A NEW DISCOVERY FOR THOSE SUFFERING FROM DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

Experiments and experience bring forth new lights on old subjects, and what was looked upon as the best possible last year, is surpassed to-day. Excitement High As Ghost Visits Indian Hospital

POONA, India, Oct. 3.—(By The Canadian Press)—For almost a month now a "black ghost" is said to have been haunting the Maternity Ward of the Sassoon Hospital, terrorizing the staff and actually preventing patients from coming to the ward. One morning a man with the appearance of a Fakir but dressed in white, was taken into custody in the compound. The authorities are now wondering whether the "black ghost" has been laid low by the arrest of the man in white.

The Sassoon Hospital has little or no protection round it and the Indian Maternity Ward is isolated from the rest of the Hospital. The first alarm was about a month ago, when one of the nurses saw behind the trellis a black form loom out of the darkness and, as the nurse stood rooted to the spot, it chattered like a monkey and moved towards her. She immediately fled. The following night a nurse was passing along the verandah when a hand shot through the trellis work and grabbed her sari. Again the black figure was seen sneaking out of the hedges, making a peculiar hissing noise. Next, a nurse was clutched by the hand and was only released when she shrieked for help.

There came a night, however, when a male figure clad in black actually passed through the doors leading on the verandah and entered the precincts of the maternity ward. Approaching a patient in a bed he demanded of her in Mah-jari, "What are you doing here? Have you taken your medicine?" and words to that effect. The woman had no doubts as to her right in the Ward and told him in no uncertain manner that he had no business coming into a maternity ward in the middle of the night. She did not say it quietly, and the alarm raised, the intruder made off. A search made for him in the hedges by the medical staff armed with hockey sticks proved futile.

Early one morning the European Sister was leaving for her quarters when the black figure appeared and waved its arms wildly at her. She knew then that it was no ghost but something of flesh and blood but apparently with a peculiar kink.

The nerve of some of the nurses was being strained to the utmost. One of them spotted a buffalo grazing peacefully in the compound. "There's the ghost!" she shrieked and the tension was greatly relieved when the amusing mistake was discovered.

Night after night passed until at three o'clock one recent morning when through the still air there rang out the cry, "There's the ghost!" Immediately there was a rush of police and staff and a Fakir was pounced upon. Simultaneously, an alarm was raised from the nurses' quarters. A man had entered the quarters and ransacked an empty bedroom. Then, he tried the next bedroom where a nurse was in bed but awake. She screamed and the man dashed into the next bedroom. Not being chased, he lifted the mosquito net round the bed on which another nurse was asleep. The movement awakened her and she too screamed. The man rushed out of the building and it is surmised that it was he who was taken by the police.

Detained and questioned by the police, this Fakir said that he had only just come from Bombay, being ill, he determined to go to the Hospital for medicine and he found himself wandering in the Maternity Ward compound when he was arrested.

Whether the eerie evenings will cease with the arrest of the white garbed man is now the big question. Time will tell.

A NAME TO BE PROUD OF.—The name Bluenose, while obscure in its origin and used first possibly in a sort of patronizing way by New Englanders to identify the people of the Maritimes, has come in these days to be a name of which the Maritime Provinces people are proud. This has been the history of many terms once opprobrious. However, the name Bluenose stands well to-day. It is associated with high personal qualities. We are proud of Bluenose brains, of Bluenose sailor men, and what not. The firm of J. E. Morse & Company, Canada's oldest tea firm, are also proud of their Bluenose tea, which represents a great success in combining good flavor and dependable quality in tea at the very reasonable price of 35 cents per pound package. At this price MORSE'S BLUENOSE TEA is of equal or perhaps superior quality to any of the 40-cent package teas so extensively advertised.

Africa Is Keen For Fast Mails

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(By The Canadian Press)—The fact that the inward air mail from Africa is now heavier each week than the outgoing mail from Britain is revealed by statistics just available. "About 14,000 letters a week reach London by the inward mails," said an Imperial Airways official in an interview, "while the outgoing mail amounts, on an average, to about 12,000 letters a week."

"Not long ago, figures showed that the heavier mailloads were on the services outward from Britain."

"One explanation perhaps is the growing enthusiasm with which African business houses are adopting the air mail. Firms overseas seem, as a rule, to be quicker to grasp the possibilities of the air mail than firms here at home."

The schedule of the African air-mail is as follows:

Leaving London airport on Wednesday evenings letters are in Cairo on Saturday and at Khartoum on the Monday, after which Nairobi is reached on Wednesday, Broken Hill and Salisbury on Friday, Johannesburg on Saturday, and Capetown on Sunday—11 days after leaving London.

