New Enterprise On West Coast

VANCOUVER, Aug. 29—(CP)—Two communities, interesting experiments in co-operative enterprise, thrive at the north end of Vancouver Island. On Malcolm Island in Queen Charlotte Strait, there is a co-operative town of Finns called Sointula. Twenty-five miles south of the provincial government land settlement project flourishes at Sayward. Sointula, established 30 years ago, is something of a metropolis, being the headquarters of the colony of 700 Finns on Malcolm Island. There are few men in the town this time of year for most of them go north for the fishing season. The island is useless for farming and the Finns engage in logging and fishing entirely. Sointula means "harmony" but the name is not apt. The colony has been rent by internal dissension over the 30 years of its existence. Originally it was a communist enterprise but the plans changed and the inhabitants of Sointula are only communist in politics today. A small faction favors capitalism however and this has caused the trouble. Despite the internal strife visitors claim Sointula has the prettiest girls on the coast. Sayward farther south is in a fine agricultural district. Fifty Vancouver relief recipients were grubstaked by the British Columbia government and they came north to Sayward to farm in the Salmon River valley. The only market for their produce at present is the neighboring logging camps. They are self-supporting, however, and hope in the future to be able to sell in Vancouver and Victoria. They have formed the Economic Security Co-operative Society and the entire community is run on the cooperative basis.

ANCIENT FOSSIL FOUND

(By The Canadian Press) PORT ALBERNI, B. C., Aug. 29—A fossil, believed by Prof. M. F. Bancroft, of Acadia University, Wolfville, N. S., to be 30,000,000 years old, was brought here recently after being waded from the lower Cretaceous formation of the west coast of Vancouver Island. A geological party, headed by Prof. Bancroft, found the fossil in the rocks on the shore. It had been laid bare by the waves within the last two years. He said the fossil may be part of the Ichthyosaurus that roamed the seas some 30,000,000 years ago.

CONDUCTOR KEEPS TO THE ROAD

Convention Asks A Broader Scope Exchequer Court

(By The Canadian Press) WINNIPEG, Aug. 28—Broadening of the jurisdiction of the Exchequer Court of Canada was urged in the report of the committee on administration of justice to the annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association here today. The report of the committee declared: "In view of the increasing tendency of the government to enter the business field in competition with private enterprise, the committee is of the opinion that the jurisdiction of the Exchequer Court should be broadened and provisions as to petitions of right brought into harmony with present day conditions. To this end the committee recommends that a representative committee be named immediately with instructions to consider the matter, and report the appropriate legislation and report of the next winter meeting of the general council."

After extensive investigation in all provinces, the committee reported that, with minor exceptions, judges are painstaking and diligent and that the administration of justice is being conducted efficiently and with due regard to public interest. As to appeals, the committee reported no suggestions in a general report could be offered which would increase the efficiency and dispatch with which appeals are dealt with generally. Matters of procedure and rules of court in some provinces require consideration of the respective governing bodies, the report said. Referring to dispatch in rendering judgments, the committee said that where possible, judgments should be given immediately at the conclusion of the trial. Cases in which it appears to the court should never have been brought or defended were thus immediately concluded.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. THOMAS CASSIDY

On June 23rd God called to his eternal rest Thomas Cassidy, during his long life of 87 years, he had enshrined himself in hearts of relatives and acquaintances by his kindly and generous nature. He lived many years in Montague, but his death occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph McCarron, with whom he had spent the past two years. With a staunch heroic faith and strengthened by the sacred rites of Holy Church, his soul winged its heavenly flight, there to continue the loving watch over his bereaved ones.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, Peter and Thomas, both of Winnipeg; three daughters, Mrs. William Rice, Montague; Mrs. Patrick McGee, Charlottetown, and Mrs. Joseph McCarron, St. Mary's Road, besides a number of grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Solemn Mass of Requiem was celebrated in St. Paul's Church by Rev. William McCabe. Interment was in Sturgeon Cemetery, where the remains of a loving husband and devoted and self-sacrificing father was laid to rest. May his soul rest in peace.

URBAN GALLANT

Death is sad at all times, but it is especially so when it comes suddenly, as in the case of Urban Gallant of the C. N. R. Offices, Charlottetown, who met his death by drowning at Keppoch Beach on Sunday afternoon, August 18th. Urban was born at St. Anthony in Bloomfield Parish in the year 1901. He was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Gallant who are heart-broken over the loss of their dearly beloved son. Urban received his education in his home school, later he entered the Charlottetown Business College, where he graduated with honors. His first position was in the employ of the Provincial Bank both in the Summerside and Charlottetown branches.

In 1927 he entered the service of the C. N. R. and up to the time of his death he filled an important position in the office of the District Passenger Agent, where he was loved and respected by his fellow employees. In Charlottetown, Urban had many friends who loved him on account of his jolly disposition and obliging manner. He was a faithful member of the Catholic Church and it was a great consolation for his parents and friends to know that he had received Holy Communion on the morning of his death.

He was a very faithful member of the Holy Name Society of St. Dunstan's Basilica and he will be greatly missed by his confreres. He was known by all for his sobriety, punctuality, and dependability. His life was a shining example to all with whom he came in contact. When the accident occurred the priests of the Basilica were notified and the Rev. Louis Dougan hurried to the scene and administered Extreme Unction assisted by Fathers Keefe and McCardle.

On Monday the remains were conveyed to his old home in St. Anthony where they were viewed by a large number of sympathizing friends who came to pray for the repose of his soul and to console his grief stricken parents. The funeral was held at 9:30 a. m. on Tuesday at St. Anthony's Church where the remains were received by a dear friend, Rev. J. E. O'Hanley of St. Paul's Church, Summerside. After the chanting of the 'Miserere Mei Deus', Solemn High Mass of Requiem was celebrated with all the solemnity and pomp of the Catholic ritual.

