ELLEN'S DIARY
If he or she may indeed tread on "Holy ground." "Yes," James agreed and his voice floated back to me from the interior of the building. "But it doesn't look any too promising to me. A pet day, I believe it is. We'll likely get a storm out of it!" I forgot his words then but recalled them later. "I was going to be busy—so busy. I'm afraid I cannot tell when the superb sun of morning disappeared behind a cloud and snow-flakes began to float lazily earthward. I know that as we sat chatting with our visitors in the coziness of the room" someone said: "Why, 'tis snowing!" and there it was festooning the lawn shrubs; the cinnamon rose, the forsythia—enjoyed Spring, and by its feathery falling, veiling the mill that sits so proudly in the depths of our valley.

And in this jaded honor we foregathered for dinner today. Mr. A. who neighbors Rob's, on the slope opposite was a guest, as he also had been at Jamie's. This is the Mr. A. who after a long and exceedingly happy married life was bereft of his wife last Spring and whose farmhouse is sadly empty now. A gentleman of the old school he is, honest and God-fearing and much respected by neighbors and other friends. A neat tidy farmer and blessed with a happy, but not thoughtless nature. I caught him smiling that James had broken off a conversation to go to a window to take stock of the weather. The snow was falling more thickly then and a menacing wind was beginning to whirl the flakes in a wild drift. . . . But they returned home safely. Mr. A. and one Mr. . . . cluding the lad who was one year old today.

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good-night.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—
For deep down at the core of every worthwhile man's heart is the love of his parents, and while he may be weak enough, for the sake of peace, to let his wife separate him from his mother and father and brothers and sisters, he never forgives her for doing it.

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband makes a decent salary and we are happily married, but lately we have been quarrelling constantly because of the high prices of everything eat up all his salary and there is nothing left for a little recreation. I feel that the Government should do something about the high price of food especially in order to promote happy marriages, as they are the mainstay of the nation.

ANSWER: What price love? And, alas, it is only too true that when a happy marriage costs money.

WOMEN'S WORK COMMITTEE
During the year a total of 4,339 articles of clothing were shipped for overseas distribution. Mrs. E. A. Foster, chairman of the Women's Work Committee reported. "These articles," said Mrs. Foster, "consisted of infants' and children's wear for boys and girls up to eight years of age. Shoes and coats were purchased nationally and this division contributed $1,000 for these items."

In addition to the work done for overseas relief the Work Committee made hospital clothing for polio patients at the Sanatorium. Provided pyjamas and other supplies for D. V. A. patients and made bandages for the use of First Aid classes.

Mrs. Foster paid special tribute to the work of Miss Gladys Holman and Mrs. Ernest Mills of the Summerside Branch and spoke of the splendid co-operation of the Women's League and other groups. Mrs. Foster concluded her report by urging groups to continue their good work.

JUNIOR RED CROSS
A total of 14,892 members were enrolled in 585 branches during 1946-47. Mr. L. W. Shaw, chairman of the Junior Red Cross stated in his report. The activities were many and varied with the Prince Edward Island Juniors raising a total of $2,308.93 for the Crippled Children's Fund in addition to providing toys, books, games, etc., which contributed greatly to the Crippled Children's Christmas.

Different meetings were held throughout the year with the Junior Red Cross Committee meeting twice to deal with matters such as creed and ritual, enrolment and organization.

The Junior Red Cross Council held eight monthly meetings during the year with the attendance at each one being excellent.

The third summer school was held from July 3rd to July 17th with 19 teachers enrolled. Courses are given in Junior Red Cross, First Aid, Nutrition, Physical Education and Swimming.

The first week in October was Junior Red Cross Week with very instructive addresses being delivered by Mr. E. H. In regard to Crippled Children's Work Mr. Shaw said that 399 children were treated during the year through the Junior Red Cross Handicapped Children's Fund. 142 were provided with glasses, 55 had tonsil and adenoid operations, 14 were given convalescent care, 142 were orthopaedic cases and there were 30 other cases, which included the provision of an artificial limb for a 14 year-old boy who had lost his leg as the result of an accident and the carrying out of several operations on other children.

Nine children suffering from bone tuberculosis were under treatment at the Provincial Sanatorium with three of them improved sufficiently to be discharged to their homes. A total of 583 treatments were given at the Physiotherapy Department under the direction of Miss Price and in addition a number of polio children who were discharged from polio treatment are now under the guidance of this department.

extremely proud of our achievements during the last few years. We have become the third largest Red Cross Society being only exceeded in size by the American and British Red Cross Societies.

Our Annual Appeal for funds which is scheduled to take place all over Canada and the United States during the month of March will be a little late in getting started in this Province due to the Canadian Appeal for Children now in progress. Nevertheless, I know that our generous people will rally to its support because they realize the worthwhile work that is being accomplished. This year's Canadian objective is $3,000,000.00 while the quota for our Province is set at $200,000.00.

