REDUCED TO A SKELETON

DOCTOR SAID SHE WOULD DIE

"Fruit-a-ives" Saved Her Life

RIVIERE A PIERRE, QUE., May 9th 1910
I look upon my recovery as nothing short of a miracle. I was for eleven years constantly suffering from Chronic Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Constipation. The last two years of my illness, I was confined to my bed nearly all the time. I was so thin I weighed only 90 pounds, and I vomited everything I ate. Even water would not stay on my stomach. The doctors gave me up to die as the stomach trouble produced heart weakness and I was frequently unconscious. At this time, a lady friend strongly advised me to try "Fruit-a-ives" and I had taken one box. I was much better and after three boxes, I was practically well again and had gained 20 pounds. I have taken thirteen boxes in all and now weigh 150 pounds and am absolutely well—no pain—no indigestion—no constipation—my heart is sound and complexion clear."

MURDERS EMPLOYER IN A ROW

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 3—Because his employer, Patrick Fahey, refused to give him money to purchase intoxicants, Joseph Heider seized a shotgun this afternoon at the Fahey barn in Springfield, a suburb of Stamford, and shot Fahey dead. Fahey was on a staircase in the barn when he was shot. Heider in the lift above fired down at him. The charge from the shotgun tore away the right side of Fahey's face and part of the neck.

SHOT WITH SON'S GUN.
The gun was the property of Fahey's son. He had left it in a closet in the barn. Heider was under the influence of liquor, the police say. Fahey had discharged him for being intoxicated and the police say he fired the shot in revenge.

Fahey staggered down the steps and out of the barn. Twenty feet from the staircase he fell dead. His wife and children were running from the house toward him when he died. Fahey staggered away and disappeared in the woods. The police were notified and began a search for him. At 8.30 tonight he had not been found.

Fahey was in the marble and granite business and he also dealt in real estate. He was well to do. He is survived by a wife and children.

A NE'er-DO-WELL.
One of his daughters has been teaching school in New York. Heider, a ne'er-do-well, was once a baseball player. He won fame here as a baseball catcher. For a number of years he has had no set occupation, but has drifted about from place to place doing odd jobs. He has many friends despite his careless habits. He had been in no serious difficulty before. He is of middle age and unmarried. His parents live in Stamford.

They were no witnesses, the police say, to the shooting.

Arthur Wilson, another employee of Fahey, was in the lot of the barn at the time. He says he heard the shot and saw Fahey stagger and fall. When he looked for Heider the latter had disappeared. Wilson told the police Fahey spoke sharply to Heider about his condition shortly before the shooting. Fahey had come in from Stamford in his automobile. "There has been too much drinking around here," he is quoted as saying to Heider. "It will have to stop."

THREATENED WITH DISCHARGE.
Heider then demanded his money and Fahey refused to give it. Heider said something insulting and Fahey is quoted as replying, "I'll slap your face if you ever speak like that to me again. You'll get through here tomorrow."

Heider then went up stairs and said to Wilson, "I'll settle this with Fahey right here. I'll show him he can't boss me." The next thing Wilson knew Heider had the gun in his hands and had fired down upon Fahey.

BOARD HEARS LABOR'S STORY

LONDON, Sept. 4—The Commission appointed by the Government August 22nd., to inquire into the trouble between the railroads of Great Britain and their employees, which led to the recent strike has already been in session for one week, and gives promise of being as long lived as some of its predecessors. The railroads are represented on the commission by Sir Thos. R. Ellis, Secretary of the Mine Owners Association, and Sir Chas. Beale, Vice Chancellor of the University of Birmingham, while the representatives of the men are Arthur Henderson, labor member of Parliament for the Bradford Castle Division of Durham, and John Burnett, Chief Labor Correspondent of the Board of Trade, Sir David Harret, former Under Secretary for Ireland, is Chairman of the Committee. The commission is taking the evidence of the men's representatives first and the whole week did not suffice to exhaust the flow of information sought to be imparted by only four out of a host of officials from the different unions.

There was not a good word to be said for the conciliation board scheme advocated by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Lloyd George, in 1907. The general trend of suggestions favored a board for each railroad made up of an equal number of representatives of the men and the employers, with a National Board, on which the companies and the men's unions are equally represented, for service as a kind of a Court of Appeal.

The only point upon which there was complete unanimity among the four witnesses was the demand for recognition of the trades unions as the best and only method of bringing about peace on the railroads. The natural claim of the executives was that the unions would be in a better position to endorse an award if they were concerned, and they agreed that strike pay should not be granted to the men coming out against the terms, which had been accepted by their unions.

HILL SAYS LOPT COST HIM PLACE

BERLIN, Sept. 3—David Jayns Hill, the retiring American ambassador, on the eve of his departure from Berlin has broken silence with regard to his resignation, which was accepted by President Taft last April.

The ambassador gave out a statement today intimating that there had been a deliberate intrigue to discredit him and misrepresent the reasons for his resignation. He also announced his declination of a decoration which the Emperor offered him, like his predecessors.
