CHOCOLATES.—Johnson and Johnson have over thirty varieties of bulk chocolates to choose from. A fresh supply may be had today. 563

CHANGE IN TIMETABLE.—In another column will be found timetable to go into effect Monday, May 21st. Trains will run as last year, with slight changes in time.

A POPULAR SOLOIST.—Mrs. Myers will sing in the First Methodist Church tomorrow Sunday evening. All seats in the Church are absolutely free and the public are cordially invited.

THE STEAMERS.—The S. S. Prince Edward leaves Georgetown at 7 o'clock this morning for Pictou and the S. S. Arammore leaves Pictou for Georgetown.

A COLLISION.—Two teams collided on Great George Street yesterday afternoon with the result that a front wheel was wrenched from one of the wagons which was owned by a countryman.

MAJOR TEMPLE W. McDONALD.—Mr. Archibald J. Macdonald, of Georgetown, has received word that his son, Capt. Temple W. Macdonald, of the No. 2 Canadian Siege Battery, (now the 98th) has been promoted to Major and is now in command of No. 5 Canadian Siege Battery, B. E. F.

SNOW STORM IN MAY.—The merry jingle of sleigh bells was again heard in Souris on Thursday as the result of the fall of snow which fell the previous night. About eight inches fell and the baggage to and from the railway station were conveyed by sleighs. The whole Eastern portion of the island was visited by the snowstorm—something quite unusual for the middle of May. There was a slight snowfall also in Charlottetown but it melted almost as soon as it touched the ground.

IN MEMORIAM

OSWALD R. REID.

The death of Mr. Oswald R. Reid youngest son of the late Hon. R. B. Reid, of Alberton, P. E. I., occurred on Thursday, May 10th, in the Boston City Hospital. Deceased had been in ill health for over a year. Mr. Reid was well and favorably known in Moncton, where he had made many friends. The funeral took place from the residence of his father-in-law, Mr. Michael Driscoll, 9 Kent St., Brookline, Mass., on Saturday morning. Interment in the Brookline Cemetery. — Moncton Exe.

MRS. R. RAYNOR

The death bell has again been heard this time taking away the spirit of Mrs. R. Raynor of Knutsford, who had been laid aside for five weeks yet it was thought all was right. However He, who knows best than by laborious students and savants. The life led by that society is the true heaven of the natural man, who likes to have frequent feasts and hearty appetite, who enjoys the varying spectacle of wealth and splendor and pleasure, who loves to watch, from the Olympus of this personal ease, the curious results of labor in which he takes no part, the interesting ingenuity of the tolling world below. In exchange for these varied pleasures of the spectator, the intellectual life can offer you but one satisfaction; for all its promises are reducible simply to this, that you shall come at last, after infinite labor, into contact with some great reality—that you shall know and do in such sort, that you will feel yourself on firm ground and be recognized, probably not much applauded, but yet recognized—as a fellow laborer by other knowers and doers. Before you come to this, most of your present accomplishments will be abandoned by yourself as unsatisfactory and insufficient, but one or two of them will be turned to better account, and will give you after many years a tranquil self-respect, and what is still rarer and better, a very deep and earnest reverence for the greatness which is above you. Severed from the vanities of the illusory, you will live with the realities of knowledge as one who has quitted the painted scenery of the theatre to listen by the eternal ocean or gaze at the granite hills.

NEARLY EXHAUSTED.—The Guardian's supply of Catholic Bibles is nearly exhausted and those wishing to procure a copy should make early application, as the publishers can supply no more at the price.

THE AMELIA.—There were about thirty travellers at Souris yesterday awaiting the arrival of the S. S. Amelia, which is to proceed to the Magdalenas but has been delayed for some reason.

CATHOLIC BIBLE.—When The Guardian's present stock of Douay Bibles is exhausted it shall have to stop distribution, as no more are obtainable from the publishers on such favorable terms.

RED CROSS WORK.—The Ladies of Mount Albion Red Cross held what they call a "pay night" at the home of Mr. Boswell Jenkins. Both young and old came in large numbers till every room was filled to overflowing. Luncheon was served by the young ladies and a collection was taken up amounting to $11.50 to be spent buying yarn and other comforts for the boys at the front. The evening was pleasantly spent, between work, music, singing and gramophone selections when everybody returned to their homes feeling that they spent a most pleasant evening through the noted hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins.

