In August a Blue Cord Diploma Guiders' Conference was held. Mrs. Oudmore attended. Mrs. Oudmore is to be our speaker this afternoon and she will give you her impressions of the Conference. This year again it was my privilege to attend the Dominion Annual Meeting of the Girl Guides Association in Toronto arranged to finance their trip. I think the remark made by Mrs. Hertzberg, Ontario Commissioner at the close of the 4 days meetings expressed all our sentiments: "I don't think any of us ever received more from an Annual Meeting than we have from this. It was a very pleasant and much more convenient. The Annual Meeting proper was held May 30-31 consisting of routine business such as reports and greetings, elections and resolutions. Three outstanding things on the Agenda 1. A message from Princess Alice, part of which I hope to give you later. 2. The installing of Mrs. Corbett as Chief Commissioner for three years, in place of Miss Kydd who had resigned on account of illness. Mrs. Corbett as Deputy Chief was acting as Chairman of the Meeting. Mrs. H. D. Warren, Honorary Vice-President, in the absence of Princess Alice presented Mrs. Corbett with her warrant. 3. A talk on Community Organization by Mrs. Lancel Scott of Wartime Housing. He asked that more Girl Guide Companies be started in Wartime Housing projects. The assembled members were very interested and more leaders were needed. The remaining three days were taken up with meetings of the different Departments having the Head of each Department as its speaker. Each Department was urged to cooperate with other organizations. Nova Scotia has a Guide Company sponsored by its Scout Association. Saskatchewan also gets help from the Mounted Police. They supply tents and teach the Scouts. In the Dominion Council, representatives of the Ministerial Association, Boy Scouts, etc. Mrs. Bishop was Chairman of this Committee. Mrs. MacAill, Head of Camping for Canada chose as her subject "More and Better Camping for our Scouts in Canada." She opened the discussion by suggesting that it might be rearranged as "Better and More Camping for our Scouts." All provinces find it difficult to get Camp staff. Camping sites in Alberta are naturally few and far between owing to lack of water. Quebec has training camps for Guides and two Guides from each Company; this is done for demonstrative purposes. Nova Scotia has small camps within the big Camp, they are quite distinct but they are combined in swimming, etc. A resolution from P. E. I. that requirements for Campers' License should include before showing a love and appreciation of nature and music resulted in a most interesting discussion. Mrs. Corbett was chairman during the topic Guiding International Service. Mrs. Corbett introduced Mrs. Mabel Harker of London, England, who in a delightful talk told us of Guiding in London under war conditions. In spite of air raids, no light and bombed and blackened-out streets, Guiding went on increasing its membership. Before the war spiritual values were lost, we were too much on the material side, then came the war giving us the right values. Apparently Guiding was really wanted. Mrs. Harker who was a most charming person stayed at the Reg. Hotel for four days. Before she left she was presented with a Canadian Gift pin.

A comprehensive financial policy for Canadian Guiding was undertaken by the treasurer, Mrs. Whistart. Different provinces gave their methods of raising money. Alberta dependent on Community Chests and Government grants. Manitoba has a Provincial Drive, each Division handles its own by cake sales, etc. Quebec does not want any money, Ontario is never without it. The Maritimes are always in want of it. It was decided that the ways suggested were perfectly legitimate, also a provincial drive for funds. Backed up by this idea our Provincial Executive decided at a recent meeting to ask the Scout Association to co-operate in a drive for funds. The Scouts assented most willingly and early next March we hope to make a combined drive. There was a short meeting of the Survey Committee with Mrs. Staver presiding. It was decided by vote to continue with the survey of Guiding and to get the findings of outside people. Owing to the absence of Mrs. Allen, Head of Rangers, Mrs. Corbett took her place as chairman.

All provinces stressed the fact that while many of the older girls entered the service it was the early Ranger age who are the forgotten people of the war effort—we should not try to fit the girl to the program but the program to the girl. Representatives of the National Scout and Guide Associations had been meeting at a request of the Scouts on the subject of a joint program. The Scouts approved the move and suggested that the name should be Rangers. Mr. Froude, who was present suggested that each should draw up a parallel program which could be integrated wherever it was wise. It was decided that experimental groups should be started in certain places in Canada. As a result of this discussion I have just had a letter saying that Charlottetown had been chosen as one of the eight centres. This will be brought up at a meeting of our new executive.

The Public Life Of The Hon. David Laird

By Frank MacKinnon

PART IV THE FINAL PHASE After leaving the West Mr. Laird returned to his native province with the intention of resuming the editorial chair of the Patriot which had been occupied in his absence by Mr. Henry Lawson who afterwards became editor of the Victoria Colonist of Victoria, B. C. The spring of 1892 was an active one in the public life of Prince Edward Island for in May the provincial election was held, and in June a particularly strenuous Federal election. Mr. Laird had hardly returned home when he became involved in both campaigns. He spoke frequently on behalf of the Provincial Liberals in a losing battle which resulted in the return to office of the Conservatives under Hon. W. W. Sullivan. He was nominated along with Mr. (later Sir) Louis Davies to contest Queen's County in the Federal election. Davies headed the poll, but Mr. Laird was defeated. He made only one more attempt to re-enter Parliament, when in 1897 he unsuccessfully contested a newly-created seat in the North West Territories.

A Serious Blow The defeat suffered by Mr. Laird were serious blows to him after a decade of distinguished public service. Unfortunately for him he re-entered politics at a most inopportune time. His party's fortunes were at a very low ebb in the face of John Macdonald's tremendous popularity and the overwhelming strength of the Conservatives. Mr. Laird had been away from his home province for almost eight years, so that to a generation of electors he was almost unknown.

Then, too, there were many who still resented the fact that his acceptance of the western governorship, which involved resigning his portfolio as Minister of the Interior, had lost Prince Edward Island a seat in the cabinet. His opponents blamed him for opposing Confederation and later supporting it (though many others had done the same); for opposing the building of the Prince Edward Island Railway and later advocating the branches (which he believed had to be built); and for opposing separate schools in P. E. Island but assisting them in the West (though the two situations were entirely different). If he had waited a few years after returning to the island before re-entering politics, so that he could have re-established himself in political circles, his absence would have been used as M. P. for Queen's County in 1897. For he had then been away from the West for six years and was personally unknown to the many new settlers who had arrived since his administration.

In 1898 Mr. Laird was appointed dependent on Community Chests and Government grants. Manitoba has a Provincial Drive, each Division handles its own by cake sales, etc. Quebec does not want any money, Ontario is never without it. The Maritimes are always in want of it. It was decided that the ways suggested were perfectly legitimate, also a provincial drive for funds.
