Classifications, Hal. Palmer, Rotary Education; Roy Quigley, Music; Harry Rogers, Programme, Boys' Work, Leslie Stacey. The report on Rural-Urban, submitted by G. Shelton Sharp was particularly gratifying as it indicated a very pleasing and satisfactory understanding and contact between our farmer friends and the city interests as represented by the Rotary Club. Several meetings of the club were held during the year at which farmers were present and took a lively interest in the programme offered in their behalf. Crippled Children and boys' work continue to be the major activity of the club and interesting details were presented with respect to the work done in this connection: The Treasurer, Roy McLure, was able to report a healthy condition, notwithstanding the various calls made for deserving objects during the year. A telegram of regret was read from President Boulter at not being present and his pleasure at the strong representation attending the Boston Convention where Reuben MacDonald, J. A. Clark, and G. J. Tweedy are supporting him in representing the Charlottetown club. Pleasure was expressed at the encouraging word just received indicating the steady improvement of Alf. Pickard and G. F. Hutcheson, both of whom are under treatment in a Montreal hospital. The visitors present were Mr. E. S. Channell, of Saskatoon and Mr. R. E. Mundell of Lanigan, Sask, both of whom were introduced by Rotarian R. E. Mutch.

Relatives and friends of Mr. Levi Hartling, will regret to learn of his serious illness at the home of his daughter, Mrs. L. A. Hynes, 205 Grafton St. Charlottetown. (Halifax Papers Please Copy).

the guest of honour at the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Prince Edward Island Masons on Wednesday at Summerside, as he is Senior Warden of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Scotland. He will be in the Province several days, and will return to the mainland on the Hochelaga enroute to Sydney. With reference to his impressions of Prince Edward Island Sir Newton says: "I was struck most by the substantial character of the farm buildings, and by the fine class of livestock which I saw."

He expressed the opinion that the dairy industry should be one of prime importance in this province which was strikingly like Denmark in many respects.

Sir Newton stated that he had been interested in the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation for twelve or thirteen years, and last year came to this country to take over the presidency. He expected that the steel plant would be kept busy till the end of the year, as 50,000 tons of rails had been ordered by the Canadian National Railway. A tender for the rolling of 3500 tons of rails for South Africa had recently been accepted.

"Naturally the exchange position has reacted against the export business. The closer approach of Canadian currency to sterling should be of some benefit in connection with the export trade. The coal business will benefit by the improved exchange position, and thanks to assistance rendered by the Federal Government by way of subventions we have been able to reach customers further west than in the past."

"We send quite a lot of iron from Belle Isle in Newfoundland to Europe, and while in Newfoundland a few months ago, I noticed signs of increased production in the steel industry, a good indication of improved general conditions."

Sir Newton Moore, who is by profession a surveyor and civil engineer, was born at Bunbury, Western Australia, in 1870. Entering Australian politics as a member of Parliament for his native constituency, his ability brought him rapidly to the front. In 1903 he became Premier of Western Australia, which position he occupied until 1910, and in addition held successively during that time the portfolios of Justice, Treasurer, Minister for Lands, and Minister for Agriculture. From 1911 to 1918 he was Agent-General for Western Australia in London. He held many important military posts, and from 1915 to 1918 was General Officer Commanding the Australian Imperial Force in the United Kingdom. Entering British politics as member of the House of Commons for St. George's, Hanover Square, in 1918, Sir Newton was elected again in December of the same year for North Islington. He was Chairman of the Standing Orders Committee in the House of Commons, 1922-23, and again from 1924 to 1928. Since 1924 he has represented the Conservative constituency of Richmond. He is an ex-President of the Institution of Surveyors of Western Australia; a Past Provincial Grand Master of Freemasons, W. A., and Past Grand Warden of Scotland.

on bad terms with the witness, Weeks. He further stated that he had met Weeks on the night in question, that Weeks was drunk at the time, and asked for liquor, and that he told Weeks he was going home.

Mr. E. A. Foster testified that his store had been broken into, and identified certain goods stolen from the store.

Sergeant Doyle gave evidence of recovering certain goods belonging to Mr. Foster's drug store. He had found them underneath a garage on Great George St. He had found the goods as a result of a search after receiving information from Weeks.

Mr. M. A. Farmer addressed the Jury for the Crown, and Mr. R. R. Bell on behalf of the accused.

