

MARCH COUGHS

They differ little, materially, from other coughs, but coming as they do at a time when one's vitality is low they are really more serious. Cure the cough at once and avoid disagreeable consequences.

Jamieson's White Pine and Tar

Will quickly effect a cure. It is particularly soothing and healing to the inflamed bronchial tubes and speedily restores them to normal conditions.

When that is done there is nothing to make you cough—the cause is removed.

MUSIC BY WIRELESS
A NEW INVENTION
A young California inventor has designed an apparatus whereby selections played on a phonograph have been transmitted to several neighboring homes which are equipped with special receiving instruments have been installed. In some instances the instruments in the dining room, and by this arrangement the neighbors have been entertained at meal-time. A wireless-telephone apparatus upon which the inventor has been working several years is used at his central station. A phonograph, in which the horn is an integral part of the body of the instrument, is used in producing the selections. The slats are removed from the mouth of the horn and within it are placed two ordinary telephone transmitters, from which the sounds are carried by wires to the wireless telephone outfit, which, after serving as an amplifier, sends the waves through a cable to the aerial on the roof, whence they are discharged into the air.

The waves are caught by the various receiving stations and conveyed by wires to receivers, each of which is fitted with a small megaphone. In general instances, head appliances with a pair of receivers were used. In others a single megaphone was sufficient for a group of persons. Pictures of the apparatus are published in the March Popular Mechanics Magazine.

BIG RUSH FOR NEW DICTIONARY EXPECTED

Busy Workers Hold Coupons For Presentation on Half-Holiday.

Extraordinary efforts have been made for a big rush to get copies of The New Universities Dictionary, the readers exclusively. Thousands beyond all expectations were distributed during the week.

"When we set our thoughts down in written form," says Professor Forrest M. Lunt, M. A., instructor of English in Horace Mann School Teachers' Colleges, Columbia University: "we are without the aids of voice and manner to make clear what we are trying to say. Our thoughts must be understood because the relations which exist between the various parts of our sentences are clear. If the relations are not clear, the thoughts we are trying to express will not be understood." This is Professor Lunt's introduction to The New Universities Dictionary to his article on "Practical Syntax," which shows readers of this new dictionary how to build correct sentences.

"Good usage, common practice, society whatever you will—has decided what is good form, what is proper, in this field of syntax, just as it has in morals, etiquette or fashions," continues Professor Lunt, "therefore the man or woman who has occasion to set his thoughts down in writing should observe the common practice, the universally understood rules which govern the relationship of words. If he fails to do this, or if he attempts to make his own rules, he will be considered without the pale of cultured, educated people. From this it will be seen that the ability to construct sentences properly is hardly less important than the power to speak."
