ENGLAND IS INVADDED BY MODERN VIKINGS

MODERN VIKINGS RECEIVED "WARM" WELCOME

London's bobbies became sailors when they went to sea to protect Danish "Vikings" while they "invaded" Britain. The bobbies took to their boats when seven students at Lambeth Hospital decided no invasion could be real without resistance. Led by a young woman intern dressed as Queen Boadicea, the students painted their faces blue, as the ancient Britons, and set out to resist the Danes who had sailed a replica of an ancient Viking ship from Denmark to Britain as a goodwill gesture recalling the landing of Hengist and Horsa in 449. Brandishing moss and ash-can covers, the students were about to attack the Viking with rotten tomatoes and bags of flour when police intervened.
