The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPS

NEIL SUGGESTS THAT BARBARA LEAVE EARLY CHAPTER XCIX.

Of course I understood very little of what they discussed. I noticed however that not only Mrs. Orton but the other two women as well as the men seemed perfectly familiar with all the details. Occasionally the hostess would interrupt with some remark, and I noticed that whatever she said received attention. It was not so with the others. As I observed this I recalled what Frederick had said: they were invited to amuse and entertain men like Tearle and Connor. When the coffee was served the discussion had become quite heated. Mrs. Orton, Neil and Tearle talked fast and earnestly. She and Neil were trying to prove to Tearle that if he put up a large amount of money, his returns were bound to be enormous. I noticed that Frederick had not once joined in the conversation.

Finally we all rose from the table and adjourned to the drawing room where card tables had been placed while we were at dinner.

"Mrs. Forbes does not play," Neil's voice started me. I played an excellent game of bridge, but never had played poker, the game they intended to play.

"That is too bad! suppose we do not?"

"I will chat with Mrs. Forbes. You do not need me in the game," Mr. Frederick interrupted. He at once placed a chair for me some distance from the table, and sat himself near, asking permission to smoke. Then: "Why did you do it?"

"I had to," I did not pretend to misunderstand him. "I must find some way to help Neil—instead of having him come here," I spoke very low.

"You were very brave. I don't understand now you accomplished it."

"I will tell you some time. I will tell you how however that I never liked Mrs. Orton so well as I do tonight. She came to my aid wonderfully."

"She is a remarkable woman—in many ways," he returned slowly. Then for a few moments we did not speak. I noticed that both Neil and Mrs. Orton frequently glanced in my direction. Once I overheard one of the women say:

"It's stupid tonight!" and I knew she was referring to my presence. Frederick also had heard and commenced talking. After a few moments another remark was made, so palpably with me in mind that no one could mistake its meaning. I flushed, to my annoyance, then regained my composure as Neil said:

"As you don't play cards, Bab, why not play the piano." Then: "My wife is a finished musician," he added to no one in particular.

"Oh, do Mrs. Forbes! I haven't heard any really good music in ages," Mrs. Orton urged.

I immediately went to the piano. I played gay little airs which I thought would be appreciated. Then at Neil's request more serious music, and music in which I always lost myself. For over an hour I played, then turned around to see Neil get up from the table and stagger toward me. I knew he had been drinking too much wine, yet I was totally unprepared for what followed.

"Go on home now, Bab. You're a good girl all right! I won't have you coming here. Blanche is all right too, she's a brick. But she knows about things, and you don't."

"But I can learn, Neil," I said in a trembling voice, laying my hand on his arm, and not observing Mrs. Orton who had come up behind him. "If I go home will you come with me? Please do, dear."

"Of course he will there is nothing more to be done with Tearle tonight," she whispered. "If there is I can manage him better than you can. You run along with Mrs. Forbes. And thank you for coming to me tonight," she extended her hand to me. "I have been very glad and proud to have you," she looked me steadily in the eyes as she spoke. I knew she meant me to know she admired me for my action.

The Basis of the Nation's Wealth

Real Estate is the basis of the Nation's Wealth. It produces that which both man and beast have to sustain life. With our rapidly increasing population comes the demand for a corresponding increase in the products of the soil, and this demand will never be less than now. Land cannot be destroyed, and with proper care its producing power may be maintained intact. Land values, therefore, possess that element of permanency that reduces the speculative feature to the minimum.

This corporation borrowed funds (Deposits and Debentures), and by far the greater proportion of the shareholders' moneys (Capital Stock and Reserve) are invested in first mortgages on improved productive real estate. To afford an opportunity to all of investing their money with such absolute safety, we issue our Debentures, in sums of one hundred dollars. They are a security in which trustees are authorized to invest Trust Funds.

"I will run along also if you will excuse me," Frederick said. "I have a taxi waiting outside. I will take you home if I may," he turned to Neil.

Long afterwards I found out that he had the taxi wait sure I intended to be there, and fearing a scene, had planned to get me away.

Neil accepted his offer rather ungraciously. He did not want to leave, and showed it plainly. But Mrs. Orton insisted that he accompany me, and that she did not need him.

Tomorrow—Neil forbids Barbara to go to Mrs. Orton's party's.
