—CASE DISMISSED—A prohibition case came up for hearing before Superior Magistrate E. H. Strong K.C. this week when a woman was charged with having beer in her possession. The beer, some 2300 bottles, had been found under the house some months ago. The defendant had been absent from the Province for some months and the prosecution had been delayed on sufficient evidence to convict. Mr. W. E. Darby appeared for the prosecution and Mr. W. Henry Noonan for the accused. Corp. Lines of South and formerly in charge of the security of the Province, was present for the prosecution.—S

—BUSHEY—RAMSAY WEDDING—A very quiet but interesting wedding took place at the Sacred Heart Church, Alberton, on February 21, 1941, when Florence Lillian, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ramsay, Alberton, and Miss Betty Bushey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bushey of the Veterans' Guard at Summerside, son of Mrs. Margaret Ramsay of Kings County, P. E. I. The bride looked charming in air force blue dress and matching accessories. She was accompanied by Rev. Father W. MacDonald. After a wedding breakfast served at the home of the bride they left on a short honeymoon trip to Summerside. There many friends throughout the province wish them many years of happy wedded life.

—DEATH OF RICHARD R. HUNT—Friends throughout the Province mourned with sincere regret the death yesterday morning of Richard R. Hunt, who passed away at his home at Alberton, after an illness of about seven weeks. Mr. Hunt was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Hunt, an old and honored family in the County of Prince Edward. He was 60 years of age and in his younger days he had held the position of Deputy Prothonary at the Court House, Summerside. He afterwards was married in 1909 to Miss Frances Andrew, daughter of the late William Andrew, for many years High Sheriff of Prince Edward County. Besides his widow, six daughters are left to cherish his memory: Mrs. Somers, Mrs. Mary Jones, St. Frances; the late Mrs. Mary and Margaret at Alberton; and Mrs. Rev. Dr. James of Kings County, P. E. I. Rev. Wm. J. Hunt, Windsor, was the officiating minister. Mrs. Spink of Charlottetown and Mrs. F. M. Webster of Halifax were the closest friends. The funeral was held at the Guardian's funeral home.—S

Overseas

Everyone who is subject to any form of indigestion should know of this woman's experiences. Advice from one who has had such severe attacks is advice worth having. She writes: "I suffered from indigestion, gastritis and constipation, and was so very ill, I had (on medical advice) to live on soda biscuits and milk for three months. Well, a friend advised me to take Kruschen, and now I am pleased to say I am greatly improved. I can eat and enjoy a good meal without any painful after-effects, my skin is clearer—in fact, quite clear—and there is no sign of constipation. I would advise anyone suffering the same to take Kruschen."

—(Mrs. M. R. L.) The immediate effect of the several salts in Kruschen is to stimulate your liver and kidneys to normal action. It helps to free your system of poisonous substances. Soon after you start on Kruschen you will find that you are able to enjoy your food without distressing after-effects.

Queen's Canadian Funds News

The Queen's Canadian Fund for Air-Raid Victims collects money which is transmitted to the Lord Mayor of London for distribution through his National Air-Raid Distress Fund throughout the United Kingdom. Every sender's letter is sent without deduction. A Manchester woman's stirring letter is given here in which she offers a vivid impression of the terrible experiences that the people have to endure, and it shows in a telling way how urgently our help is needed in aid of the homeless.

MANCHESTER WOMAN'S MOVING LETTER
"So I am writing to let you know that up to the present we were all right and I have not chins up. It has been pretty quiet and I never thought we should get through the second night of the 'blitz'. It was a nightmare and that night I thought I was ever first on the Sunday and we had all the windows blown in. It started at 6.15 in the evening and the planes were continually over and guns going until 7.15 next morning. I will tell you the story of the night. My wife could not get away from their place and lay on the floor behind the door until 2.15 with bombs dropping all around their district. Finally they made a dash for a shelter and were there until seven o'clock the next morning. "When the planes first came over and blew in all the windows, we were pretty sure they would come back on the Monday night, so we sent for Mother and Dad to come to our place to stay in the cellar for the night. At 7.30 it started again. It was dreadful. Our cellar walls rocked with the explosion of the bombs. The house began to rise several inches, and all the time every two minutes, wave after wave of bombers came over dropping incendiaries by the hundreds, following the houses. Several times I expected the house to come down on us. About eleven o'clock there was a terrific crash. We could hear many and glass falling. I let out my husband and flew up the cellar steps. My husband and I went to my room back until it had settled. I was above the din that it sounded like next door where a man, his wife and a daughter were sheltering under the stairs. I ran out into the yard and up the end, but found about to arrive to "complete the strength of the Imperial forces."

