CAPITOL SUMMERSIDE

“Gallant Sons”
At the Capitol
Theatre, S’ side

Starring Jackie Cooper
and Bonita Granville.

Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville, Gene Reynolds and other clever youngsters mingle hilarious adventure with thrills and tense dramatic moments in “Gallant Sons,” dramatic story of childhood loyalties, now showing at the Capitol Theatre. It deals with high school youngsters in a new way, mingling the more serious side of youngsters approaching manhood and womanhood with the comical predicaments in which youngsters find themselves.

A group of high school students turn amateur detectives to trace a murder so that the father of one of their group may be cleared of the crime. They unearth a clue of the law overlooked, trail it down, reconstruct the crime and trick the criminal to a high school shop where he is trapped into revealing himself by seeing the murder re-enacted.

Jackie Cooper, grown to young manhood, is a dashing baseball captain, and his loyalty for Gene Reynolds is a high point in the story. He is teamed with Bonita Granville as his school sweetheart, with blonde June Preisser playing the school vamp, Leo Gorey of the Dead End Kids, is convincing as the poleman's son, and Tommy Kelly, of “Tom Sawyer” fame as scores.

Editor Virginia Gayda denied Long's statement and accused the Roosevelt administration of trying to cause “a social and political upheaval in Italy against Fascism and Germany” to gain “a voluntary defeat” of Italy.

Newspaper dispatches said Italian troops in Russia “are not their hardship in the fight against the Russians beyond Stalino in an effort to encircle Rostov on the Black Sea 100 miles to the south-east.”

The announcement of rationed sales was made at a time when Dr. Walther Funk, German economics minister, and Dr. Karl Clodius, German trade expert, were discussing “important and complex economic problems” with Italian leaders.

Observers assumed that the Axis economists were considering how to adjust trade in their re-opening of the world, and distributing available supplies for the second winter of the war.

One problem facing them is how to supply the Axis-conquered territories of Yugoslavia and Greece.

yet reached the Moscow front to touch fields into quagmires and dirt roads into bogs. Soon they will move up behind that sodden skirmish line to bind the mire with icy armor over which tanks and motor transports can move again. What will happen then is beyond calculation.

There is little or no experience by which military minds can gauge the probabilities of mechanized winter warfare. Hitler's steel-shod war machine has won its great victories elsewhere between spring

Keough-MacIsaac

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Sacred Heart Church, Borden, on October 22nd when Laura MacIsaac, daughter of James W. MacIsaac and the late Mrs. MacIsaac of Brae, Ltd. 9, was united in marriage to Daniel Keough, son of Daniel and the late Mrs. Keough of Tryon. Rev. William V. MacDonald celebrated the Nuptial Mass and performed the wedding ceremony.

The bride wore a costume of olive green with brown accessories and carried a white prayer book. She was attended by her sister, Miss E. MacIsaac of Borden who wore a navy ensemble with wine accessories.

Mr. Layton Green of Albany was best man.

During the ceremony a solo was rendered by Mrs. Regina MacAleer and a duet by Mrs. P. MacAleer and Mrs. Henry Ceretti while accompanied by Mrs. James MacAleer as organist. Following the ceremony the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to Halifax.—A and fall. It is untested under such lighting conditions as even an average Russian winter would hold.

Russian morale has absorbed stunning disasters along a 2,000-mile front and is still unshaken from Murmansk to Leningrad, to Moscow, to Rostov. To what extent the mired fields and roads on the Moscow perimeter are responsible for bogging down the Nazi attack is not yet fully clear. Perhaps the massing of fresh Red Army reserves of embattled civilians around this Russian Verdun had much to do with it.

That the attack has all but bogged down, even on the Moshaisk-Malyaroslavets sector west of the city, where the Nazis have denied the road defence front most deeply, seems certain. No new zones of action in the Moscow battle have been mentioned by either Moscow or Berlin for nearly a week except that the Russians speak of German fear attempts northeast of Orel.

It is along the rise of the Oka River and its tributaries in the Orel sector that the Russians seem to have massed sufficient force to halt the southern pincer arm of the Nazi forces which sought to encircle Moscow. And if the Nazis cannot turn the southern flank of the Moshaisk-Malyaroslavets front from Orel, it appears that only by costly frontal attack can the main road to Moscow from the west, the road of Napoleon via Smolensk-Mozhaisk, be opened.

On his return to Canada he joined the Royal Canadian Air Force, and has been with that service ever since.

At the time of the Moose River mine accident, when interest ran at fever-pitch all through Canada and the eastern United States, it was Edwards who was placed in charge of air rescue operations.