Mr. Edwin C. Johnstone, who is again our Provincial Campaign Chairman, has already lined up his Committee of faithful supporters, and I am sure will meet with outstanding success.

During the Red Cross year we have lost two faithful Red Cross supporters who were members of the Executive for many years, Mr. William Moran and Mr. W. P. Tidmarsh. We also sympathize with Mr. D. A. MacKinnon and Mr. W. J. Brawders who have been bereaved in the passing of their beloved wives.

I would like to extend sincere thanks to all those who have in any way assisted in furthering the interests of the Red Cross in this Province in the past year.

The President's remarks were then followed by the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting by Major N. W. Lowther, honorary Secretary, the financial statement by Mr. D. A. MacKinnon, Treasurer, and the Commissioner's report by Miss Iphigene Arsenault, following which the tabling of the various other reports was carried out. They included, the Junior Red Cross and Crippled Children's work by Mr. L. W. Shaw; Women's Work Committee by Mrs. E. A. Foster; Campaign report by Mr. Edwin C. Johnstone; Canadian Red Cross Corps by Mrs. H. L. Palmer; Nutrition Committee by Mrs. J. Walter Jones; and the First Aid, Swimming and Water Safety report by Mrs. E. M. Bagnall. This was followed by the reading of the new slate of officers by the nominating committee headed by Mr. Alex Matheson.

The chairman then introduced the guest speaker, Lieutenant Colonel Leo F. MacDonald who made the following address:

LT. COL. LEO F. McDONALD
May I preface my remarks today by expressing my appreciation of the honor conferred by the Red Cross Society in naming me as guest speaker, at this, your Annual Meeting.

I am here as the accredited representative of the Kiwanis Club of Charlottetown and I can assure you that all members of the Club wish me to express our appreciation of the splendid service done by the P. E. I. Division of the Canadian Red Cross so much so, that, as a tangible proof of such appreciation, we as a Club hasten to all ourselves with you in the great humanitarian work in which you are engaged. I do not need to stress the fact that this practical humanitarianism was conceived in war and born of the horrors of the battlefield. The inspiration of Florence Nightingale, the vision of a Swiss Banker, Henri Dunant, started a movement which, by its appeal to the finer sensibilities, the God given urge, latent in all men to help the sick and helpless, has enlisted under its blood-red banner millions of workers and has been the means of saving countless lives as well as relieving the horror of wars, pestilence and famine in all quarters of the globe.

It is a strange commentary on the perversity of human nature that the century which has seen the elimination of time and space by the invention of radio and the aeroplane, the century that has seen the familiarization of man with man the world over, the century that has given the opportunity for "universal" thinking has also seen within one quarter of its passing the two greatest wars the world has ever seen.

Just as the battle of Solferino in 1859 gave Dunant his idea of founding such a society as was co-operate in every way possible in securing the large number of donors necessary to make available sufficient blood for all transfusion purposes to all our hospitals as well as plasma and serum for all out of town medical practitioners.

Some cynics may say that we have been deprived of our money and now are to be drained of our blood. I can assure you that no man anywhere in Canada can stand up and say he is poorer today because of donations given to such causes as this. Rather is he the richer in the feeling of satisfaction in playing his part as a citizen and in cheerfully adding his contribution to the national effort.

The coming blood Transfusion Service is to be a national project. It is a forward step in our national achievements and, we Canadians, who have walked hand in hand with our Mother Country and more recently marched shoulder to shoulder with her in step with our great ally to the South, I say we Canadians, free born, Christian people, shall back this project to the limit in knowledge that we are thereby helping to provide the necessary elements that go to make up an improved heritage, a better Canadian citizenship.

Following Colonel MacDonald's splendid address, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker, after which a very interesting dialogue was carried out between Miss Mildred Walker and Mr. Jack MacCormick, members of the Junior Red Cross Council, emphasizing their relationship with the senior members of the Society, the valued information they have gathered through their association with the Red Cross and the amount of work which has been accomplished and that which has yet to be done, with particular reference to the aid to crippled children. In closing both expressed their thanks and pride as members of the Junior Red Cross Council.

The President then called upon other distinguished guests present to say a few words in which His Excellency Bishop Boyle, Reverend Mr. J. T. Tibbott and Mr. J. E. Campbell, President of the Summerside Red Cross Branch, all spoke highly of the work being done by the Red Cross and added their appreciation and thanks as well as offering their fullest support to this worthy organization. His Worship Mayor E. Earle MacDonald, represented the City, but due to a previous engagement was called away earlier in the meeting. The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of The King.
