TRIPOLI AND PREVEZA CAPTURED BY ITALIANS (Continued From Page 1.) tion Ministry, but finds the task one of almost insuperable difficulties.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 1.—It is officially confirmed that the Italian squadron has bombarded Preveza, but the landing of Italian forces there is denied. It is announced from Janina that two Italian warships yesterday bombarded the port of Reschad and torpedo boats lying in the harbor, one of which was damaged and landed its crew. The Italian ships entered the port and shelled the town, several houses being struck. After taking soundings they left and entered port Musto, taking the captain of the port and three boatmen prisoners. The Porte has notified the Powers of the suspension of the light house Turkish torpedo boats against the services in the Red Sea, the Mediterranean and Dardanelles, the Aegean ITALY'S POLICY IN THE BALKAN STATES. ROME, Oct. 1.—A semi-official note declares that the statement that Italian forces landed at Preveza is absolutely false. The nature of the circular addressed on September 26th that the territorial status quo should remain as ever, the base of Italian policy. Consequently all reports of the landing of Italians in Europe that may be circulated, are self-evidently untrue. Preveza, adds the note, is, however, a base of operations for Turkish torpedo boats against the boats and commerce of Italy.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 1.—An official announcement is made that the Turkish Squadron returned from Beirut without loss. MALTA, Oct. 1.—The British battleships Duncan, Cornwallis, Russell, Triumph and Swiftsure and the cruiser Bacchante, Aboukir and Lancaster arrived here today.

GERMANY THINKS WAR WILL BE SHORT. BERLIN, Sept. 30.—There is an impression in diplomatic circles that the war will be of short duration. The big banks profess to have information that it is now virtually over. The truth of this depends upon the assumption that Turkey will submit after a show of opposition to the loss of Tripoli, and will not embark upon a programme of reprisals against Italian subject, and Italian commerce. Italy plans it is learned, to start negotiations to re-open negotiations with Turkey as soon as the occupation of Tripoli is assured, counting on reported orders from Constantinople to the local authorities at Tripoli not to resist the landing, and using German channels of communication with the enemy. If there is no opposition to her programme, Italy will content herself in Tripoli with a status similar to that of England in Egypt. Otherwise the annexation of Tripoli will follow.

WEDDINGS AT SEA. Novelists are not as a rule novel-readers; they are too busy studying the books out of which novels are to be made. A fatigued public might do worse than follow their example by dipping into such a book as Dr. Ginsburg's 'Hints on the Legation of Shipmasters.' A standard manual dealing with the functional side of what—except to those engaged in it—is one of the most attractive of professions—is bound to contain a good deal of the 'human element.' For example, we read that the observance of the Sunday morning service 'tends to the maintenance of discipline and to the personal cleanliness of the men—probably by ensuring that they wash their faces at that of marriages at sea. The captain confines himself mainly to navigation; the latest German liners carry a navigating officer, who relieves the captain of a great part of his 'out-of-door-duties, and allows him to cultivate the social side of his profession. The danger of over-employment on this side is illustrated by the case in which the captain of an Australian liner—under pressure, no doubt, from the citizens of a Socialist Commonwealth—refused to allow a saloon passenger into the saloon because he was a baker. One of the most interesting questions discussed by Dr. Ginsburg is that of marriages at sea. The captain is bound by law to transmit copies of those to the proper officers for record. On the other hand, in the form of official log, he is given notice that marriages performed by him will be held illegal. How is he to act? Dr. Ginsburg thinks it really depends on circumstances. The captain of the Calais-Dover steamer, for example, would not be justified in acceding to a request to marry a couple of passengers; nor, presumably, would the commander of a vessel plying between Stobcross and Finlinton. In a case of a sailing ship bound from Liverpool to the Yukon, if both parties were known to the skipper and a month's notice could be given, marriage would be justified. But with the disappearance of the old wind-jammer the question is becoming rather an academic one—though there is still possibilities in it for the novelist.—Glasgow 'Herald.'

THE PHILIPPINE FARMERS. During the period from October 1, 1908, to May 23, 1911, the Agricultural bank of the Philippines made 166 loans, advancing in all 498,600 ($249,300). No person or corporation can borrow less than $25 gold nor more than $12,500 from the bank. The rate of interest charged is 10 per cent per annum, and the maximum period for which a loan may be made is 10 years. Of the 674 applications received 311 were refused because title was defective or applicant had no title whatever (in all cases where the applicant's defective title could be perfected he was given instructions as to how to do so); 161 applications were refused because of the amounts requested being out of proportion to the value of the security offered, 57 have been withdrawn by the applicants; 10 have been refused as the loans requested were for other than agricultural purposes, 13 have been acted on favorably but are awaiting signature to and registration of mortgage, and 16 are in the hands of various provincial boards for appraisal of the value of the security offered. About a year ago the bank communicated with the provincial officials throughout the islands with a view of obtaining information as to why requests for loans were not more numerous and the replies received were without exception to the effect that the people possessed neither royal nor Torrens titles and that the requirements for securing good titles were so complicated and expensive that the people would not attempt to secure them. Recently, however, a system has been inaugurated by the government to aid the people in acquiring Torrens titles, but the system has not been in effect sufficiently long to show any appreciable results.—Manila Free Press.

RECORD LEGAL NERVE (Hamilton Herald.) For advertisement the lawyer who defended Geidel, the young New York murderer, got honorable mention. Geidel's victim, a wealthy old man named Jackson, was found dead in his room. A cloth had been thrust down his throat; his jaw was broken; there were bruises on his face and the marks of fingers on his throat. The furniture of the room was thrown about, indicating a struggle and there was evidence that the victim had been robbed. After his arrest Geidel made a full confession of his crime to the police. Yet at the trial his lawyer built up a defence on the theory that the victim had died from heart disease. This beats the insanity plea hollow.

WOMAN "TIPPED" PORTER FOR INFORMATION. MONTREAL, Sept. 30.—That the woman who had registered at the Windsor as B. P. Patterson's wife had tipped a door porter at the Windsor Hotel for information concerning the whereabouts of David Bussel on the afternoon of their arrival in the city and just previous to the interview she had with the millionaire financier in the reading room of the hotel were the interesting revelations this morning in the suit which the financier is bringing against the Pinkerton Detective Agency.

Robt. C. Smith, K. C., who has been mentioned in connection with the case stated that he was advised in an official capacity to go to Dittsbury and investigate the character of the two people who posed as man and wife, and who Mr. Russell thought were endeavoring to work a badger game on him. Mr. James Robinson, New Brunswick, stated that he had occasion to discuss many financial affairs with Mr. Russell during the month of October when the alleged persecution started and he always found him perfectly lucid and rational.

John Knight, a door porter at the Windsor, said that he saw Mrs. Allen on Oct. 16th lingering around the door of Mr. Russell's office in the Windsor Hotel. She finally approached him and tipped him a dollar. "What was that for?" said Mr. Campbell who was conducting the plaintiff's case. Mr. Geoffrion objected to this question. Judge Archer settled the dispute by asking the question in a form that was acceptable to both parties, and Mr. Knight replied that she had asked for information concerning Russell.
