

NO OLD STOCK AT THE "TOGGERY"

But we'll be sporty and give discounts on Dollar Day too so you can be absolutely sure that anything you buy is a real bargain.

Men's Summer Shirts
$1.29

Regular $1.75 to $2.50 value in latest patterns for Dollar Day only $1.29.

Men's Summer Hose

Regular 50c and 75c value in cashmere, silk lisle and cotton 39c.

10 PER CENT OFF
ALL CLOTHING

10 PER CENT OFF
ALL TWEED RAINCOATS

10 Per Cent Off
All Hats and Caps

10 Per Cent Off
All Neckwear

Splendid Range of Men's Neckwear bought for Dollar Day from $1.00 to $2.00 for 79c

You Practice Real Economy Buying Here Any Time

Notice to the Lobsters Packers & Fishermen

The time for landing lobsters expires the 25th day of June 1919. All interested will guide themselves accordingly.

S. T. GALLANT
Inspector of Fisheries

Illustrated Lecture

"The Trail of the Ninety Eighth"
AS TOLD BY

Major J. Parker Hooper, M.C.

with the aid of one hundred and fifty slides, taken during two-and-a-half years in France, Belgium and Germany, and said to be the best unofficial collection taken during the war.

Vernon, June 24th.
Vernon River, June 25th.
Murray River, June 26th.
Murray Harbor, June 27th.
ADMISSION 25 CENTS.

Auction Sale of Valuable Property CHARLOTTETOWN

I am instructed by Mrs. R.B. Huestis to sell by public auction on Thursday, July 3rd commencing at 12 o'clock noon, that valuable business stand known as the Dutton property, situated on Lower Queen Street, directly opposite Carvell Bros., comprising 3 stores and 3 dwellings. This is a grand chance to secure a business stand in the business section of the town.

BENJ. CARTER,
Auctioneer.

MAIL CONTRACT

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Postmaster General, will be received at Ottawa until noon, on Friday, the 1st August, 1919 for the conveyance of His Majesty's Mails, on a proposed Contract for four years six times per week over Rural Mail route No 1 from Union Road P. E. Island from the Postmaster General's pleasure.

The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPS

PLANNING A NEW LIFE

CHAPTER CXXIV.

Neil had kept the faith. Never had I been so proud of my husband, never loved him so dearly as when he had sacrificed the larger opportunity because he thought it not right to leave the man who had befriended him, but who would have still been his friend had he done so. The last vestige of working for his own selfish aggrandizement had disappeared. He was a man to be proud of, to love.

"Why didn't you tell me of Chase's offer?" I asked later in the evening. "Because I had decided not to accept it, and discussion was useless." "But Neil it shows you are—that you have reinstated yourself, doesn't it dear?" I seldom mentioned that time of trouble.

"Yes, Bab. If only I could forget it myself. I feel so small so mean when I think that I once put my ambition before family, friends, even honesty. I have tried to make recompense, if I live long enough I may cease to think of that time with such poignant regrets. I hope so."

"He hath done what he could," I quoted. "Do you remember that passage in the Bible. No one could do more than you have. No more could be required. Let us not talk about it again Neil. Let us begin now after the war to live a new life. So many have been changed by what has happened dear; many more than we imagine will begin to count their real living from the time we demobilized. We will do so too. We have each other, our health, our darling boy who is growing more manly every day and five thousand a year. Why Neil we have so much for which to be thankful that we should be ashamed to allow a single regret to enter our minds now that we have really done all humanly possible to make things right, devoted ourselves in every way to make good. Try and be happy now dear—for my sake, and for Robert."

"I will, Bab! You have the right idea. Powers has been mighty nice to me lately, and has asked after you every time. I have seen him. He's the kind who has no use for the man who isn't straight, but who is willing to help a man who tries to do right I guess. I know you felt awfully hurt at one time because they dropped us. I imagine they would not do it now."

"No, I don't think they would. But I have no social aspirations. Neil, not of the kind I used to have. A few friends, as father said, and those in our own walk of life, those right here where we live, are all I crave now. What I do want is to own a home. Suppose we save enough to buy a lot and then as soon as we can build a nice little home of our own, and furnish it. That would be heaven."

ished by the war, he still has enough And my dear Mrs. Forbes I love him I can see you smile. I know you must think of me as the most mercenary creature alive. I used to be. But an one could go through this war and not lose something of selfishness.

"I often think of you, of your husband. He was one of the cleverest men I ever have known. And you—I haven't words to say what I think of you. He will some day find a chance to come into his own, again, then you will have your reward. I saw a man from New York the other day who told me of what he did through the war, how he worked, and that he had paid his debts in full. I have always felt guilty because of the part I played (for money) although I never knew that stock was sold without investigating the properties. I tell you this because I want you to think as well of me as you can.

"Remember me to your dear husband, kiss that darling big boy of yours for me. I sign myself for the last time, Blanche Orton."

Tomorrow—A Visit from Town Friends.

Ask for Minard's and take no other

For polishing lamp-chimneys and table-glassware use the better parts of cast-off bath towels.

Empty tin burnt-match receptacles into paper bags and use the match sticks for kindling fire.