British insist
On their part British authorities insisted firmly that the Iraq-British treaty entitles Britain to maintain as many troops in Iraq as she considers necessary to keep the Empire communication lines open.

The treaty provides that Iraq must furnish Britain all assistance in her power to this end, including the use of air, railways, rivers, ports and airfields in the event of war or the danger of war.

At the same time Britain demanded the removal of the Iraq army concentrations from the vicinity of Basra. In the interim, the new British troops were disembarked at Basra without incident.

No estimate was available as to the size of the Iraqi troop concentration whose removal was demanded, but one source said it was not likely to be large by European standards because the country has only a small army.

The government of Iraq—known as Mesopotamia in the First Great War—was taken over by Premier Seyid Rashid el Galilani last month through a coup d'etat. Britain's momentary troops into Iraq followed quickly upon unofficial intimations that the London government regarded the coup d'etat as possibly Axis-inspired.

This morning's declaration today that Britain's position there is plain and there is no intention to retreat from it recalled Foreign Secretary Eden's recent assurance that the "kid gloves" policy in Iraq in diplomatic moves affecting the safety of the Empire.

Syria to be Nazi Base?
London observers said it was not clear just how Germany proposed to gain a Middle East foothold for a drive on Suez from the east, but they could not disregard the possibility that Syria will be made a Nazi base of operations.

They said there is nothing to keep the Nazis from trying to take Syria in protective custody" on the pretext of forestalling an attack from British forces in neighboring Iraq. Such a Nazi excuse would be similar to those Hitler used in entering Denmark and Norway.

They are widespread speculation as to whether Hitler will be able to ferry sufficient troops and equipment by air and water to Libya and Syria for successful operation of the Axis pincers.

But Britons have not forgotten that somehow the Axis took enough tanks and troops across the Mediterranean to rout British holding forces from Cyrenaica. Moreover, reports that United States supplies now will be consigned for the re-equipment of the Army of the Nile is interpreted as additional stimulus for quick German-Italian action in this area.

The Germans already are seizing Aegean islands south of the Dardanelles with considerable speed and have redoubled their raids on Malta in an apparent attempt to knock out that important British naval base in the middle of the Mediterranean.

While these preparations were being made for battle on the whole vast Mediterranean-Middle Eastern front, the Australian government announced that "advised" received showed clearly that the Germans had colossal losses in men and machines in Greece.

This morning the British Middle Eastern headquarters announced that 80 per cent of the expeditionary force, or some 48,000 men, had been withdrawn safely from the Balkan peninsula. About half the original force of 60,000 was from Australia and New Zealand, the rest from Britain.

The Greek government, it was stated, had concurred in opening the lines of communication for the previously landed force, but balked when told that more troops were

Queen's Canadian Funds News

The Queen's Canadian Fund for Air-Raid Victims collects money which is transmitted to the Lord Mayor of London for distribution through his National Air-Raid Distress Fund throughout the United Kingdom. Every sender's letter is sent without deduction. A Manchester woman's stirring letter is given here in which she offers a vivid impression of the terrible experiences that the people have to endure, and it shows in a telling way how urgently our help is needed in aid of the homeless.

"So I am writing to let you know that up to the present we were all right and I have not chins up. It has been pretty quiet and I never thought we should get through the second night of the 'blitz'. It was a nightmare and that night I thought I was ever first on the Sunday and we had all the windows blown in. It started at 6.15 in the evening and the planes were continually over and guns going until 7.15 next morning. I will tell you the story of the night. My wife could not get away from their place and lay on the floor behind the door until 2.15 with bombs dropping all around their district. Finally they made a dash for a shelter and were there until seven o'clock the next morning. "When the planes first came over and blew in all the windows, we were pretty sure they would come back on the Monday night, so we sent for Mother and Dad to come to our place to stay in the cellar for the night. At 7.30 it started again. It was dreadful. Our cellar walls rocked with the explosion of the bombs. The house began to rise several inches, and all the time every two minutes, wave after wave of bombers came over dropping incendiaries by the hundreds, following the houses. Several times I expected the house to come down on us. About eleven o'clock there was a terrific crash. We could hear many and glass falling. I let out my husband and flew up the cellar steps. My husband and I went to my room back until it had settled. I was above the din that it sounded like next door where a man, his wife and a daughter were sheltering under the stairs. I ran out into the yard and up the end, but found about to arrive to "complete the strength of the Imperial forces."

British insist
On their part British authorities insisted firmly that the Iraq-British treaty entitles Britain to maintain as many troops in Iraq as she considers necessary to keep the Empire communication lines open.

The treaty provides that Iraq must furnish Britain all assistance in her power
