BLUE WOMEN

Women should understand that melancholia, commonly called "the blues," is in nine times out of ten a sure symptom of some serious female organic derangement and should have immediate attention.

Women whose spirits are depressed, and who are ailing and miserable, should rely upon LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND as is evidenced by following letters.

Mrs. R. Gentleman, 1063 St. James Street, Montreal, Quebec, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I suffered from a severe female weakness, and extreme nervousness, and was blue and utterly discouraged. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking several bottles, I am not only cured, but am an entirely different woman, and on the whole a healthier woman than before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Mary J. Williams, of Bridgeport, Ill., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I have been suffering from a female trouble, backache and headaches, and was so blue that I was simply in despair. I feel it my duty to tell you that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me. The change in my appearance is wonderful, and I wish every suffering woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.
For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache. Why don't you try it?

THE DUKE WAS AWAY VISITING A RELATIVE

TURIN, Oct. 23.—The Duke of the Abruzzi, whose mysterious disappearance a few days ago led to the report that he had left here with the intention of proceeding to the United States, has been visiting Princess Clotilde, the Aunt of King Victor Emmanuel at the Royal chateau at Montevideo for the purpose of interesting her in his cause. He returned here today, but only remained in the City for a few hours. The Duke left for the South, but his destination is unknown. His plans with regard to his reported engagement to Miss Katherine Elkins, are being kept a profound secret. He has even dispensed with his aide and valet in order to be completely free.

BEAUTIFUL MUSIC OF "IL TROVATORE"

Undoubtedly the music of Verdi's "Il Trovatore" is better known and more generally liked than any other grand opera. This will be the opening piece of the Boston Opera Singers Co., at the Opera House tomorrow evening. The following is a synopsis of the music's numbers.

The first act opens with a ballad in manrika's time ("Abbieta Zingara") in which Ferrando relates the story of the gypsy, leading up to a scene for Leonora, which is treated in Verdi's style. It begins with an andante ("Tacea nocte placida"), a brief dialogue with her attendant, Inez intervening, and then develops into an allegro ("Di tale amor") which is a brilliant bit of bravura. A brief snatch of fascinating melody behind the scenes ("Deserto sulla terra") introduces Manrico, and the act closes with a trio ("Di gelso amor spezzato"), which, as an expression of combined grief and hate, is one of the most dramatic and intense of all Verdi's finales.

The second act opens with the Anvil Chorus in the camp of the gypsies ("La Zingarella"), the measures accented with hammers upon the anvils. As its strains die away in the distance, Azucena breaks into an aria of intense energy, with every expressive accompaniment ("Stride la vampa"), in which she tells the fearful story of the burning of her mother. A very dramatic dialogue with Manrico ensues, closing with a spirited aria for tenor ("Mal regendo") and duet ("Sinc' all' elsa").

The scene is interrupted by the arrival of a messenger. The second scene is introduced by a flowing, broad and beautifully sustained aria for the Count ("Li balen del suo"), and like Leonora's numbers in the garden scene, again develops from a slow movement to a rapid and spirited march tempo ("Pene ora fatale"), the act closing with a powerful concerted effect of a quartette and chorus.

The third act is introduced with a very fine animated soldiers' chorus. Azucena is dragged in and sings a very plaintive lament or Manrico ("Giorni poveri"). Two duets follow between Azucena and the Count, and Manrico and Leonora, the second worked up with beautiful effect by the blending of the organ in the concerted scene. The act closes with the spirited aria, "Di quella pira," for Manrico, a number which has always been the delight of great dramatic tenors, not alone for its fine melody, but for its opportunity of showing the voice and using the exceptional high C in the final of the aria.

THE BEAUTIFUL LAST ACT.
The last act is replete with beautiful melodies, following each other in quick succession. It opens with a very florid aria for Leonora ("D' amor sull' all' rose"), leading to the exquisite scene of the Miserere ("Ah, la morte"), a number which has never yet failed to charm and arouse audiences with the beauty and richness of its musical effect. As the Count enters Leonora has another powerful aria ("Mira, di acerbe"), which in the next scene is followed by the familiar duet between Azucena and Manrico ("Si la stanchezza"), upon which Verdi lavished his musical skill with the charming effect. The whole opera is liberally enriched with melodies and is dramatic throughout, but the last act is the crown of the work, and may successfully challenge comparison for beauty and variety with any other opera.

No one should miss this production as it is doubtful if the opportunity will ever occur again. Seats are now on sale at the usual places. Parties residing outside the City can send their orders to Mr. Crabbe. Special trains for outside points after each performance.

FIFTY ANGLICAN HEROES

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 24.—The Carnegie Hero Fund committee at its quarterly meeting recognized 48 persons as having performed acts of heroic deserving recognition under the rules governing the fund provided by Mr. Carnegie. Each of these persons was awarded a medal of bronze, silver or gold, and a number of them were also awarded cash for educational or other purposes. The cash awards made today amount to $4,000.

Albert W. Simpson, of Stockdale, Pa., who last May was awarded a bronze medal for rescuing a miner from a cave-in a Fayette County coal mine, was today voted an additional reward of $2,000 to pay his expenses through the Carnegie Technical Schools, where he is now registered as a student.

ROOSEVELT TO EDIT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—President Roosevelt has made a contract with The Outlook Company by which he will become associate editor with Dr. Lyman Abbot of The Outlook after his retirement from the presidency.

The Outlook has taken a deep interest in the Congo Free State and the many and well substantiated stories from there of extraordinary cruelties practiced upon natives engaged in the rubber trade. It was suggested tonight that Mr. Roosevelt might be intending to make a personal investigation of Congo conditions and report the results for The Outlook.