Apply peroxide of hydrogen to a cut or scratch by means of a medicine dropper and leucine will be wasted.

Here You Find the Proof

Of What People Have Been Telling You About Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

There can be no question that everybody is in need of some restorative treatment at this season of the year.

Particularly if your blood has a tendency to be thin and watery, the changing season is most trying on you and you suffer from tired feelings, lack of energy, failure of the digestive system and general depression of the feelings.

If you could only realize what a complete change you would experience with the use of a few boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you would not be long in making a trial of this treatment.

The best proof we can offer you is in such letters as the following: There is no reason in this world why you would not obtain just as much benefit from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as has the writer of this letter if your system is in a similar condition.

Prince of Wales a General Favorite

LONDON, June 24.—In view of the approaching visit of the Prince of Wales to America the people on the other side of the Atlantic may be interested to learn in advance something more concerning the career and personal traits of the young heir to the British throne, who on Tuesday next will celebrate his 25th birthday.

Born at White Lodge, Richmond Park, on June 23, 1894 his Royal Highness was baptized there some three weeks later as Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, thus combining the names of his father, his grandfather, and his great-grandfather with those of the patron saints of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales.

On the succession of his father to the throne in 1910, the young Prince succeeded to the Dukedom of Cornwall and to the Scottish titles of Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles, and Great Steward of Scotland, and a few weeks later he was created Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester.

From babyhood Prince Edward has been popular. Yet admiration does not seem to have spoiled him at all. He is still a frank, simple English youth with a bright smile, a pleasant manner and an infectious laugh. Four years and more of almost continuous service in the war brought about considerable change in his Royal Highness, a change highly beneficial from the viewpoint of physical development.

As is generally known, Prince Edward was trained for a naval career, as was his father before him. When the time came for him to go to school it was his ardent wish to become a naval cadet, so to Osborne he went and when his training there was completed he was removed to the training ship Britannia at Dartmouth.

During these years he devoted himself to all the details of his naval training with earnestness and enthusiasm. Neither at the naval school nor at Oxford, where he matriculated in 1912 did the Prince distinguish himself as a student. If he were an ordinary lad he would have been called backward, except in the few branches of study he liked. But at school and university alike His Royal Highness was extremely popular, and one must be more than a prince to be a favorite at an English school. It is necessary to be an all round expert at games and sports, a generous, open handed good fellow, with plenty of courage and a love of fair play.

Prince Edward has always been a sportsman. He could ride his pony when he was five and on his seventeenth birthday King Edward gave him a bicycle. Swimming lessons at the Bath Club came next, and a little later cricket, football and boxing. At school he distinguished himself particularly as a cross-country runner.

A story is told of Prince Edward's early days at Osborne which seems to prove that he is not without commercial instincts. He had written home to his mother for extra pocket money, which she refused to send, and so he wrote a long letter to his grandmother begging her to help him out. Queen Alexandra wrote a long letter reproving him for his extravagance.

SAVE CLOVER SEED

No Old Stocks—High Prices Assured

Both the American and Canadian clover seed trade have practically no reserve stocks of clover seeds being carried over for next season. On the Toledo market, red clover seed for autumn delivery advanced during the last few weeks in May from $19.90 per bushel to $21.80.

This situation indicates that special attention should be given to all clover seed crops in Eastern Canada. Most of our clover seeds are usually produced in Western Ontario, but prospects are very poor there this season as the new clover stand was badly damaged by the dry period of last summer.

In districts with good clover crops, early cutting of the red clover for hay will give the best chance for a seed crop. Weeds producing seeds which are different of cleaning from the threshed clover seeds should be rogued from the standing seed crops.

Civilians Buy Army Raincoats

FROM GOVERNMENT CONTRACTORS AT COST

THE PEERLESS CO., Dept. 1088, 80 Brantford Place, Newark, N. J., will ship, postpaid, insured, to you direct on receipt of $8.00

The one type of Raincoat both waterproof and sanitary. The result of two years' experimentation by army experts. Made strictly to government specifications of government inspected cloth, guaranteed durable and fast color. No wet can get through—hermetically cemented, storm-proof collar with storm-proof tab, interfitting fly front, adjustable fastenings around wrists, side pockets with additional slit to reach inside clothing without opening coat. Back is sanitary ventilated, concealed by duplex yoke, giving escape effect. Because the war ended unexpectedly and military requirements ceased, civilians may buy these government approved raincoats, at Factory cost $8.00

OFFICERS' DOUBLE BREASTED MODELS with inverted pleat down back; belt all around with buckle; convertible collar; outside patch pockets with flaps; buckled wrist fastenings. Retailing during the war for $25 to $30. Delivered free to your door on receipt of $12.00

Peerless Raincoats are the genuine Government model. WHEN ORDERING EITHER COAT, STATE CHEST MEASUREMENT. If not satisfied, return coat and money will be refunded.

$ DOLLAR DAY $

Will give you bargains in merchandise.

How about your investments for Dollar Days to come?

You owe it to Canada and to the future of your children to loan your government every cent you can save.

Buy War Savings Stamps

They yield 5 per cent Interest

All information gladly given out by the committee.

On sale at Post Offices, Banks.

National War Savings Committee
140 Richmond Street