CHAPTER I
THE WANDER-FEVER

The man's eyes clouded.
 "You're not entirely English," he said in a low voice.
 Jean knew from what memory the quick correction sprang. Her mother, the beautiful opera singer who had been the one romance of Glyn Peterson's life, had been of French extraction.
 "I know," she returned soberly.
 "Yet I think 'm mostly conscious of being English. I believe it's just the very fact that I know Paris—Rome—Vienna—so well, and nothing at all about England that makes me feel more absolutely English than anything else."
 A spark of amusement lit itself in Peterson's eyes.
 "How truly feminine!" he commented drily.
 Jean nodded.
 "I'm afraid it's rather illogical of me."
 Her father blew a thing stream of smoke into the air.
 "Thank God for it!" he replied lightly. "It's the cursed contradictories of your sex that makes it so enchanting. If women were logical they would be as obvious and boring as the average man." He relapsed into a dreaming silence. Jean broke in rather heatingly.
 "You've never suggested taking me to England before." His face darkened suddenly. It was an extraordinarily expressive face—expressive as a child's, reflecting every shade of his constant changes of mood.
 "There's no sense of adventure about England," he said shortly.
 "It's a dull corner of the world—twisting with the proprieties." Jean realised how very completely, from his own point of view, he had answered her. Romance, beauty, the sheer delight of utter freedom from the conventions were as the breath of his nostrils to Glyn Peterson.

Born to the purple, as it were, of an old English county family, he had stifled in the conventional atmosphere of his upbringing. There had been sedulously checked and bitter outbursts against the established order of things, but these had been sedulously checked and discouraged by his father, a man of iron will, who took himself and his position intensely seriously.
 Ultimately, Glyn had come to accept with more or less philosophy the fact of his heirship to old estates and old traditions, with their inevitable responsibilities and claims, and he was just preparing to fulfil his parents' wishes by marrying, suitably and conventionally, when Jacqueline Mayov, the beautiful half-French opera singer, had flashed into his horizon.
 In a moment the world was transformed. Artist soul called to artist soul; the romantic vein in the man so long checked and thwarted, suddenly asserted itself irresistibly, and the very day before that appointed for his wedding he and Jacqueline ran away together in search of happiness.

And they had found it. The "County" had been shocked; Glyn's father, unbending descendant of the old Scottish Covenanters, his whole creed outraged had broken under the blow; but the runaway lovers had found what they sought.
 At Bernefs, a beautiful old schloss on the eastern border of Austria, remote from the world and surrounded by forest-clad hills, Glyn Peterson and Jacqueline had lived a romantically happy existence roaming the world whenever the wander-fever seized them, but always returning to Schloss Beirnefs, where Peterson had contrived a background of almost exotic richness for the adored woman who had flung her career to the winds in order to become his wife.
 The birth of Jean, two years after their marriage, had been frankly rejoiced by both of them as an inconvenience. It interrupted their idyll. They were so essentially lovers that no third—not even a third born of love's consummation could be other than superfluous.
 (To Be Continued)

Some people are always up and doing—other people!

Her tone held the same incredulous excitement that anyone unexpectedly invited to week-end at El Dorado might be expected to evince.
 "England! Glyn, do you really mean to take me there at last?"
 "You'd like to go then?" A keen observer might have noticed a shade of relief pass over Peterson's face.
 "Like it? It seems so ridiculous to be an Englishwoman and yet never once to have set foot in England."

New Glasgow

Mrs. Gutherie Ballingall and Et-tle daughter Hazel, of Charlottetown, are at present the welcome guests of Mrs. Ballingall's mother, Mrs. Benj. Houston.

Miss Evelyn Anderson, Stanley Bridge, was a visitor to New Glasgow Saturday and attended the hockey match.

The New Glasgow Imperials drove to Stanley Bridge Friday evening last to play the Dairy Kings a friendly game of hockey.
 The first period both teams played fast and after about six minutes of play, Harold Stevenson scored for the Imperials and in the second period Louis Mabey also scored for the Imperials. Shortly after Stanley Coles shot for the Dairy Kings. The third period numerous shots missed the net and both goals prevented any scoring.
 The game ended 2-1 in favor of the Imperials. Mr. Wilbur McKay refereed the game. On account of the uncertainty of the weather for open air rinks at this late season the Stanley Bridge Dairy Kings were obliged to play their return game the following Saturday evening and turned the tide by taking the honors by one score. This was a hard fought game but no penalties handed out for rough play.
 The Dairy Kings only score was shot by Elmer Hamilton in the second period. The first and third periods were scoreless. Mr. George Clark was the referee for the return game. The line-ups: Dairy Kings—Goal, Elmer McKay. Wings—Stanley Coles and Elmer Hamilton. Centre, Elmer Pyfe. Defence—Gordon Pyfe, Harvey Williams Imperials—Goal, Mervyn Bulman Wings, Edwin Stevenson and Harold Stevenson. Centre, Revill Dick-leson. Defence, Harold Dickleson and Kenneth Stevenson.

Mr. Chas. Todd, Bradalbane, was a visitor to Glen Valley last week.

Mr. Leslie Weeks, the obliging miller at Elliotts is busy hauling and preparing lumber to erect an up-to-date bungalow at Elliotts this summer.

Miss Annie Weir, Charlottetown is the guest of Miss Alma Houston.

Mr. Alder Dickleson spent the week-end visiting friends in Charlottetown.

Mrs. Herbert Smith, Wheatley River, was a Sunday visitor to New Glasgow, the guest of Mrs. Eldon McKay.—N.

"Bluenose" Still
Going Strong

(Special To Guardian)
SAINT JOHN N. B. Mar. 3— Treating with disdain any suggestion that the famous champion fishing schooner "Bluenose" of the Lunenburg N. S. fishing fleet has reached the end of her career, Captain Angus J. Walters, her redoubtable skipper, remarked "she's got at least ten years of racing ahead of her" as he stepped off the Canadian National Railways train here. The list which the famous champion sustained when she ran aground a reef off the Newfoundland coast two years ago, he stated, will be eliminated this year.
 "We're going to run her up on the slip and adjust her hull and then place new spars in her" Captain Walters stated. He scoffed at the old superstition prevalent among seamen that when a ship is once altered she loses her sailing powers.
 It is not expected that the "Bluenose" will go to the grand banks this year owing to a falling off in the demand for fish.

MR. ROMANDUS P. MACINTYRE

 MacIntyre who died at the St.
 Louis Hospital, Sunday morning at 4 o'clock, the city of Berlin, New Hampshire, as well as the family suffers a loss. News of his death was a genuine shock to everyone as he was ill only six days. He was Sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion depend on good health.

 The beautiful woman guards against constipation. She knows this condition can cause headache, sallow skin, dull eyes, pimples, premature aging.
 Protect yourself from constipation by eating a delicious cereal.
 Tests show Kellogg's All-Bran provides "bulk" to exercise the intestinal tract. In addition, All-Bran furnishes blood-building iron.
 The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. It is much safer than pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.
 Two tablespoonsful daily—in serious cases, with every meal—will correct most types of constipation. If your trouble is not relieved in this way, see your doctor.
 Serve as a cereal with milk or cream or use in cooking.
