Reddin, Henry Smith, Gordon Worth, Hon. F. R. Hearz, Dr. H. Houston, J. B. Matthews, Dr. H. D. Johnson, Samuel Tuplin, A. E. Morrison, V. C. Smallwood, Jos. Duncan. Members of the Caledonian Club, of which the deceased was a Past President, attended in plaid and bonnet. The members of the Session of Trinity Church also attended the funeral in a body. Interment was in People's Cemetery, service at the grave being conducted by Rev. Hugh Miller and Rev. J. W. Barbour. Rev. Hugh Miller paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of Mr. Paton. "His word was never doubted, his honour never besmirched," said the speaker. The large number of people present at the service bears testimony to Mr. Paton's worth as a citizen. "I knew him only for a year and a half," said the speaker, "but I was impressed by his transparency of soul, the directness of his approach, by his physical and mental energy. The various services which he performed for the community were not done for self glory, nor for public favour, but for his joy for public service. They were an expression of his faith and devotion." Rev. Mr. Miller also spoke of Mr. Paton's activities on behalf of the church, and made special mention of his labour of love on behalf of the Prince Edward Island Hospital. His home life was also fittingly referred to.

Stevens Trains Guns On Que. Premier

HEBRBROOKE, Que., Sept. 19.—Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction Party leader, turned his guns on Premier James Taschereau of Quebec here tonight. Asserting "Premier Taschereau is not a Liberal—he is a Tory," Mr. Stevens challenged the Quebec Premier Minister to ask "his friends on St. James Street" for agricultural credit.

"Mr. Taschereau says one thing he needs more credit for farmers. I agree with him." But why did not Mr. Taschereau do something about it? "Mr. Taschereau is a great man. All his friends tell me for him. The financiers there are his friends. He's been a mighty good friend to them. He has befriended them and served them well. Let him go to his friends in the banks and insurance companies and tell them he could have done it six years ago," Mr. Stevens declared.

Amendment to the Bank Act so interest rates would be lowered was advocated by the Reconstruction Party leader. "They must be lower or people can't survive." In a sentence the Reconstruction Party leader summarized his position on the tariff. "Where an industry gets protection in this country it shall pass that protection on to its workers." He denied his policy of easier credit and increased currency issue would prove anything but beneficial. Hon. C. H. Cahon, Secretary of State, had said it would lead to reduction of wages, wiping out of savings and cancelling of insurance.

Canada's Interests Synonymous With Bennett Policies

live long or I may not, but no matter how long I may live I can never hope to get a greater welcome than that which you accorded me when I arrived here yesterday. It had been a "badge of great honor" to be regarded in many places as "Bennett of Calgary." He would ask only a careful study of the issues before the electorate and the exercise of "fair play." He appreciated the interest being displayed by the people in public affairs. "If democracy has failed, it is because we have not given to the problems that faced us the attention they deserved." Mr. Bennett entered upon a review of the government's performance in the past five years. Coal subventions increased from $65,000 in 1928 to $2,123,991 in 1934. Last year they had given employment to 4,200 men only for 214 days.

CALGARY, Sept. 19.—A vote in the general election was a vote for Canada, not for the interest of one province alone, and provincial issues should not enter into the electors' choice, Prime Minister Bennett today told the Conservative convention which unanimously selected him as candidate for Calgary West in the forthcoming election. "There are some things the province can deal with," Mr. Bennett said. "Democracy has spoken in this province and the people got the government they wanted. Alright, give that government a chance. If the people are not satisfied they can turn it out."

"I want you to remember, when you ask people to vote in this election, that their vote is not for Alberta, not for Social Credit, but a vote affecting the life of every citizen in every province of Canada." Mr. Bennett's was the only name to go before the open convention. Mayor Andrew Davison, who is Conservative candidate in Bow River, addressed the meeting. William Parslow, who came to Calgary in 1888 and has been associated with Mr. Bennett since the latter came to Calgary in 1897, moved the nomination which was seconded by Mrs. Murray Lister.