Mr. Justice Arsenault then gave his address. The evidence, he stated, was that Weeks was an accomplice, one who took part in a crime with another. The law was strict with regard to an accomplice. There should be corroborative evidence as to the prisoner's guilt, that was evidence apart from that shown by the other party. For example if alcohol or tobacco were found in the prisoner's possession or if some person saw the two men leaving the place together, such evidence would be corroborative evidence. The law said that it was a dangerous thing to convict a man on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice, although the Jury might convict. The Jury would be justified in convicting notwithstanding corroborative evidence, if it believed that the story which Weeks told were true. The law compelled the presiding Judge to give the warning as regards corroborative evidence and if after the warning the jury convicted, the conviction would stand. The prisoner denied the matter altogether, said that the only contact he had had was that they had met on the street, and had exchanged words. The prisoner said that they were bad friends. The prisoner had given no corroborative evidence as to where he had been at the time of the break and shortly afterwards. He had said that he had gone home and that he had spoken to his mother. There had been a breaking in. Weeks had been convicted for the robbery, and had said that the prisoner was with him at the time of the break. The law required corroborative evidence and in this case there was no corroborative evidence of the prisoner's guilt. If there was any doubt in the minds of the jurymen as to the guilt of the prisoner, they were bound to give him the benefit of the doubt.

Following were the Jurymen: Mark A. Smith, (Foreman), Alexander MacPhee, Robert MacLeod, George P. Dunsford, John O'Connor, Elias Lacey, James McCabe, James Brown, James Doyle, James D. Taylor, Edward Currie, Pius McGoughy.

The case of Margaret MacNeill, vs Harold Harper in which the ownership of a car was in dispute was the next case to come before the Court. Mr. W. E. Bentley, K. C., for the plaintiff asked that the case be tried without a jury. Mr. J. J. Johnson, K. C., argued that this case should be tried before a jury.

believed in American quarters to be personally convinced of the necessity of such a project in this case.

The chronology of today's developments is a chronicle of alternate gloom and optimism. A meeting was called this forenoon to hear Mr. Bruce's reply to the scheme after he received cabled instructions from Canberra but he failed to arrive. Later despatches from Australia indicated his instructions were not yet complete and that Australian state governments, which had indicated their wishes in the matter, were definitely opposed to the scheme.

Then an Argentine spokesman said "If we four principal producing countries can get together it is possible we can reduce acreage and production, increase prices and gain the desired end" but this was qualified by the insistence that Australia join.

This was the situation when Mr. Bruce and some of the other delegates later went into Conference.

James Couzens, Canadian-born member of the U. S. delegation, said something had to be done to relieve debtors, raise prices and increase the demand for raw materials. He specifically excluded war debts.

Cites Experience

Before a monetary sub-committee Mr. Chamberlain declared the experience of the last 10 years showed additional safeguards were required. When a foreign loan was issued, the fullest particulars possible in regard to the financial position, past and present, of the borrowing country should be made public. "I would further suggest," said the quiet-spoken head of the British delegation, "that it is a matter for consideration whether the issue of loans should not be made subject to a greater measure of control by the authorities of either the borrowing or lending country. "The history of foreign loans during recent years has been such as to severely shake the confidence of creditors and before it can be restored some definite measures of this kind will be necessary to reassure investors as to the security of their principal and interest."

Impartial Body

The British Chancellor suggested creation of some authoritative and impartial body which could give advice. It must obviously be constituted, he argued, in such a way as to be acceptable to the debtor and creditor countries alike. Other speakers similarly urged the necessity for some permanent body which would advise as between creditors and debtors throughout the world. Hungary proposed an elaborate scheme whereby separate organizations would be created for each creditor and debtor country with a super-organization to coordinate all these organizations and negotiations on their behalf with each debtor country. Senator Couzens, the only Republican member of the United States delegation, held that price-raising by monetary means was not enough. Increased consumption was much more important in his view. This, he suggested, could be brought about in two ways, first by reducing the debt burden, and second by starting public works enterprises. Rumania was emphatic that ex-

MENDING BROKEN DISHES

Perhaps you have broken a favorite dish and would like to know how to mend it? Simply see to it that the surfaces of the break are clean and free of dust, dirt and splinters. Hold them to the light to be sure. Then apply generously to each surface a coat of household cement, but not enough to ooze over the edges when the surfaces are brought together. Press together accurately and firmly, and allow to set until thoroughly dry before using.

Fancywork Exhibition

Favorable and well deserved comment was heard from the scores of parents and friends who yesterday visited the exhibition of fancy work at Rochford Square School. In addition to Reading, Riting and Rithmetic the pupils here, during spare time, are taught the use of the needle and a large number of articles showing their proficiency in its use are being greatly admired. Some exceptionally fine samples are also shown in knitting and colored crayon work.