SOCIAL AND INTELLECTUAL LIFE

(Philip Gilbert Hamerton) There is a degree of incompatibility between the fashionable and the intellectual lives, which makes it necessary at a certain time to choose one or the other as our own. There is no hostility, there need not be any uncharitable feeling, on one side or the other, but there must be a resolute choice between the two. If you decide for the intellectual life, you will incur a definite loss to set against your gain. Your existence may have calmer and profounder satisfaction, but it will be less amusing, and even in an appreciable degree less human, less in harmony, I mean, with the common instincts and feelings of humanity. For the fashionable world, although decorated by habits of expense, has enjoyment for its object, and arrives at enjoyment by those methods which the experience or generations has proved most efficacious. Variety of amusement, frequent change of scenery and society, healthy exercise, pleasant occupation of the mind without fatigue—these things do indeed make existence agreeable to human nature, and the science of living agreeably is better understood in the fashionable society of England than by laborious students and savants. The life led by that society is the true heaven of the natural man, who likes to have frequent feasts and hearty appetite, who enjoys the varying spectacle of wealth and splendor and pleasure, who loves to watch, from the Olympus of this personal ease, the curious results of labor in which he takes no part, the interesting ingenuity of the tolling world below. In exchange for these varied pleasures of the spectator, the intellectual life can offer you but one satisfaction; for all its promises are reducible simply to this, that you shall come at last, after infinite labor, into contact with some great reality—that you shall know and do in such sort, that you will feel yourself on firm ground and be recognized, probably not much applauded, but yet recognized—as a fellow laborer by other knowers and doers. Before you come to this, most of your present accomplishments will be abandoned by yourself as unsatisfactory and insufficient, but one or two of them will be turned to better account, and will give you after many years a tranquil self-respect, and what is still rarer and better, a very deep and earnest reverence for the greatness which is above you. YOUNG FELLOW MY LAD. (By Robert Service, in Rhymes of a Red Cross Man.)

"Where are you going, Young Fellow My Lad,
On this glittering morn of May?"
"I'm going to join the Colors, Dad,
They're looking for men, they say."
"But you're only a boy, Young Fellow My Lad;
You aren't obliged 'd go."
"I'm seventeen and a quarter, Dad,
And ever so strong you know."

"So you're off to France, Young Fellow My Lad,
And you're looking 'so fit and bright,"
"I'm terribly sorry to leave you, Dad,
But I feel that I'm doing right."
"God bless you and keep you, Young Fellow My Lad, You're all of my life, you know."
"Don't worry, I'll soon be back, dear Dad,
And I'm awfully proud to go."

"Why don't you write, Young Fellow My Lad?
I watch for the post each day;
And I miss you so, and I'm awfully sad,
And it's months since you went away."
"And I've had the fire in the parlor lit,
And I'm keeping it burning bright,
Till my boy comes home; and here I sit
Into the quiet night."

"What is the matter, Young Fellow My Lad?
No letter again today,
Why did the postman look so sad,
And sigh as he turned away?
I hear them tell that we've gained new ground,
But a terrible price we've paid;
God grant, my boy, that you're safe and sound;
But, oh, I'm afraid, afraid."

"They've told me the truth, Young Fellow My Lad,
You'll never come back again;
Oh God! the dreams and the dreams I've had,
And the hopes I've missed in vain!
For you passed in the night Young Fellow My Lad,
And you proved in the cruel test
Of the screaming shell and the battle

Robie McLeod - Master Shipbuilder

This Company has been organized for the purpose of acquiring ship yard at Tusket and for the building of Wooden Ships.
I own and offer the unsold balance of:—

25,000 shares only at 80c per share

Shares will be allotted in order received.
Application to list the Shares on the Boston Curb Exchange at $1.00 per share will be made.
I will stake the success of this Company on my past record of three successful Companies during the last four years namely: The Logan Tanneries, The Eastern Steel Co., and the Truro Steel Co., all three of which I organized and financed.
I estimate that this Company can earn in one year 50 p. c. on its present capital by building two ships a year, in which event 27 p. c. goes to the Government in war taxes and 23 p. c. to the Company.
If the Company can earn 23 p. c. net yearly the stock should eventually sell at $4 per share.
In three months after listing at $5 per share, Truro Steel sold at $25 per share.
I PREDICT THAT TUSKET SHIPBUILDING CO, LTD, IF LISTED WILL, ON ITS FUTURE PROSPECTS, SELL AT A PREMIUM.
Make all applications for stock and all remittances payable to me. Orders wired will receive the same consideration as those by letter.