Strong forces were arrayed against the government, Mr. Bennett told the party delegates. "But I am sure that with hard work we will achieve success." Explaining that his duties would not allow him to go among the electors of his own riding as he would desire, Mr. Bennett said he hoped they would return him to Parliament. "I admit frankly," the Prime Minister said, "I would hate to think that nearing the end of a long career, I would be rejected by those among whom I have lived, struggled and toiled so many years." Being Prime Minister was secondary to representing his constituency. The former was the automatic elevation of the leader of a party successful at the polls; the latter came from the "confidence, fellowship and goodwill of the men and women with whom I have so long been associated."

He had worked hard in the 37 years since he first came to Calgary and had some failures mingled with successes "far beyond my due." Sometimes, he said, "I wonder why I should continue in the service I have been carrying on. The temptation not to do so has sometimes been strong, particularly early this year when I was laid aside because of trouble with my heart. I had practically concluded my days of hard work were over. "But there are obligations that cannot be easily cast aside or forgotten. I felt I could not let my party down and that I still had something to contribute. So here I am. You gave me my place. To you I owe it. Only you can take it from me."

"He would be a poor man who would not feel a sense of obligation after such a reception as that given me yesterday by my fellow-citizens when I arrived in Calgary. One of my greatest sources of satisfaction in life is that I have been able to serve my country during the years of its greatest peril." Referring to his efforts to do something for the people of his own riding Mr. Bennett spoke of the opposition criticism aimed at his construction of a barracks for the permanent forces now under way in Calgary west.

"I am amazed," Mr. Bennett said, "that the leader of a great party would describe those barracks as preparation for the setting up of a police force to aid me in establishing a dictatorship. Politics have fallen to a pretty low level when they have to descend to such methods to secure votes." The barracks would not increase the forces but would provide quarters for those already serving. Discussing charges he aimed at a dictatorship Mr. Bennett declared no act of his government in the last five years had failed to secure the endorsement of Parliament. "But the Liberals were in power nine years without a majority. Perhaps that is the reason Mr. King is so anxious to secure a majority this time."

During the last five years the government had placed legislation on the statute books of Canada unrivalled by any British Parliament in the same length of time. Liberal leader Mackenzie King would like to make it appear that Mr. Bennett had caused the depression, the Prime Minister continued. "He would seem to think that there had been no depression anywhere else. I ask you who have listened to him or read the paper if you could take any other meaning from his speeches. I tell you nothing was ever more universal than this depression."

Speaking of references by election speakers to "a gang down east" who are sitting up nights contriving methods of keeping you people in the west from getting your hands on a dollar," Mr. Bennett asked: "Where do you think the money came from that we have advanced to these western provinces?" In all the five years he had been in office there has never been a "kindly word or a helpful suggestion" from the Liberal party. Liberals had voted for the social legislation but had attacked its constitutionality. "But with everything else Mr. King was up on his feet with a book in his hand, warning that we were usurping the right of Parliament."

Mr. Bennett's was the only name to go before the open convention. Mayor Andrew Davison, who is Conservative candidate in Bow River, addressed the meeting. William Parslow, who came to Calgary in 1888 and has been associated with Mr. Bennett since the latter came to Calgary in 1897, moved the nomination which was seconded by Mrs. Murray Lister. De Madariaga said Aloisi had several telephone conversations with Mussolini since yesterday. He told the committee he believed Ethiopia would accept the plan. But he added he did not know what Italy will do. (The Havas agency, in an Addis Ababa dispatch, said it had learned reliably that Ethiopia would accept the committee's plan.) Delegates considered it significant that Aloisi had rejected outright the committee's suggestions when he received the text. Instead he conferred frequently with Mussolini.

Y'S MEN'S CLUB MEETING

The first regular meeting of the Y's Men's Club this season was held last night. The meeting was devoted principally to business. Plans for a rummage sale, a dance and a picture which the Club is to sponsor were discussed. Mr. E. E. Clawson, Maritime District Governor, gave a short talk. Professor R. S. Hayward and Donald MacLean were guests at last night's meeting. The President Neil McLean presided.