It costs only five pence to send a half-ounce letter from England to Sudan and one shilling to send one to South Africa. A post card can be sent by the African air mail to Kenya or Uganda for three pence and to South Africa for five pence.

Electric heating and cooking apparatus, the imported article, comes almost entirely from the United States. The August imports were United States $8,183, United Kingdom $9.

In connection with the teachers' convention held in O'Leary recently we understand that the group was afterwards "snapped" by the local photographer Mr. Martin Griffin. The writer has in his possession a group by the same photographer of the first teachers' convention held in O'Leary—31 years ago. Included also are a number of prominent residents of the O'Leary of that day, H. W. Turner, Dr. G. P. McDougall, Arthur McNeill, Wilfred McDonald, druggist, and Alfred Adams. Among the educators of that day we see Dr. Alex. Anderson, L. D., then Superintendent of Education, and Inspector McIntyre. There are also Charles Kelly and "Fos" White, and sitting between them at the feet of Dr. Anderson we see the future Minister of Health and Education, W. J. P. MacMillan, with a view even then to "Health" as well as "Education," clothed in a warm overcoat though the ladies in shirt-waists and straw hats. In the back ground is Prof. James Ready, and last though not least, "Big Jim" Pendergast. There are many others whose faces seem familiar, but whose names we cannot recall, for the passing of the years brings many changes.

The following is the address which was read by Miss Pauline Murphy:

"Dear Eileen: "We have gathered tonight to say good bye. Some of us may see you soon again, others may not see you for many years; but each and every one of us will always carry with us the memory of a bright smile that never failed to cheer, and of a charming personality, which certainly made this old world a much more pleasant place in which to live. We will miss you Eileen, and we want you to know that our thoughts will linger on and our memories cherish the many pleasant days we spent together. We know that in your chosen profession your happy ways and generous nature will win you many new and steadfast friends, but you will never forget those you have left behind. Illustrating the pacific nature of his countrymen, Professor de Champ said: "We do not even have any of the physical culture societies in France. Military drill is not taught in our schools at all. We used to have some sort of cadet system, but it died out 20 years ago."

While they may harbor national suspicions, Frenchmen and Germans meet on the best of terms as individuals, a refreshing aspect of the situation. According to Baron de Champ, "Our Premier has yielded to Germany, point by point. If Germany is to pay no more, we are willing to let it go at that. But we want her to keep quiet. The ghost of war must not keep stalking."

"We know quite well that this Hitler is a dangerous fellow. But because we want peace we are just sitting back, watching, and hoping that no trouble will start."

Illustrating the pacific nature of his countrymen, Professor de Champ said: "We do not even have any of the physical culture societies in France. Military drill is not taught in our schools at all. We used to have some sort of cadet system, but it died out 20 years ago."

France Peaceful But Ever Wary Of Aggressions

TORONTO, Oct. 3.—(By The Canadian Press)—"Where in France is the fool to be found who would like to start the war again before his own house is threatened? You cannot find him. France is not at all militaristic at the present time. Any apparently warlike gestures she makes are solely for the purpose of avoiding a new aggression on the part of Germany."

This was the plea made on behalf of France by Baron St. Elme de Champ, popular French professor of the University of Toronto when he returned to the campus recently from a sixteen month visit to France. Of stately bearing with a long aristocratic and bearded face, the Baron was greeted by his many old colleagues and students with much joy for he is one of the most popular of professors.

A Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, for the excellent services he has given to France, and one who is known generally as an "unofficial statesman," the French professor is aided by his knowledge of the Canadian point of view and his plea for pacific relations between France and Canada was heard with interested ears.

"There never was a more complete lack of warlike spirit in France than at the present time, he declared. The whole-hearted wish of the French people is for the retention of peace and for the complete abolition of war. French women hate war beyond words. There are few French homes where someone is not missing, killed in the last war."

The attitude of France at the present time is one of reason, ac-

death in the P. E. I. Hospital on Sept. 20 of Mr. Marshall Matheson, at the age of twenty five years, after an illness of only short duration. He will be missed in the social life of the Community, where he was a general favorite, and where he made many friends by his sunny disposition and good nature. The sympathy of many friends goes to the bereaved parents and family in their sad loss.

Potato digging is in full swing now in the country districts, and the prevailing good weather favors the farmers at this time. The crop is generally reported to be lighter than last year in most districts, although some report exceptionally good yields—E.

While they may harbor national suspicions, Frenchmen and Germans meet on the best of terms as individuals, a refreshing aspect of the situation. "Meeting on trains, in the streets of Paris, there is no feeling of ill will against German travellers," he said. "Last winter the French Riviera was full of Germans."
