PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND AUXILIARY

..."There is a famine of Bibles like the famine for bread and we must try to meet it for two reasons.

First of all, the hearts of men are hungry and their minds perplexed. The Bible has through many generations been the comfort and strength of the hearts of men.

But, second, we do not believe that we can have peace or justice or any stable order in Europe or Asia except upon the principles that are laid down in the Bible."
—. Micklem.

The publication and circulation of the Holy Scriptures by the Society needs greater encouragement and greater support than ever before.

NOTICE

The Annual Meeting of the P. E. I. Auxiliary will take place in the Central Christian Church, Summerside, on Wednesday, June 26th, at 8 o'clock. Executive meets at 7. The Reverend James T. Ibbott, Rector of St. Paul's Church, Charlottetown, will be the guest speaker.

In Memoriam

MR. HARRY G. RICHARDSON

Word was received here yesterday of the death of Mr. Harry G. Richardson, formerly of Charlottetown, who died in Victoria, B. C. Thursday. He was forty years of age.

Mr. Richardson was born in England but came to Canada at an early age and came to this province from Hamilton, Ontario. At first he worked on the piers at Borden, later as a salesman for Frank Clarke, before taking over Milton's Tea Rooms which was later changed to Old Spain.

He enlisted in the Army in the early days of the war and served some five years with the Royal Canadian Engineers, holding the rank of Sergeant-Major.

He was overseas when he was attacked by the disease which eventually took his life.

On his return home he dived in the province for a time and was appointed manager of the Maple Hills project but had to resign soon afterwards, owing to the condition of his health.

He took a keen interest in athletic activities here and coached a number of hockey teams. His greatest success in this line was achieved in 1935 when he coached and managed the Junior Abegweits to the Eastern Canadian finals.

He leaves to mourn his passing his wife, formerly Harriet Stewart of Charlottetown, and four sons Donald, Robert, Douglas and David all in Victoria. Also his mother, Mrs. D. M. Lyle of this City and the following brother and sisters: Stuart in Kitchener, Mrs. John Williams, Mrs. Frank Johnston of this city, Mrs. Percy Rothwell of Kitchener, and Mrs. Harry Schmidt of Hamilton.

The funeral is being held in Victoria.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT. — Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Whitlock, Hunter River, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Pauline Melissa to Murray Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Millar Orr, New Glasgow. Marriage to take place early in July.

McGuigan-Trainor Nuptials

A very pretty marriage was celebrated at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, June 18th in St. Dunstan's Basilia, the contracting parties being Miss Mary Bernadette Trainor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Trainor of Bedford and Mr. J. Arthur McGuigan, B.A., son of Mr. J.F. McGuigan and the late Mrs. McGuigan of Charlottetown.

In the presence of about 150 invited guests the marriage was solemnized and the Nuptial Mass celebrated by Rev. George A. McDonald of St. Dunstan's University. During this Mass hymns were beautifully rendered by Miss Lucy Blanchard. Mr. Frank McIntyre and Dr. Frank McMillan, Mrs. Joseph Dougan presided at the organ, and played appropriate music for the occasion.

The young bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by her cousin, Miss Kathlyn Kelly of Boston, Mass., as maid of honor. Mr. E. Somerled Trainor, the bride's brother acted as groomsman. The ushers were Messrs. Charlie McQuaid, Leo Corcoran and Jack Trainor.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of candle light satin, fashioned with fitted bodice, and full skirt ending in a long train. It had a sweetheart neckline, and long fitted sleeves, pointed over the hands. Her head dress was a Juliet cap of matching satin from which a tulle veil fell softly. She carried a bouquet of Pink Prosperity Roses.

The maid of honor wore a floor-length gown of heavenly blue, with fitted bodice and full net skirt over taffeta and matching Juliet cap and veil. She carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Trainor, mother of the bride wore a model gown of blush rose, embroidered in same shade, with black picture hat, and a corsage of roses.

Following the ceremony the wedding breakfast was served at the Charlottetown Hotel.

During the breakfast, Mr. H.F. McPhee, acting as toast master, called upon the Groomsman who proposed the toast to the bride and groom which was responded to by the groom. Others called on for speeches were the officiating clergyman, Rev. Geo. McDonald, Rev. L. Landrigan, Mr. J. J. Trainor the bride's father and Mr. J. F. McGuigan the groom's father.

During the afternoon many friends called at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Mary Trainor, 18 Pleasant St. to offer congratulations to the young couple who left at 4 o'clock amid showers of confetti and good wishes on a motor trip over the Cabot Trail.

For travelling the bride wore a suit of turquoise blue, with black topper and accessories.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. McGuigan was widely entertained by her numerous friends, and was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, among them being a lovely coffee table from the Post Office staff, and individual gifts from members of the Inspectors branch of which she was a valued employee

Mr. McGuigan is a graduate of St. Dunstan's University and is a promising young barrister of Charlottetown. During the war he served overseas with the Canadian Artillery and was badly wounded in the defence of his country. He is now president of the Charlottetown Branch of the Canadian Legion.

Upon their return the young couple will reside at 232 Fitzroy

Literature And Life

Life Minus and Plus
By Bookman

By life here I mean not that strange thing the spirit, or breath which leaves the body dead when breathing ceases; but life as an ethical thing, that which has character, and which is more than Matthew Arnold's "three fourths" equation of life and conduct. It is indeed the whole.

