burge commended the Government's action in encouraging the growing of cucumbers, which will result in time in the development of a number of small farm holdings for the growing of other small vegetables and fruits. He stressed the importance of both the potato and dairy industries. In the latter connection, he believed it was important to raise the average production of cows to two or even three times the present. The different breed-clubbers are doing good work in this connection.

Equally important, Mr. Burge said, is the feeding and proper care of dairy herds. There is much work for the Department of Agriculture to do in this matter. Of first importance is proper pastureage.

He proposed the Premier's proposal of obtaining large quantities of mussel mud for use as fertilizer. This would be very useful on pasture land but he feared the mud could not be used extensively on potato acreages without developing scab. He referred to the lack of magnesium as well as lime in the soil, and described methods used in his district during the past three or four years of distributing 1 per cent of magnesium in growing potatoes. This distribution still left a magnesium deficiency in the soil.

Mr. Burge referred to lime mill facilities in Newfoundland and the prospects of the Government securing some dolomite lime from that quarter to assist the farmers here.

In dairying, he said, a more aggressive policy in the Department of Agriculture is needed, especially with regard to providing fieldly with regard to the seed potato men. He cited an example of success in educating growers and developing efficiency through the services of potato inspectors, and suggested a similar policy for the improvement of dairying.

The past year has been a difficult one for the fisheries industry and anything the Government can do to relieve this situation would be greatly appreciated. Along the shore many independent fishermen are handicapped by lack of places to haul their boats. The Dominion Government should be induced to dredge out some of the inlets, particularly along the North Shore.

Mr. Burge expressed hope that a new bridge at St. Peter's Bay would be constructed as soon as possible. He also said his district would obtain its fair share of road work. He mentioned a number of important shipping centres in his constituency in pressing his request in this connection.

School Pupils Help Canadian Appeal For Children

OTTAWA, March 2 — (CP) — Ten-year-old Johnnie C. Nuck and his sister Mary, are raising money for a little girl named Sonya, who lives somewhere in Europe. In an office crowded with posters advertising the Canadian Appeal for Children, C.E. Pickering, chairman of the campaign committee, said today that 1,500,000 across the Dominion children are collecting funds to provide food and clothing for Europe's children.

"They've taken over the drive as their personal problem, and donations are pouring in so fast we're having difficulty getting them sorted," Pickering said. Posters picturing an empty classroom were sent to the schools, and with every contribution of $1 the picture of a European child was pasted on the poster.

To raise money, the youngsters have done everything from selling fudge, to staging shows and holding paper-drives. In a one-room school at Poltmore, Que., 12-year-old Maureen Ardell banded together her class of 30 to raise $48. From as far afield as Tyne Valley, P.E.I., to Lanvic, Sask., the "filled classrooms" have flooded into the C.A.F. headquarters.

"In this instance I believe there's something more important than the raising of money," said Mr. Pickering. "This method is cementing relations between the youth in this country and the children overseas — which may bear fruit in later years."

Gather 'round all you lovers of bold adventure. That daring bandit of Sherwood Forest, dashing Robin Hood, is on the prowl again, seeking love and loot. Bringing new, thrilling, never-before-revealed escapades of the gallant fictional rogue to the screen, Columbia's "The Prince of Thieves" opens at the Capitol Theatre today in flaming Cinecolor.

John Hill does the Lincoln green doublet and hose to star as the outlaw leader with a supporting cast which includes Patricia Morrison, Adele Jergens, Alan Mowbray, Michael Duane, H. B. Warner and Lowell Gilmore. Robin Hood's two lieutenants, Little John and Will Scarlet, are played by Walter Sande and Syd Saylor.

The screenplay of "The Prince of Thieves," based on an Alexandre Dumas novel, highlights the same type of flashing swordplay and swashbuckling derring-do found in the author's "The Three Musketeers," plus that famous French touch in the romantic scenes.

A mad search for gold high in the Mexican mountains serves as the plot in Humphrey Bogart's newest Warner Bros. drama, "Treasure of Sierra Madre," due to-day at the Prince Edward Theatre. Others important in this fast-driving action picture are: Walter Huston, Tom Holt, Bruce Bennett, Barton MacLane and Alfonso Bedoya. John Huston wrote and directed the film.

Henry Blake, producer of "Treasure of Sierra Madre," from the novel by B. Traven, has paid the author the highest possible compliment. Without a single exception the adhered strictly to the book.

John Huston, director and screenplay writer of Warner Bros' sensational film, "Treasure of Sierra Madre," also appears in the picture. The role designated in the script was dubbed simply as "white man," an American tourist in Tampico. Though the part was very small, Huston was required to do the scene over and over again for Humphrey Bogart, star of the film, who sat on the sidelines for a change.

Warner Bros' art director John Hughes, assigned to "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," travelled 8,000 miles in Mexico to find just the right locales, setting an atmosphere for the B. Traven story.

building is now under construction. It will contain 10,000 square feet for a blood depot as well as headquarters for the Manitoba Red Cross division. In Nova Scotia plans are being made for an early opening, following the provincial government grant. In New Brunswick, since the provincial government agreement, plans are in progress for a new building to house both the Blood Transfusion Service and Divisional Headquarters. "Blood transfusions and plasma proved themselves great life-savers in the war just past," said Mr. Leather. "Now, for the first time in any country, we have the opportunity to save the lives of citizens in peacetime on a free blood and blood products. Those who subscribe to the Red Cross national basis through the use of national campaign now in progress for $3,000,000 will be contributing to the success of this plan." Red Cross provides the blood and blood products to Canadian hospitals on the condition that they are given to all who need them free of any charge whatsoever.
