the stand, the Commissioner saying, "You come back here Monday sober and prepared to answer questions, and if you are not here at ten o'clock you will get no fees."

Lloyd had denied ever fishing lobsters illegally and said he had no idea if his two sons, characterized as poachers by other witnesses, had fished illegally or not, although the two lived with him in the same house.

When Mr. Justice LeBlanc remarked, "I can say that I do not put much faith or belief in your evidence," Lloyd replied: "I don't care whether you do or not. You can't bully me like you did that young fellow who just gave evidence."

He was referring to Stewart Wilson, another Escuminac man, who said during his examination, "I have told on myself, but I won't tell on anybody else." Threatened with imprisonment for contempt, he finally gave the names of nine alleged illegal lobsters fishermen.

J. H. Kerr, manager of the Chockfish factory of W. S. Loggie and Co. Ltd., corroborated a statement by Mr. Loggie that two-thirds of lobsters brought to the canning factory were illegally caught.

Fred Savoie declared that illegally caught lobsters had never been packed in his factory at Escuminac and that he had never bought such lobsters.

With some 20 witnesses remaining to be called at the sittings here, the inquiry was adjourned until tomorrow.

LEADS WAY

of intense political activity with meetings of cabinet ministers.

It was taken spontaneouly as evidnce of Britain's sincere desire for an international agreement to end indirect intervention in Spain.

Britain tonight also addressed new instructions to His Majesty's diplomatic representatives at Paris Rome, Berlin, Lisbon and Moscow. These constitute the British response to replies received from the five capitals on Britain's Christmas eve appeal to check the movement of volunteers to Spain.

The British response refers to a new plan for effective control of indirect intervention which at present is being considered by the two opposing parties in Spain.

"It appears to His Majesty's Government," the British response proceeds, "that this scheme could without difficulty be extended to cover the arival in Spain of volunteers and military personnel as well as war material. Such an extension, indeed, might render the scheme more acceptable to both parties in Spain than it may be in its present limited form."

MAKE ENQUIRY

The Government invites France, Italy, Germany, Portugal and the Soviet Union to indicate whether they have in mind any other methods of control in addition to those envisaged in the plan already prepared.

His Majesty's Government, the note says "are ready to consider with the utmost secrecy any suggestion which may be put forward to this end. They would also be glad to consider any detailed proposal for control of other forms of indirect intervention which would be ready for early discussion by (the non-intervention) committee of any such proposals submitted to it."

Britain further informs the five governments of the steps she took tonight to ban volunteers for Spain.

Volunteers from the United Kingdom now fighting in Spain are officially estimated at between 500 and 1,000. There are British volunteers on both sides of the Spanish war.

Announcement that the Foreign Enlistment Act is applicable to the Spanish civil war follows a study of the situation by the Government's legal experts. The act forbids enlistment in the armed forces of any state at war with a state friendly to Britain.

The point before the experts was whether this was applicable to the Spanish civil war. They apparently decided it was applicable.

MAY WITHDRAW ACCEPTANCE

The Spanish (Valencia) Government sent a strongly worded note to Britain which indicates that its acceptance in principle of a suggestion that the Spanish frontiers should be supervised may be withdrawn.

It accused Germany and Italy of continued violation of the Non-Intervention Agreement and suggests that the proposed supervision runs the risk of converting itself in practice into another form of interventon in favor of the insurgents.

At Moscow the semi-official newspaper Izvestia strongly denounces the "indecision and cowardice" of the western powers which, according to Izvestia, are encouraging Fascist Germany to ever fresh provocations.

The Paris press clamors loudly against the "German menace in Africa." Germany flatly denies any German troops are either in Spain or in Spanish Morocco.

Make Terms With Portugal

BERLIN, Jan. 10—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler returned from his Berchtesgaden estate today for a belated New Year's diplomatic reception to find another British note urging him to take immediate steps to halt the flow of volunteers to Spain.

The British Embassy received instructions from Foreign Secretary Eden today and said the new note will be in Hitler's hands tomorrow before the diplomatic corps assembles at noon at Hindenburg Palace.

It was disclosed that Germany, which has courted Portuguese friendship simultaneously with her drive for colonies, has succeeded in getting Portugal to forego the right of German property acquired through the Treaty of Versailles and the Hague convention of Sept. 1, 1929.

