Bagley's papers prove him to be the highest bred stallion in Canada. He was bred by W. F. Redmond, Madison, New Jersey, U.S.A. THE PROMOTER'S WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

FREDERICK REFUSES TO CONSIDER A BUSINESS PROPOSITION

I had not asked Neil where he had spent the evening the night he came in so unlike himself from the effects of what he had been drinking. I thought I would wait until he was entirely himself, and in good humor. I was terribly afraid he had been at Blancher's. Someway when he was out now I invariably accused him in my mind of being with her. Occasionally he would drop something which showed me I was mistaken, but most of the time he was very close-mouthed as to where he spent his time; even more so than usual since his aunt came.

Neil knew she would disapprove of his actions. He had known that father and mother had worried over our extravagance, and they really were far less worldly than his aunt in many ways. She accepted the extravagance, our mode of living without question. That a nephew of hers could be dishonest she never would have believed. And she would have been shocked to know he visited another woman without me, and would have argued with him had she known it.

"I do hope, we shall have Neil all to ourselves," I remarked to aunt as we drove down town. So often he has people he knows lunch with him.

"We mustn't be selfish dear Bab. A big business man like Neil often has to do many things on account of that business."

"I guess I know that!" I answered rather pettishly. "I have had to learn that lesson perfectly. I shall be so glad when he tells he has made enough so he won't have to work so hard and can take more time with me. Why he hardly sees Robert now-days. Just a few minutes in the morning and occasional on Sunday. The boy will scarcely feel acquainted with him as he grows up unless Neil manages to give him more of his time." I had not meant to complain of Neil in any way; but when I started to talk of his absence from home I invariably said more than I intended.

"A man has to judge what is best for him to do in his business," aunt replied in a reproving manner, then changed the subject by asking about the different buildings we passed, etc. Neil was waiting for us, and to my surprise so was Mr. Frederick. He was so surprised and pleased to see him that I greeted him very cordially. I noticed aunt looked her surprise. I flushed as I recalled that I had said I hoped there would be no one with Neil; then I flushed still more as I saw her look at me. "My aunt, Mrs. Carter, Mr. Frederick. He has consented to lunch with us," Neil said in his usual off-hand manner. Then went right on talking to Mr. Frederick as we trailed after them into the dining room.

"The company is to be incorporated for five million," he said in eager tones. "It will be the biggest thing of its kind going. We are sure of several big wells, and that sells the remainder of the prospect you know And?"

"But Forbes, you haven't answered my question yet," Mr. Frederick interrupted. "Who are associated with you in this deal?"

Just then the head waiter saw us and led us to a table. For a few moments the talk was general, as Neil ordered the luncheon. Aunt asked Mr. Frederick some questions. Evidently my pleasure at seeing him had aroused some sort of suspicion in her mind. But he answered them all so frankly, was so bluntly himself that she soon "thawed out" as Neil would have said, and was chatting pleasantly with him.

The luncheon ordered, Neil at once turned to Mr. Frederick and began to talk of the wonderful profits he expected to make from this big oil deal which he was promoting.

"You haven't answered my question Forbes, who are the men associated with you? I never touch a thing unless I know who's running it. If the men are on the square, fair honest fellows, the deal is a go to be on the square also. But if crooks are behind it, I wouldn't give the snap of my finger for any proposition you can lay before me."

"Well Scott is one of them," I had noticed that Neil flushed as Frederick talked, flushed and looked a bit embarrassed.

"Scott's all right, but who are the others?" "Connor and Tearle—and myself."

The waiter just then brought our luncheon. As he laid the plates I heard Frederick say:

"You'll have to count me out Forbes. I won't go into anything with those fellows."

Tomorrow—Neil's Aunt Becomes Inquisitive.

PAULIST SUPERIOR DEAD.

Father John Hughes Passes Away in New York Hospital.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Father John J. Hughes, head of the Paulist order in this country, died in a hospital early yesterday, aged 62 years. He had been unconscious most of the time during the past two days. He suffered a nervous breakdown due to overwork about five weeks ago and was removed to the hospital. Father Hughes was for eight years superior general of the Paulist order.

WELCOME TO RETURNED HEROES

On Wednesday evening April 23rd a very enjoyable time was spent at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon, Appin Road, when a large number of friends and neighbors gathered for the purpose of welcoming their son, Quarter Master Sergeant Peter Gordon, and also the school children of the district, to welcome their former teacher, Cadet Cpt. J. S. Buchanan of Stanchel, into their midst.

The evening was pleasantly spent in games and music. Mr. James Gordon sang several fine old Scotch songs which were heartily enjoyed by all.

During the evening an address was read and a ten dollar gold piece was presented to Sergeant Gordon in behalf of his friends by Misses Glennie Cudmore and Belle Smith after which an address and a five dollar gold piece was presented to Cadet Buchanan, in behalf of his former pupils by Misses Annie Smith and Castle Gordon.

Both returned heroes in suitable words, thanked their donors for the kindness shown and also for the gifts, which would be a remembrance of so much.

A short speech was then made, in behalf of those present, by Mr. J. W. Smith, expressing a hearty welcome to the soldiers also the gratitude felt for the brave sacrifice and endurance they had made in offering themselves in the service of their country and for which we are now enjoying ample freedom.

A dainty lunch was served by the ladies and partaken of, with much enjoyment. The pleasant evening was then brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

Q. M. S. Peter Gordon, enlisted with the Nova Scotia Highlanders in Anherst about three years ago and has since served for a long period in France, where he won a medal for distinguished meritorious service on the battlefield.

Cadet Buchanan enlisted in the 98th Siege Battery in Charlottetown about four years ago, as private and served for many months in France, taking an active part in the Great Drive, during the spring of 1917 and proved himself as capable in the army as during his former profession, which he resigned to offer his services for the liberty of his country.

Both soldiers are well worthy of the welcome extended to them. Following is the address:

To Q. M. S. Peter Gordon Dear Friend Peter:—We, your old friends and neighbors have gathered this evening to extend to you our united welcome home, from your perils overseas as well, our deep feeling of gratitude and joy, that you have been spared to come back to your friends and loved ones.

We partly realize the noble sacrifice made in offering your services and your life, if need be, to defend your country, and for the cause of freedom and righteousness.

You have bravely faced hardships and danger, and in doing so, you have won peace, and freedom from the tyranny of the oppressor.

We trust that God will continue to watch over and protect you, as he has done through the great war period. We wish you, to accept this little gift as a token of our continued friendship and gratitude. May you have a bright and cheery future.

FOREIGN CREDITS HAVE AVERTED A PANIC

Speaking in the House of Commons recently Sir Thomas White, said: "If the Dominion Government today said: 'No more credits for the purchase of our wheat, flour and cheese and the products of our manufactures, you would have a panic in the country.' These words show how necessary it is to provide foreign credits. But the ability of the Dominion Government to do this is conditioned by its possession of the funds on which such credits are based. The money must come from the people of Canada in the form of loans. One of the purposes of War Savings and Thrift Stamps is to make easy the continuous flow of money into the treasury. This is why a War Savings Stamp, which is a "Baby Bond" may be had for $4 and a few cents and why Thrift Stamps may be had for 25 cents

CASTORIA For Infants and Children. Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria Always Bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Fletcher In Use For Over Thirty Years CASTORIA