B. I. S. MONTHLY MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Benevolent Irish Society was held on Thursday evening, Sept. 12, with the president, John Callaghan in the chair. The attendance was the largest for some time. The reports of the different committees were submitted and showed commendable improvement in the last few months. From the large number of members enrolled it is evident that the Society is making steady progress. The most important recent departure has been the introduction of a new system of roll-call and a new arrangement for the payment of dues. This has been the work of the new executive and was a reform that was needed for a number of years. As there was no further business, on motion of Rev. P. McMillan, seconded by Brother Downing, the meeting adjourned.

PERSONALS

Messrs. Theo. Ling and William Ross left yesterday by motor for Timmins, Ontario. Mr. S. Towns, of the Board of Railway Commissioners, Ottawa, arrived in Charlottetown last night. He is on a regular routine trip. Mrs. Stephen Richards of Sydney, Cape Breton, who has been visiting relatives on the island, left for her home this morning, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Campbell and little daughter Shirley. Miss Ruby MacDougall, Charlottetown, has returned home after a very pleasant motor trip to Montreal and Boston.

Italian Press Is Hostile To British Naval Measures

GENEVA, Sept. 19.—A lull fell today on the negotiations at Geneva for peace between Italy and Ethiopia. The League of Nations five-power committee met this afternoon. Chairman Salvador De Madariaga of Spain reported the peace terms drawn up by the committee had been submitted both to Italy and Ethiopia. Replies were now awaited. The atmosphere was far from optimistic. The rumor that Baron Pompeo Aloisi, heading the Italian delegation, would personally take the terms to Rome for perusal by Benito Mussolini created a ray of hope that Italy would reconsider her attitude. But Aloisi was not aboard the afternoon train for Rome.

Aloisi Confers With Duce

De Madariaga said Aloisi had several telephone conversations with Mussolini since yesterday. He told the committee he believed Ethiopia would accept the plan. But he added he did not know what Italy will do. (The Havas agency, in an Addis Ababa dispatch, said it had learned reliably that Ethiopia would accept the committee's plan.) Delegates considered it significant that Aloisi had rejected outright the committee's suggestions when he received the text. Instead he conferred frequently with Mussolini.

BRITISH FLEET MOVEMENTS

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(C.P. Cable)—Arrival of the light cruiser Ajax at Gibraltar from the West Indies, and of an aircraft carrier with three destroyers at Singapore from China station, were disclosed in the Admiralty list tonight as the Italian press renewed its attacks on Britain for her intervention in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. The Admiralty list shows British forces in the Mediterranean disposed about the Atlantic gateway and the entrance to the Suez Canal. Additions to the regular Mediterranean forces remained at two battle-cruisers, four cruisers, two destroyer flotillas and some auxiliary craft. The list follows: ALEXANDRIA: The battleship Resolution, Commander-in-Chief Sir William Fisher, arrived yesterday; also in port: the battleships Revenge and Valiant; the aircraft carriers Courageous and Glorious; the heavy cruisers Devonshire, Shropshire and London; the destroyers Comus, Crusader, Kempenfelt, Crescent, Signet, Sea-cher, Antelope, Basilisk, Boreas, Bulldog, Ardent, Acasta, Eadcliffe and Anthony; the flotilla leader Keith; the minesweepers Halcyon, Harrier, Skipjack and Hussar; repair ship Resource, hospital ship Maine, depot ship Woolwich.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 19.—Emperor Haile Selassie today held a regular inspection of the feudal lords, chieftains and soldiers who are to serve him in the event of war.

He made the military examination after a long and detailed study of the still secret proposal of the League of Nations committee of five.

The compromise, received late yesterday, elicited no authoritative statement concerning the Emperor's attitude but the general impression was that some of the terms were regarded as acceptable.

