NON RUSTABLE
D&A CORSET

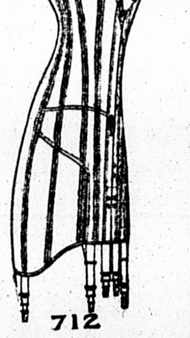
The Corset Makes The Gown

When you see a woman with that indefinable air of being absolutely well-dressed, you may be sure she is wearing a good corset.

The D & A and the La Diva Corsets are steadily displacing all competitors in the favor of Canadian women.

Our designers get their ideas fresh from Paris and these ideas are faithfully carried out by our large organization of the most skillful work-people on the continent.

There is about the D & A and the La Diva Corsets the unmistakable touch of style. They give to the figure long, sweeping lines of grace and beauty.



All good stores carry the D & A and the La Diva Corsets, in models suited to every figure and at prices ranging from $1.00 up to $5.00. The illustration shows D & A No. 712, which sells at $2.75. This is a model well suited to many figures, and has very graceful lines. Any imported corset of equal merit sells in Canada at about $4.00.

GUARDIAN WEEKLY SHAKESPEARE SERMON

(Copr. 1909 by Bradley-Garretson Co. Ltd.)

They say, best men are moulded out of faults,
And, for the most, become much more the better,
For being a little bad.
—Measure for Measure, Act. V., Sc.I.

This is a dangerous teaching. The qualifying "they say" saves it. Many hold the opinion that the sowing of wild oats is necessary in the life of every man who is to attain prominence. The difficulty is that the weeds sown will not stay in their own field. The wild oats and thistles of life spread. If a man's field is foul his neighbor's fields are in danger. The careless farmer has often been driven in despair from his farm so rank have the weeds become, so the careless liver not infrequently ends his existence to escape from the spiritual weeds he cannot pluck out of his life.

Much harm has been done by the belief that it is good for a man to learn the nature of evil from experience. The majority hold it, but the majority has ever been given to superstitions, and this is one. The passage does not necessarily give Shakespeare's opinion. It is the opinion of a woman who would try to excuse an erring husband, and even then she qualifies her words with a timid "they say." There are, it is true, striking examples of men who have plunged into sin, turning from their evil ways, crushing down the flesh and living splendid spiritual lives. Henry V., the hero king of England, is an illustration of this; John Bunyan, a profane, drunken tinker, is another,—but there is a long line of kings and tinkers, who acquired vicious habits in their youth, who have come to absolute shipwreck themselves and helped others on the way to ruin.

Every man has evil tendencies; and the sins of one are not the sins of another. Here it is the lusts of the flesh; there, depravity of the spirit. There is no righteous man, no not one! But there are thousands of men who have never given way to gross sin. They have been tempted, but they have put temptation under foot, and these are the real guides of humanity. However, there is never a thought epigrammatically stated in Shakespeare's plays but has it in an element of truth. It is true that some very excellent men have had their early years crowded with faults. Some indeed like Bunyan have sunk to the lowest depths of degradation, and yet have risen to spiritual heights seldom attained by mortals. But it is not necessary that the child should be burned in order to make it understand the nature of fire, that poisonous fruit should be given it in small doses so that it may know what to avoid.

The weakness of the statement, "best men are moulded out of faults" is that it is too sweeping. It is a case of generalising on exceptional instances. Frequently good swimmers are drowned. It is surprising that they should be and is remarked on, and not a few maintain that good swimmers, through the risks they take, are more frequently drowned than those unable to swim. This is very faulty generalisation. The death of a good swimmer receives undue prominence, whereas the death by drowning of one unable to swim is taken as a matter of course. So is it with one who has led a vicious life; when he has got control of his evil tendencies, the world wonders. The very strength that enables a man to pluck the foul weeds out of his heart gives him prominence among the workers for good, and the unthinking say that he is "much more the better" for having been "a little bad."

In the passage under study there is a timid "they say," a doubtful "for the most," but there is no timidity or uncertainty about St. Paul's words: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." If a man live viciously, abusing his body, he may expect to reap physical suffering. If he harbor hate and avarice and cruelty his soul becomes depraved, his will diseased. Make no mistake, grapes do not grow on thistles! Even with these shining examples of unrighteous men who have become righteous, it will be found that the heart was never evil. King Hal had ever noble aspirations. It only required responsibility to make him find himself; but down the ages the wild oats he sowed have been spreading. A thousand youths have been mimics of his early life, and have made his boyish pranks an excuse for their faults.

Men who have sinned and suffered for their sins strongly realise the nature of evil; having found light they are impelled to help others. Bunyan deplored the darkness in which he had lived. He knew that he had been the means of dragging others down. The tares he had sown had spread to other lives, it was his duty to undo the harm he had done. On his dead self he rose to higher things, but he was not content to stand there alone. He reached out a helping hand to every falterer. Standing on the rock of Christian endeavor he, through his own past, felt the need of helping others out of the slough of Despond. It is with such rare exceptions as Bunyan in mind that the world says, "Best men are moulded out of faults."

Only Full-fashioned Seamless Hosiery Fits Right

You should wear Pen-Angle Hosiery, and no other kind. For this is the only Canadian-made hosiery that is full-fashioned-seamless and priced moderately and guaranteed.

All three merits ought to be in your hosiery. Because no hosiery that is not SEAMLESS can be comfortable—and Pen-Angle machines are the only ones in Canada able to knit such hosiery, form-shaped to the leg and foot, instead of merely stretching the fabric into shape. Thus, though priced reasonably, Pen-Angle Hosiery holds its shape indefinitely, being reinforced wherever wear falls.

To these merits add the GUARANTEE you read here—two pairs for one if Pen-Angle Hosiery disappoints. Note next the modest price you need pay to get all this—and then remember name and trademark when next you need hosiery.