The pastor, Rev. J. A. Gaudet was the celebrant and was assisted by Rev. N. J. Poirier of St. Dunstan's University as Deacon and Rev. J. E. O'Hanley as Sub-Deacon and Mr. Prosper Arseneault as Master of Ceremonies. Rev. George McDonald, Brae; Rev. Urban Gillis, Wellington, and Rev. Anthony Francis of Truro, N.S., occupied seats in the Sanctuary. During the service Mr. C. J. Gallant presided at the organ and a full choir, under the direction of Mr. G. P. Arseneault, C.N.R. Agent, solemnly rendered the musical parts of the service. At the conclusion of the final absolution the large procession of sorrowing relatives and friends of all races and creeds headed by the processional Cross which is the emblem of Hope, slowly wended its way to St. Anthony's Cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. J. E. O'Hanley, after which the mortal remains of a devoted son, a loving brother, and a faithful friend were tenderly laid to rest to await the glorious resurrection morn.

Another Briton Seeking Honors In Speed Races (Associated Press) LONDON, Aug. 28—Sir Malcolm Campbell's famous record-breaking Bluebird will have a rival for public interest when it arrives in America late in August for another attempt at the mystic 300-mile-an-hour mark on Utah's great salt plains. Traveling in the same liner with the famous Campbell-Bluebird combination is another noted British speed merchant, Capt. George Eyston, and a new super-car that in design is almost as startling as was Bluebird on its first public appearance. In the new 300-mile-an-hour creation Capt. Eyston intends to smash practically every record that his distinguished countryman doesn't want, from 20 miles to 24 hours. He anticipated little difficulty in bettering all the 21 records recently set on the same Utah course by another Briton, John Cobb. Eyston's machine, 23 feet in length and tapering down to a wind aperture in front that looks like a shark's mouth, bristles with novel points. It has a 12-cylinder aviation power unit and no sign of a clutch. A four-speed, self-changing gear box takes its place. It is the first big machine of the type to have front-wheel drive. Further, each wheel is independent of the other. Fuel is carried in two 23-gallon tanks and pumped to the carburetors by a mechanical engine device. Adoption of front-wheel drive has greatly simplified the layout of the cockpit, since there is no mechanism in it with the driver. The body, held on a light alloy framework, is shaped as half a true streamline section, the underside, naturally, being flat. Extensions at each side cover the gas tanks and partly enclose the wheels. Inside the tail is a compartment for spare tires and tools, in accordance with the international rules for distance runs. The lighting system for the long night runs is novel, two headlights being carried close together inside the nose of the car and throwing their beams through portholes in the streamlined cover. Captain Eyston and Albert Denly, who will "spell" him at the wheel, have evolved a scheme which they believe will save much time in refueling the giant. They plan to install a big reservoir on a tower with two hoses, one for each tank. Since the car weighs nearly two tons, special pads are fitted for two huge compound jacks which will hoist both front and both rear wheels off the ground in one movement for tire changes. The firm were examined at both preliminary hearings. Close Race In Stock Sweepstakes (C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) TORONTO, Aug. 29—Mr. and Mrs. John Nagle were happy today as they gazed at their newly-born baby, with the hope the child might play a part in getting them the $500,000 bequeathed by Charles Vance Millar, millionaire lawyer and sportsman, for the Toronto mother giving birth to largest family in 10 years following his death in October, 1928. The baby born Sunday is the ninth born to Mrs. Nagle since Millar's death, to put her in the tie for second place with Mrs. Grace Bagnato who gave birth to her ninth child last December. Leader in the stock sweepstakes is Mrs. Matthew Kenny who has given birth to 11 children since 1926. Mrs. Bagnato, however, claims only three of Mrs. Kenny's children are still living and that some of them were registered too late. Also contending is Mrs. Stefano Darrigo, wife of a fruit merchant who has seven babies registered since 1926. She also intends to register twins and another child who were still-born. LAMB FAIRS IN SEPTEMBER

During September three lamb fairs will be held in this province. These lamb fairs are conducted in conjunction with County Exhibitions at Souris, Alberton and Egmont Bay. At all three fairs, two sections are provided for market lambs. Special prize money is given to encourage the marketing of finished market lambs of desirable weight and conformation. This year all lambs shown in these two market sections must be loaded for shipment direct from the fair in order that the owners may be eligible to receive prize money. The Souris lamb fair this year, is open to King's County. No prize money will be paid on an entry in these lamb fair sections if the lambs in this entry are not docked, should such an entry be exhibited. These lamb fairs have constituted an important phase of each of the County Exhibitions with which they have been associated in recent years, and the attention of farmers in the various districts where these fairs are held this year is directed to this phase of the sheep show with a view to making these lamb fairs as educational, extensive and competitive as possible.

Mae West Names Eligible Bachelors

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28—(C.P.)—Mae West named the 12 most eligible bachelors in the movie colony today—but she had to include Baby Leroy to get an even dozen. She said Baby-Leroy, No. 12 on her list, "is the most eligible bachelor for the next 20 years." "Eligible bachelors are hard to find," Mae added with a wink. "If they're very eligible they don't stay bachelors!" Nevertheless, the blonde movie star compiled a list of those she considers most attractive. It includes: Cece Romero, Lyle Talbot, Ivan Lebedeff, Jack Oakie, Randolph Scott, Nelson Eddy, James Dunn, Gene Raymond, Henry Wilcoxon, Whitney De Rham, Lee Tracy—and Baby Leroy.
