A TRAVELLER recently returned from the Island to Halifax told the Merchant that he saw the heavy weight "Knights of the Grip" in a single store in Summerside one evening. The trio consisted of Harry Magee, who this traveller said "can talk hats and caps to beat three of a kind"; J. A. Murray, who appears to be as well known on the Island as he is in St. John; and T. T. Cartwright—"The Royal Yeast Commissioner"—as that gentleman is known was telling of the quantity of "Royal Yeast" which E. W. Gillett has shipped to South Africa for the use of the British army, and asking if that were not a new and Royal way to raise an army.

MARRIED.

DIED.

At Bradalbane, on the 7th of October, after a painful and lingering illness, which he bore with Christian resignation to the Divine will, Alexander McDonald, in the 68th year of his age. Deceased was an inoffensive upright man, who was much respected by those who knew him, a favorite among his neighbors and acquaintances from his youth up. He was, while health lasted, a regular worshipper in the Presbyterian church at Rose Valley, of which he was a loyal adherent. He leaves a widow, four sons and seven daughters, together with a wide circle of friends and relatives to mourn their loss. He died trusting in the merits of the Redeemer.

Relics from Olympia.

Portland, Me., Nov. 20 A Portland young man, who has been visiting in Boston, is proudly exhibiting a number of relics which he says he stole from Admiral Dewey's ship, the Olympia, since that vessel went out of commission. He evaded the watchman and made his way into the Admiral's quarters, he says, where he secured a metal socket from the post of Dewey's bunk and the electric button of which the Admiral directed the movements of the ship when entering the Manila Bay. In a drawer of the Admiral's desk the vandal found, standing upright against the back, where it had been overlooked, a letter to Dewey from Mrs. Hazen. This letter, its present holder brazenly brags, is the most valuable of his booty.