Portugal by a treaty signed June 29, 1936, effective last Dec. 18, agreed to turn back to Germany certain properties taken over during the Great War, both in Portugal and Portuguese colonies, and to reestablish fully the rights and interests of German citizens and companies.

Authoritative quarters predicted a cool reception for the new note, which announced Britain already has declared a ban on volunteers, because Hitler's answer to last week's Franco-British note laid down specific conditions to acceptance—that all other nations cooperate, and that effective means be devised to enforce a volunteer ban.

(The German conditions were:

(1. That other nations accept the proposals to ban the flow of volunteers to Spain;

(2. That efforts be made to solve other problems connected with indirect forms of intervention in Spain;

(3. That there be agreement by all interested powers to effective supervision of "on the spot" measures to stop such intervention.)

These conditions still stand, a spokesman for Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German Ambassador to London, said.

He added: "We're ready to discuss any combination that takes Reichfuehrer Hitler's three conditions as a starting point."

Officials indicated they felt some nations, especially Russia and France, might find it difficult to fulfill Hitler's program.

They said they doubted if Hitler would accept the new British proposal after once having stated he would consent to limitation only after all countries had agreed on effective control, eliminating all direct and indirect aid to Spain.

The press denounced as "foreign lies" the reported existence of German troops in Spanish Morocco.

Rift Between Hitler And Aides Seen

PARIS, Jan. 10—(CP)—Havas News Agency, in a despatch from Berlin, stated Saturday it had been confirmed there that Reich chancellor Hitler, confronted with the resignation of his chief admiral and threatened resignation of his army Chief-of-Staff, "has not yet dared to send an army expeditionary force to the aid of General Francisco Franco."

But blackshirted Nazis, ultra-powerful weapons and war technicians have been rushed to Spain because Hitler demands an insurgent victory at any cost", the despatch added.

"A stormy clash involving Nazi leaders—at one time rumored to have reached the stage of an imminent 'blood purge'—led to the present situation.

"As long ago as Dec. 21 the offical German news bureau announced the retirement of Admiral Richard Foerster, commanding the Reich fleet. The Navy ministry announced his retirement again Dec. 31. At that time it was reported Admiral Foerster had refused to engage his fleet in operations in Spanish waters which he considered would lead to a European war.

"Admiral Rolf Carls immediately was appointed to succeed Foerster. He at once carried out the now historic operations against Spanish Loyalist ships in the Atlantic and Mediterranean.

"Shortly before Christmas General Wilhelm Faupel, Reich envoy to the Franco Government, went to see Hitler at Berchtesgaden to demand 60,000 men for the rebel generalissimo.

"Hitler relayed the appeal to his army. Immediately Chief of Staff Werner von Fritsch advised that neither Germany nor its army could yet stand operations which would lead to a European war.

"He was said to have gone so far as to threaten resignation if the 60,000 army regulars were sent to Spain, and was quoted as having remarked openly in Berlin that 'a war begun with bread cards is already lost' referring to Germany's straitened economic situation.

"Defence Minister Werner Von Blomberg joined the angry discussions, giving full support to his Chief of Staff. Hitler was said to have considered replacing Von Fritsch. A crisis neared, with rumors spreading that the army would forcibly disarm the blackshirt militia in a showdown move on the Fuehrer's supreme authority.

"But Hitler dared not thwart his army chiefs on the issue, and the crisis was averted."

GERMAN CONTRIBUTION

BERLIN, Jan. 10—(AP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, hoping for colonies and raw materials, has dispatched 15,000 to 25,00 volunteers to aid Spanish Fascists and spent $180,000,000 on the civil war, private advices said tonight.

There were official denials of German assistance to Fascist Gen. Francisco Franco, and Berlin spokesmen declared no knowledge on reported military and commercial activity in Spanish Morocco. But private German sources declared Hitler had advised Franco to hasten and capture Madrid by Jan. 15, and that his objectives in the war were return of war-lost colonies, mining concessions in Spain or its possessions, and economic aid from other European powers.

