Italo - Greek Relations To Be Strengthened

By G. C. Jordan
Associated Press Staff Writer
ROME, Nov. 3.—(Friday)—(AP)—An exchange of Greek-Italian notes expressing a desire to give their friendly relations a "more concrete form"
Observers said the notes showed that Italy is working to improve her non-belligerent status to strengthen her influence in southeastern Europe.
Coupled with a reliable report that Italy will sign a new Italian-Greek treaty shortly, the Greek-Italian exchange lent emphasis to the view that the two nations are yielding their position in the Balkans to any power.
These Fascists pointed out that Italy fought to prevent Communism from spreading to the Mediterranean, and was not likely to stand by while Europe is penetrated by Communism where her interests are paramount.

FOOTBALL: A well-known Charlottetown sportsman, and a former football player himself, was heard to remark during last Saturday's game, "I have been watching football for forty years, and I can tell you that the Saints had the better of the territory and failed by inches to tally scores in front of the goal." The Saints were not with them—we say luck, because the rain-soaked mud-controlled the ball was on a tie, U. N. B. did not get on a penalty kick from a difficult angle—but then luck was with them. By HOLLOWAY HORN
"Or ever has been" Mrs. Lawes said. "She wasn't a bad girl until she met him, Mr. Dollimore—she really wasn't. You wouldn't burst into tears if we got them, you know."
"You're right—I wouldn't. But even if I could give them away, I can't do it without giving Sadie away as well. Through any assistance you give us, I mean—I will promise to do my best to give Sadie a break. I can put the facts before the chief and what he says usually goes. It's no use my saying that if we get them Sadie will walk out, it's best to see that she gets a break."
"Sadie's got no chance while those devils are free to get at her."
"Let me see," he said quietly. "Come on, let me see them. They may never be yours for a very long time. She watched him in silence for a few moments before she said: "I'll take a chance on you. You're not like an ordinary policeman. You're a gentleman. I met them on board ship."
"No, I'm an ordinary policeman. Mrs. Lawes and I'm on the level with you. I mean exactly what I said. It's obvious that you are not going a kindness to your daughter by shielding the man who has led her into this jam. And why should I care about the number of Scotland Yard out of the country and star again?"
"Roller isn't his office then?" she asked.
"Roller isn't his office then?" she asked.