While he and his advisers studied the documents many rumors were circulated regarding its contents. It was reported by unofficial sources that a proposal for Great Britain and France to cede territory on the Somali coast to Ethiopia in return for concessions was considered as offering the basis for negotiations.

Dr. MacDonald censured Dr. Grant for his action with regard to old age pensions in 1927. During the last election these gentlemen made a political football of pensions, and got many votes, the speaker said.

Regarding Dr. Grant's activities as to soldiers' pensions, Dr. MacDonald said: "I have heard many cases in which he provided that if he were elected, he would procure a pension. If he were elected, his election could be contested, and he could be unseated."

"Dr. Grant has raked up every soldier in this country and has got them discontented with regard to pensions," Dr. MacDonald stated. An attempt had been made by formation of a commission to keep soldiers' pensions out of politics. "I think it is criminal to make a political football out of the matter of the speaker declared. Radical changes were necessary to the pension legislation, he believed.

Dr. MacDonald spoke of the proposed reforms of the Government. The reform measures already carried out indicated the sincerity of the Government, he pointed out to the audience the great energy of the classes of 1901 to 1914, inclusive, who had been rejected for military service. Military circles estimated 1,000,000 men are involved, with nearly that number already in service.

The present international situation was likened by the newspaper II Tevere to conditions preceding the Great War.

"When the atmosphere is surcharged with electricity" it said in attacking movements of the British fleet, "mobilization is sufficient to start a fire. All these British naval forces concentrated in the Mediterranean do not respond to any conceivable necessity. "As for the political aspects of the situation, it would not be possible to emphasize more unhappily an Italo-Phobia such as that shown by the conduct of the British government."

ROME, Sept. 19.—(A.P.)—Italy shifted a submarine flotilla from the northern Adriatic to the Tyrrhenian Sea today, the Italian press attacked British naval movements and declared Britain "wants war."

Naples despatches reported the arrival from Trieste of 12 submarines.

Referring to British fleet operations, the authoritative Giornale D'Italia "there is already an open menace. There is one more step, a deliberate wish for conflict. "While everything possible is being done to encourage the intransigence and insolence of Ethiopia against Italy, no means have been left untried for offending the rights, dignity and national honor of Italy."

Government spokesmen reiterated that if press reports of the Geneva five-power plan for settlement are correct the project is unacceptable to Italy. It will be placed before the cabinet Saturday for action.

As preparations for war went forward a Royal decree called for new physical examinations of men

WHAT WOULD YOU THINK?

AS an intelligent person what would be your reaction if you knew of friend after friend who, after being many years below par or miserable with chronic disease, had changed their living habits from the hap-hazard habits of civilization to habits along well-thought-out lines and became models of physical perfection and perfect health? Would you not wonder it made light of it? You could not and be intelligent, could you?

Well, if you live in a community where the "Philosophy of Natural Health Through Natural Living Habits" is understood, where my books which teach it and my foods, Roman Meal, Bekus-Puddy, Lishus and Kofy-Sub, which make it easy to live that philosophy, are known, you will easily find many such persons. Thousands upon thousands have come back to exuberant, exultant, excited health through these means.

and devotion which Mr. Bennett had put into his labours for Canada.

Hon. J. P. MacIntyre stated that his throat condition did not permit him to make a speech. He thanked the audience for the support given him personally. By illustrating with building contracts, he attempted to prove what Premier Gardiner had denied at Montague.

Blames Policy

Premier LeA said it was the first time he had addressed the electors since July 23. He reviewed what he believed were the causes of the depression. It was useless for the Conservative speakers to try the subtle responsibility to some cause other than their policy. The policy of high protection aggravated unemployment, he said.

Conservative speakers had tried to blame the Liberal party for not having made an agreement with the United States between 1921 and 1930. It was impossible because the treaty had not been made in 1911, the speaker believed. Since 1930, fifty trade treaties had been cancelled. He discussed New Zealand butter. What brought on the depression was that all countries raised tariffs higher and higher. Merchants, he said, were all tax gatherers for the Bennett government.