About 10,000 of the German volunteers were said to be regular Reich soldiers, the rest labor and youth organizers, and miners dispatched to work in mines in Morocco and Spain.

denied last night German "troops" were enroute to Morocco but did not mention volunteers.)

Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, Francois De Tessan, speaking at a Radical Socialist Congress in Belfort, issued a new warning of French determination to act against any invasion of the African territory.

Even an indirect attack against French interests would be met with "firm measures," De Tessan said.

"France will permit no attempt against its communications or against the interests which it protects."

Naval Minister Alphonse Gasnier-Du Parc and Vice-Admiral Jean Darlan, chief of the Navy General Staff, arrived at Algiers aboard the cruiser Colbert to inspect coastal defences, and the French Atlantic Fleet was in Moroccan waters, ostensibly engaging in routine manoeuvres.

Italian View

ROME, Jan. 10—Italy is opposed equally to either German or Russian domination of Spain, Morocco or the Mediterranean, the political review Il Merlo declared today in a front-page editorial.

"German penetration in Spain and Morocco is a problem which arose clamorously before the Great War," the Review said.

"But Germany today, although re-armed, is not in a condition to impose her solution; certainly the accord with Italy to consult each other on European problems reinforces her diplomatically but this does not mean that Italy, if she doesn't want the Slav, could desire the German in the Latin sea."

Observers here regarded the article of great significance and timed at a strategic moment, because of Italo-German cooperation thus far with regard to Spain and current reports of German aspirations in Spanish Morocco.

"Although Germany has placed the problem of colonies on the carpet too noisily," Il Merlo continued, "although it is true that restitution of one or two colonies would not at all solve the very grave German crisis, it is just as true that a nation of 65,000,000 inhabitants cannot be left to manufacture cannon as the sole remedy against unemployment provoked by closing of almost all former outlets for her manufacturers."

As to a Soviet Republic in Spain the paper continued:

"If the question were regarded only as a danger of Bolshevik contagion, it would be worth while to let the experiment be tried out in Spain.

"It would be destined to the most rapid and demonstrative failure of all the advantages of anti-Bolshevist propaganda. But the evil is that the Soviet Republic would be Spanish only in name, and would, in fact, be a branch of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics dominated by the Government of Moscow.

Il Merlo predicted the Spanish crisis will not lead to general war, pointing out that despite his anti-Bolshevist crusade Chancellor Hitler has renewed for another year a commercial treaty with Russia.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES

a solo by Mrs. Roy Cudmore, "Spirit Divine", Hamblin, Mrs. V. L. Dingwell presiding at the organ.

The evening service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. S. C. Cooper. The subject was "The Certainty and Joy of the Resurrection" and the text was 1 Cor. 15, 20, "Now is Christ risen from the dead."

Paul was thinking of the dismal consequences in the earlier part of the chapter and of the result to Christ and men if they had believed a false gospel.

The preachers of every age had proclaimed the risen Christ throughout the world. Paul was thinking of his own preaching and if the body of Christ was still in the Syrian grave then his assaults upon the gates of Empires was fruitless.

The apostle said Now is Christ risen. Can we as reasonable men and women believe in this 20th century in the resurrection. The peoples of Europe, India, Africa and China are as we are today worshipping the risen Christ.

Jesus Christ is the victor who overcame and is now sitting upon the throne. A risen Christ completes the gospel, a dead Christ annihilates. The fact that Christ is risen gives the power to Christianity and joy to human hearts.

ST. PAUL'S ANGLICAN CHURCH

The Church Services at St. Paul's yesterday began with the celebration of Holy Communion at 8.30, followed by Morning Prayer at 11.00. Speaking to the children, the Rector explained the meaning of the word Epiphany—"To show forth, or to manifest". This, he said, means the showing forth of Jesus to all the world, and boys and girls can show forth Jesus by their lives and actions. Continuing, the speaker addressed the adult congregation, taking as his subject a parallel record of the boyhood of Jesus and the attending circumstances surrounding the incident as recorded in the Gospels. Analysing the accounts, he said, that much is unknown of all the circumstances of his earlier life; but it is known that Jesus came to our world and made his abode among the poor. As a boy he learned his lessons from the Synagogue, from the carpenter's shop and from God's great out of doors, but the record of the years is contained in two sentence statements by St. Luke and by the story of His visit to Jerusalem at twelve years. In imagination we can clothe the bare parts there stated with much that serves to make them intelligible.