Grade II exhibit has a number of handkerchiefs neatly hemmed and several neat project and class books with samples of the pupils hand-writing and drawing.

In Grade III exhibits are tray doths with neat plain sewing and embroidery work.

Neat "hot holders" for holding hot dishes, colored maps and handkerchief bags are displayed in the section allotted to Grade VI. In addition are examination papers of the pupils which secured 100 per cent which were most favorably commented on. There is also an attractive display of knitted tams, baby bonnets and sweaters. Neatly decorated portfolios are also shown and in addition clothing made up for the Red Cross.

Snowy white linen pillow slips with neatly worked initials are the contribution of Grades IV and V. The Red Cross has not been overlooked and in the exhibit of Grade VII may be seen a number of knitted face towels which the pupils are donating, displayed here also are linen, hemstitched tray sets and table mats. The latter are made from heavy cardboard neatly covered with flowering material and are for use in holding hot dishes on the table. Maps and samples of lettering are also to be seen here.

The pupils of Grades IX and X continued their efforts to altar linens and in this display of about 180 pieces are to be seen all the linen articles used about the altar. The work is admirable and will be sent to the parishes of the west which find it difficult to provide the necessary linens for church use.

An object of much interest in Grade VIII is a knitted blanket, for a single bed. This is a wonderful piece of hand work and attracting much attention. The pupils in this grade also have a nice display of bouclir bags and a considerable number of small garments which are to be donated to the Red Cross.

Farewell And Presentation

For the second time within as many days, the Rev. Thos. Palethorpe and family were honored and feted, by the Pleasant Valley section of Bradabane United Church Pastoral Charge, when members of the above congregation gathered within the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. James MacSwain. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Thos. Wigmore, M.L.A., who in a short address referred to the pleasing personality of Mr. Palethorpe, and of his unfailing interest in the people over whom he had acted as spiritual adviser for four years, with such wonderful success. He then called upon Mrs. Roy Carter, to read the address printed below. Mrs. Frank Culliffe then presented Mr. Palethorpe, with a well filled purse. The recipient responded very feelingly to this manifestation of love and evident token of appreciation. Mr. John Weeks then addressed the gathering referring to Mr. Palethorpe's work among them, which had resulted in the strengthening of the congregation. He referred also to his efficient work among the young people of the congregation, who two nights previous to that gathering, had themselves acknowledged indebtedness to Mr. Palethorpe as their leader when they presented him with an address and a beautiful set of Military Bmshes and Comb. All stood and joined in singing: 'For he's a jolly good fellow.'

The rest of the evening was spent in games, refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation. Rev. Mr. Palethorpe is assuming the Pastoral oversight of the Winsloe United Church Congregation on July 1st. The following is the address which was read by Mrs. Roy Carter: To Rev. and Mrs. Palethorpe and family. Dear Friends: We, the Members and adherents of the United Pastoral Charge of Pleasant Valley, learn with regret that in the near future you are to leave us, to labor in another part of the Master's vineyard, and while we shall feel the loss keenly, yet we are assured it will be a gain to others. We very much regret your departure, but it is pleasing to know that your new home is not far distant, and we trust that you will always find time to visit us often and you may feel sure of a hearty welcome.

We are unable to give full expression of our appreciation for the kind and sympathetic interest you have always taken in the welfare of this community, your faithful and untiring zeal in the work of our Blessed Master has been much appreciated by us. Your many kind acts and words of sympathy and consolation to the sick and the bereaved, as well as your ministrations in the pulpit will not soon be forgotten. Many times demands were made upon your valuable time, but you invariably gave a hearty and cheerful response to every movement that had for its object the advancement and betterment of our fellowmen.

In conclusion we ask you to accept this, as a token of our appreciation and regard. May you be spared many years of health and prosperity to carry on the noble work in which you are engaged, and when life's journey is ended, may we one and all be privileged to hear that blessed welcome: 'Enter thou into the joys of the Lord.'

Signed on behalf of your many friends.

Jumps Into Path Of Auto

(Canadian Press) FREDERICTON, N. B., June 26.—Totally blind, Zebedee R. Estey, aged resident of Kingsclear, sustained fatal injuries today when he sprang into the path of an approaching motor car. The driver, William Johnson, Fredericton, had no knowledge the pedestrian was blind. Started by the sound of the motor, Estey mistook the direction and jumped toward the car. He died in hospital four hours later.