Refuted Statements

Senator MacDonald expressed amazement at the statements of Dr. Grant regarding the statement as to the sixty million dollars alleged to have been loaned to the C. P. R., he pointed out that in order to avoid the necessity of the C. P. R. selling 100 million dollars worth of bonds for 60 millions, the government had given a letter of credit. The government had never put up a cent and the C. P. R. had sold their bonds later at 96. Mr. Bennett did not promise a highway to Souris and Tignish. He promised to connect up the capitals, the speaker pointed out.

He proceeded to discuss the highway question in some detail. Senator MacDonald answered Dr. Grant's statement regarding stranding people in Sydney by building it as false.

The Marketing Act was not a piece of dictatorship as Dr. Grant knew it. It was with the farmers themselves as to whether they put the act into force or not.

Because Mr. Bennett had carried out a policy which had been in operation for five years in loaning money to the western provinces, Dr. Grant tried to make his hearers believe that Mr. Ahrhart bought Mr. Bennett.

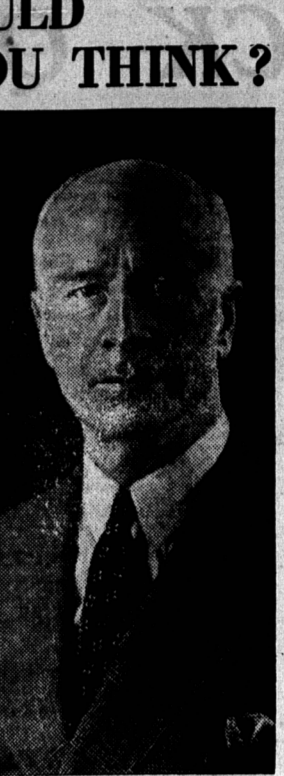

It was the third meeting at which Dr. Grant had brought up the matter of the Gardiner Wharf. "I never owned a wharf. I never had any obligation to repair a wharf. There was a government wharf in Gardigan, but another wharf was a more convenient wharf to repair and it was taken over. When Dr. Grant makes that statement he is making an absolutely false statement, as I had never anything to do with the wharf."

Regarding the Liberal political works programme the Senator asked: "Where is the money going to come from?"

During the last five years of the King Government all the large combines in Canada were formed. Senator MacDonald said in answer to Dr. Grant's questions regarding combines. The King Government had failed to heed the warning given by Mr. Bennett in 1928. In 1929 the depression occurred.

In answering the Liberal arguments as to tariffs the Senator concluded with these words: "They must be trying to mislead you when they tell you these tariffs against Canada wait on after the Bennett Government came into power. By all means criticise the government for its weaknesses, but do not trump up something for which it is not guilty. Do not criticise it for things that occurred before it went into power."

Senator MacDonald answered the statements of Dr. Grant with regard to the Cuban potato trade. It was fortunate that Canada had a man of the calibre of Mr. Bennett at the head of affairs, the Senator stated, and pointed out the firm manner in which the Prime Minister handled the bigger interests. Dr. Grant had said that pensions were reduced. It was probable that the pensions would decrease more in the future, as the number of pensioners became less. Mr. D. J. Mullin asked that a little more attention be given to economic reform, and spoke favourably of the Social Credit system. In rebuttal Dr. Grant said that the United States did not wish to reduce tariffs after the war. He discussed the West Indies Trade Treaty.

Former Liberal Supports The Conservatives

YARMOOUTH, N. S. Sept. 19.—R. W. E. Landry, K. C., former Liberal member of the Nova Scotia Legislature, tonight accepted nomination as Conservative with a view to contesting the constituency of Shelburne-Yarmouth-Clare in the Dominion elections.

He had said that other countries had retaliated against Bennett tariffs. Mr. H. H. Cox also spoke. While his assistants spoke, Dr. Grant gave the cue to his followers in the audience as to when to applaud.
