

WORKED TO THE LIMIT.

LONDON, September 3.—Writing to the Times, Sir Gilbert Parker quotes Senator Bryce in support of his contention that the American wheat fields are being worked to the limit.

THE MORNING GUARDIAN

TUESDAY SEPT. 8, 1903.

LABOR DAY.

Yesterday was Labor Day and a statutory holiday set apart in honor of and for the advantage of those who toil. This class includes the bulk of the adult population of the Dominion. It was due to the thoughtfulness of the late Sir John Thompson that this day was set apart in Canada. Its adoption in the United States dates some years earlier, so that our special holiday for labor was by no means a new idea. We followed in the wake of the big Republic, and by adopting the same date as our neighbors it has come to pass that the holiday is general almost throughout the continent which contains so many, and from year to year an increasing number of millions of workers.

In almost all monarchic countries the birthday of the reigning Sovereign is a public holiday, set apart for rest, recreation and for honor to the head of the state. This is proper and well enough in its way, and conducive to patriotism, but the honest industry of a nation collectively is always of more consequence than any individual however high his station may be. By observing Labor Day we recognize the dignity and the worth of industry. We express our sense of the fact that labor is the source of all wealth, of all progress and a prime requisite to the welfare and happiness of the world. In Canada, as we have said, nearly all are workers. In the field, in the mine, in the work shop, the factory, in the lumber camp, the fisheries, in sailing ships, driving trains, in the store, the office, the household, the work goes on, each performing some necessary part in contributing to the supply of the general wants.

And, after all, probably the workers are the happiest people in the world. We can readily see that not so much in anger so for the welfare of the race was the fiat given, "In the sweat of thy face shall thou eat bread." To be busily employed from day to day in useful work adapted to the taste, skill and inclination of the worker in one of the privileges and solaces of life to the normal human being endowed with good health. It is only when compelled to toil beyond one's strength, or too continuously, or in some distasteful calling, or when labor is insufficiently paid for, that work becomes irksome. Yet the occasional holiday was always a necessity. It becomes more so as owing to the conditions of our time the stress of work becomes more pressing.

It is a true now as in the old days when the proverb was first written that "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

And what is true of Jack is true of his sister as well, and of the father and mother of both, and especially of the mother, for there is no class that we know of who have so few genuine holidays as the mothers, especially in our country households. We trust that Labor Day may be from year to year, a day of healthful rest and recreation as far as possible. The observance has now become general in the cities, and again this year a good program of sports was prepared. We venture the hope that among those in the village and country districts as well, there may be each year a general observance of the day set apart by law in honor of the workers. "So mote it be."

The Alaskan Boundary Commissioners will have a heavy task in acquainting themselves with the mass of documentary and other evidence to be submitted. The American case alone makes three volumes with a total of about 1100 pages.

The physical ills of the human race are so many, and death being the inevitable portion of all at last, there seems good reason why there are so many maladies that the doctors cannot cure. But they are making some progress. One of the notable advances is the serum treatment for diphtheria, formerly a most fatal disease. It represents the successful attempt of science to "hoist the microbes with their own petard." A horse is inoculated with the microbes of diphtheria. The animal remains strong and well under this treatment. Then in blood drawn from it we find developed in course of time what we call the "antitoxin" of the disease. The germs multiplying in the serum or fluid of the blood has given rise to this new substance. When the latter is inoculated into a child suffering from diphtheria it cures the little patient. And now the world comes from Vienna that Prof. Behring has succeeded in rendering the cow immune to tuberculosis. Moreover, it is averred, that children fed upon the milk of cows so treated are also rendered immune to tuberculosis. If this should be confirmed it will be good news indeed.

Growing Old

Ought not to mean growing weak and feeble. It does not mean weakness or feebleness for those who eat with good appetite and sound digestion. It is of the utmost importance that old people should retain the power to digest and assimilate food which is the sole source of physical strength. When age brings feebleness it is generally because of the failure to assimilate the nutrition contained in food.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food. It invigorates the liver and promotes general physical well being.

"It is with gratitude we acknowledge what Dr. Pierce's medicine has done for grandmother's good, in fact, it has cured her," writes Miss Carrie Ranker, of Perryburg, Ohio. "She had doctored with several physicians but found no relief until Dr. Pierce advised her what to do. She has taken only three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and is entirely well. She suffered with pain in kidneys, bladder and liver for ten years, and her limbs were swollen with drops so bad she could hardly walk. My grandmother's name is Mrs. Caroline Hennen, her age is 71 years. I will gladly answer all letters of inquiry."

Sick people are invited to consult Dr. R. V. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the bowels.