Foremost R.C.A.F. authority on discipline and ceremonial, he commanded the air force contingent sent to London for the coronation of King George VI and was responsible for R.C.A.F. arrangements in connection with the 1939 visit of the King and Queen to Canada.

He was appointed air member for personnel early in the present war, and was promoted to the rank of air vice-marshal last month.

Group Capt. Sully, who succeeds air vice-marshal Edwards as a native of Mettlic, Ont., and has been chief of the military aviation in Canada. After completing his education in Ottawa, he went to western Canada and in 1918 enlisted with the 15th Battalion for overseas service. Later he transferred to the Royal Flying Corps, serving with distinction both as observer and as pilot.

R.A.F. bombers

Wreck Naples; Start huge fires

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 22—(AP)—British bombers in their most successful attack yet on Naples, Italy, demolished many buildings and a railway station, and left fires visible 80 miles away last night, it was announced tonight.

A column of smoke reached 12,000 feet and was visible 80 miles away,” an R.A.F. Near-East communique said.

Presumably the planes flew from Mediterranean bases to the storage depot early in the raid started a number of fires which high explosives later increased to a conflagration covering 400 square yards with flames rising thousands of feet, it added.

There were no British losses.

Italians Admit Damage

ROME, Oct. 22—(AP)—Guided by the glowing crater of Vesuvius, five waves of British planes blasted Naples for five hours last night and early today and caused damage described bluntly as huge.

It was by far the longest and worst air raid of the war for the ancient capital of the kingdom of Two Sicilies, a great port city of about 1,000,000 people, Italy's third largest. There was no disclosure of the extent of damage to the port or to shipping in the sprawling harbor, which lies on the route to Axis armed Libya.

The city was blacked out when the first wave of planes came over at 9 p.m., but Vesuvius provided an unquenchable beacon.

Hundreds of bombs were dropped. Explosive bombs crashed through buildings; incendiary bombs lit fires which fire fighters got under control, military headquarters reported.

Despite great damage to dwellings, only 14 persons were officially reported killed and 27 injured in raids, according to the people, after many raids, are taking to their shelters in time.

The last raiders flew away about 2 a.m.

She's crashed with shattering explosions in the target area where Nazi long-range guns have been pumping eight-inch shells into the desert.

Not a Nazi gun spoke nor did an Axis plane appear during and after the 15-minute bombardment. Naval officers said it was highly successful.

While the operation primarily aided in relieving pressure on surrounded Allied forces at Tobruk it also was reminiscent of naval activity which last winter preceded an advance by Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's drive against the Italians from Egypt as far west as Bengasi, Libya.

British planes took off and dropped flares on the objective. As ture Liberals held 31 seats; Conservatives, the official opposition, eight; the C. C. F. seven, and Independent and Labor one each.

COALITION GOV'T

Harold Winch, C. F. leader in the last Legislature, declared in a statement that it “seems imperative and inevitable” that the Liberal and Conservative parties “should coalesce to form a government.”

He stated it is “obvious no party will have a sufficient majority to form a government and in the present crisis it would not be in the public interest were a new election held merely in the hope of breaking the stalemate.”

In an interview at Nanaimo, Labor Minister G. S. Pearson said the position of the Liberal government is such that it is obvious it cannot carry on, and think that every consideration must be given to the possibility of carrying on the government with Liberal reference to the people during the war.”

Mr. Pearson, one of the Liberals returned, spoke before leaving for Victoria to confer with Premier Pattullo and fellow cabinet members, two of whom, provincial secretary G. M. Weir and attorney general G. S. Wismer, were defeated yesterday.

At a late hour today Mr. Pattullo himself was not positive of election in Prince Rupert, which he has represented for 25 years. With only 73 votes ahead of W. G. Weaver, C. C. F. his only opponent.

As speculation over the possibility of a coalition government stirred the post-election scene, both Mr. Pattullo and R. L. Maitland, K. C., provincial Conservative leader, refused to comment themselves.

Mr. Pattullo's only announcement today was that if elected in Prince Rupert he would proceed to Ottawa this evening with Finance Minister John Hart to sign an agreement with the Dominion government regarding British Columbia's surrender of the personal income tax field for duration of the war.

Only once since party government was introduced in British Columbia in 1903 has a coalition government been attempted and it never reached actual form. In 1933 Hon. S. F. Tomlin, then Conservative premier, asked the Liberals to form a government under his leadership, but they refused.

If Premier Pattullo makes a similar offer to Mr. Maitland and it is felt should there arise any joint action in the Legislature by Conservatives and C. C. F. members, results from remote polling divisions continued to trickle in today, and even in many urban ridings the vote was not completely decided.