There are three degrees of life first, average life or what we call normal; after that the minus degree and the plus degree. I suppose most lives are average; they are born, grow up, go to school select some calling, earn a living, attend church, pay their bills, put their time more or less usefully—then pass away. This is the normal life. They are good members of society, make no great stir in the world, have at last their names and age upon a tomb-stone in some little cemetery. Thomas Gray knew that such people slept in the graveyard of Stoke Pogis for he deals with them in his immortal elegy: "Beneath those rugged elms, that yew-tree's shade
Where heaves the turf in many a mouldering heap,
Each in his narrow cell forever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep".

Then there are those who do not measure up to this standard. They exist, are always on the margin line, frequently in debt, irregular in their habits lounge about, life is a "hit and miss" business—more often than not the latter. They become a problem for the normal class of citizen and their support is a drain on the tax-payer. Is it not possible that our practise of dealing out so much help in what we call our "security programmes" may tend to produce a body of people who will not like work any too well? There is such a thing as training people not to be independent, and they will take that from the government now which their fathers would not for a moment think of taking. We have not outgrown the Bible idea that we should work to support ourselves, and make provision for the "rainy day" which is bound to come in some guise or other. Macabee's brood are not all dead yet.

But there is the third class which does a great deal to redeem humanity. They are in the "plus" class. These are willing to do a little extra if called upon, for they have the idea of the "abundant life." They are usually people of good spirits, and it does you good to meet them. We are told that when Henry Drummond came into a room, it was as if the temperature changed, or gloom disappeared. It was equivalent to the lighting of another candle. Such folk are of value in the industrial life of the place where they live, and religion and morality have in them the incarnation of gifts and graces that enrich life.

Life may know addition as well as substraction. Jesus who taught what life was did not emphasise the negative but the positive aspects of it. The old moral law dealt in prohibitions, but Jesus came to give us life, and as He said to give it more "abundantly". It was to be a total thing a man was to be useful in the world in the best sense for there is such a sense; but he was to remember whence he came and the bourne to which he was travelling. The rich farmer knew how to grow grain, and how to fill his barns, but his life was all on the outside and not much above that of the cattle which he drove to the field. "Eat, drink and be merry" was not life of the "plus" rank. He is listed among the "fools" of the Bible.

IRISH MONKS LET UP NEW ORDER IN LONDON

LONDON, June 21 — (C P)— Medieval England came to life again when two monks walked into an empty house in north London with no possessions save their robes.

They belong to an Irish community of monks started by Saint Camillus in the 16th century and theirs is the first house of the order to be opened in England.

Although they have no money, the monks will be at the beck and call of silk people and will accept no fees for their services.

One of them, Father James Kelly, said: "God is good. We have a roof over our heads . . . the furniture will come later, please God.

as well. If I had not idled minutes there, that really should have gone towards the scrubbing, I should not have known that the buds are shaping on the rose-bushes. Nor that the white lilacs on our old bedraggled tree are in full bloom. I buried my face among them to catch the fragrance that will soon be missing and stopped to watch the sparrows still building in the eaves. It was a delightful day to loiter but June affords little time for farm women to waste. I returned to my indoor affairs.

This one now almost entirely past, is a week that doubtless we at Alderlea shall always remember. "Our girl" grand-daughter to James and myself was born to Jeanie in a city hospital early last Sunday morning. "Well, well!" James said obviously much relieved at the favorable news Jock fetched us at sun-up that lovely June morning. If James looking into the future, to perhaps see a house at Alderlea vacant, might have preferred one of the sterner sex as he said "we have Jamie" and he lost little time before he paid his respects to the new infant in the hospital on the very evening of her birth. Not even the promise of a glimpse into a delightful land—a leisurely trip with congenial company to the other farm could serve to alter his plans. James' sister our week-end guest (once a popular Island school ma'am) smiling a misty smile when the news of the birth reached us said: "my prayer was answered" and between us we quo'ed —in quavery, broken voices!— the old couplet which affairms finally that "your daughter's your daughter all her life", substituting "grand-daughter" in our minds, to suit the occasion. She came already named and if "Ellen" is one of them I can not feel at all flattered for that is also one of Jeanie's names and her own mother's as well. The other is in honor of a young matron friend to Jeanie "with nayther a chick nor a child av her own". Which of the two names she will one day answer to, is still subject to some speculation in the family—my own personal leanings are towards the latter.

This week brought The King's Birthday to Canadians, when many holidayed. I enjoyed an excursion across the country that morning and once again viewed the blue of the Strait to the South White capped waves rolled in to break against the base of the red cliffs and on the sandy-floored coves there. Trees in apple orchards blossomed pinkly and lilacs spread purple banners. The last of our grain sowing and "seeding down" has been taken care of; the laborious fertilizer-spreading has been done and the "set" cutting nears its close. And our days were idyllic ones but sped by swiftly. "I never saw a week slip by like this one has" James said at lunchtime when he reviewed its days. The scent of cigar smoke come to me at my desk—not an unpleasant odour when I recall the contentment it affords the smoker. It is in fact only a reminder of the day to come. Which day? I forgot it myself until Jock received a card from his small daughter by this morning's mail. Father's Day of course. When I try to count only a few of the numberless sacrifices a father makes on behalf of his family— his inexhaustable patience; his unfailing interest in our welfare; his zeal; his wise counsel and good judgment, a wistful smile is reflected in the mirror opposite and I remember a line in a funny old song: "What's the matter with Father?" — mine—ours — yours? He's ALL RIGHT!"

Until Monday. Diary . . .

'Tis said teen-agers love bangs, especially round faced teeners. Could be a slight bang on an angle, but never straight across. Bangs turned up, pompadour style are best for the round faced girl.

Short haircuts are important fashion news, in fact short haircuts are predicted for the newest and that should be good news for the full, round face.