Jesus consecrated the home life by living in a home, and made that home the most talked of, thought of home in the whole world. Jesus in every home, in every life, will consecrate.

Jesus as a boy and man learned life's lessons one at a time; laying aside for the time being the divine side of His nature. St. Paul puts it, that He emptied Himself and made Himself of no reputation. In order to redeem man, it was necessary for Him to be the perfect man.

Jesus learned in those years of private life how to bear responsibility. Traditionally He became the provider for the home. All these were but preparations for the greater responsibility of the purpose for which He came. As Maunder puts it delightfully in his Cantata "Bethlehem" "Upon His life was the shadow of the cross". "The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost—to give His life a ransom for many." And the result is found in His triumphant utterance, "I am come that ye might have life."

At the evening service, the Rector based his sermon on the first chapter of the Colossians discovering there St. Paul's ambition for his churches—that ye might be filled with the knowledge of His will; that ye might walk worthy; that our christian life should be fruitful, and that we should be endowed with divine power to meet the demands of an unsympathetic world.

At the morning service the choir sang "Across the Desert" from Maunder's Bethlehem; and in the evening "Send out Thy Light" by Gounod, both being rendered by a full choir.

ST. DUNSTAN'S BASILICA

Yesterday was Holy Name Sunday at St. Dunstan's Basilica, also the Feast of the Holy Family.

The masses were at the usual hours. Solemn high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Sullivan of St. Dunstan's Basilica.

The preacher at all masses was Rev. Vincent Morrison, who has recently returned from the mission field in China. Father Morrison told the congregation that the province of Lishui in China had been assigned to the Canadian Mission Band of Scarboro Bluffs, Ont., in 1925.

He told of the success which they had attained since that time.

Father Morrison in his sermon briefly outlined the life of the missionary and the many obstacles and hardships encountered bringing the gospel of Christ to those pagan people. But the missionary, Father Morrison said, also experienced much joy and consolation in his work. In conclusion Father Morrison exhorted the congregation to appreciate their great gift of faith and to pray for the success of his work in that far-off mission field.

In the evening Vespers were chanted and Benediction of the Blesesd Sacrament given by Rev. Father McCardle.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

The Rev. H. L. Denton, B. D., preached at the morning service, the second of a series of sermons on "What can we believe about God?" Taking as the text for the morning the eternal question expressed in the book of Job, 11, 17, "Canst thou by searching find out God?" the subject of the morning was "How may we know God?" It would seem so vitally important that we who need so much from a heavenly Father, of power, sympathy, grace, love should by all means attain to a knowledge of Him. The answer of a great modern theologian, Karl Barth is that God, so great, so transcendent, so beyond the capacities of man, can only be known dimly through revelation. The pantheist says yes, God is in you, in all things, the driving power of the universe and indeed is the universe, "I caught the glory of His robe, where the last fires of sunset glowed." But farther, truer than all this we have the suggestion of a very early writer of God walking in a garden in search of man, as so through all ages, in the words of prophet and psalmist, and the Divine Son, we have the picture of God seeking man.

True it may be that we with our limitation may not know God in His fulness, but through prayer the knowledge of His Word, through that still small voice, that quiet presence, and, unique and magnificent, through Jesus Christ our Lord we may know, and with this possibility we have the responsibility "he that hath seen me hath seen the Father."

The morning anthem, in harmony with the spirit of the service was Bennett's "God is a Spirit."

The sermon of the evening, "The Can and the Candle" was a vividly illustrated setting forth of the difference between the light that is burning and shining and the light that is merely reflected.

Stainer's "Love Divine" was beautifully rendered as a duet by Miss Vera H. Malcolm Campbell, Mus. Bac., and Mr. R. D. Quigley, with Miss Helen Callbeck at the organ.

It was intimated that the annual congregational business meeting would be held on Wednesday evening at 7.30.

CHURCH OF THE MOST HOLY REDEEMER

At the church of the Most Holy Redeemer yesterday Holy Name mass was celebrated at 7.30 by Rev. Father McKenna. Members of the Holy Name Society received Holy Communion in a body.
