Blackpools men seemed in fair shape and, although the Pensioners' officials protested, the result was allowed to stand.

AMATEUR GAME AROUSING KEEN INTEREST

ST. JOHN, Oct. 28.—Saint John fans will, on Wednesday night, get a chance to look the Beavers over as they parade their 1935-36 season lineup against the amateurs, whom Boston Bruins leave behind. The amateurs, coming from as far west as Saskatoon and as far east as Charlottetown, who have been trying for a place with Boston Bruins or Cubs, are as nice a collection of fast-skating, puck-urting "simon-pures" as Coach Frank Patrick and general-manager Art Ross of the Bruins have looked over in several years.

Some are rated better than others, but on the whole they compose some of the likeliest coming pro trainer ever in Bruins' pre-season training camp. Beavers will have their work out for them to take a fall out of these youngsters. It was learned last night that Beavers will be up to full strength for Wednesday night's fixture, which has the sanction of James E. Wry, president of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association.

Art Ross looks for the youngsters who have been trying out here to give a good account of themselves. Three or four players will in all probability make the grade, but Bruins will not select them until after the game Wednesday night. Among those to perform for the visiting amateurs will be Ritchie, who is trying out for the job as Beavers' goalie this season; Mogie of Charlottetown; Mayes of Toronto; Murray of Niagara, Wilson of Winnipeg; Schmidt of Kitchener; Scott of Allendale, Ont.; Lespi of Sudbury, Ont.; Klein of Saskatoon; Conacher of Toronto, McCranor of Fort William, Dumart of Kitchener, Kuntz of Kitchener, Goode of Toronto.

Beavers will have Wilson in goal, McCabe, Walker and Burrage on defence; Brennan, Gettiffe and Deslats, who arrives here tonight with Les Canadiens, on the front line; Muckle, Monson and Sherwood on the second line and Livingston and Colwell in reserve.

Defence help will be recruited from Joe Jerwa, purchased with Stewart from Boston; Al Murray, an experienced amateur and Red Doran, who also has spent some time with the Americans. It will be the first American team in years without Rabbit McVeigh, released when the Dwyer search for new help got under way. Sentiment doesn't count any more in the New York club, Dutton is paying off on ability that will lead to the playoffs next spring.

Dalhousie alumni are supposed to congregate every five years, but the reunion slated for 1934 was postponed until 1936.

NEW MATERIAL ADDS STRENGTH TO AMERKS

Manager Dutton Will Make Strong Bid For Playoffs With Revamped Outfit.

(This is the first of a Canadian Press series on prospects of National Hockey League teams. Others will follow.) (C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OSHAWA, Ont., Oct. 28.—So thoughtful has the front office of the New York Americans been this fall to Marvin (Red) Dutton, in whose hands the managerial reins were placed, that all the big red-head has to do this winter is bring home a National Hockey League playoff berth. The front-office never did much for Red's predecessor, Joe Simpson, but it has so balanced the scales this time that Dutton has actually become eager to get at those Canadian section foes, Toronto Maple Leafs, Montreal Maroons and Montreal Canadiens. There are three playoff berths and the Dutton-led Americans intend to win one of them.

It will be a blend of age and youth on which owner Bill Dwyer of New York and Manager Dutton base their hopes. The American board of strategy, seeking to get out of a slump that has lasted through the years, didn't go overboard for youth by any means. It will be an experienced team Red leads.

Little Roy Worters, who isn't much younger than the N.H.L.'s oldest goaltender, will be back between the posts. In training here, Worters has shown no sign of slipping from among the game's best custodians. For years he has been acknowledged without many peers. Dutton and Bill Brydge will do the major share of defence work. It isn't to be a defensive team any more, however, and the chief changes from last year have taken place up front where Dwyer and Dutton have sought scoring power.

To bolster the first-string line of Art Chapman, Sweeney Schriner and Lorne Carr, the Americans will have such performers as Nola Stewart, obtained from Boston Bruins; Harold Cotton, purchased from Toronto; Carl Voss and Eddie Finnigan, who came to the New York club in the St. Louis split-up. The Schriner-Chapman-Carr line was one of the most potent scoring trios in the N.H.L. last season, featuring the brilliant freshman from Calgary, Schriner, who was the year's outstanding rookie. The three have showed great form in practice this fall.

Cotton, veteran left winger, and Stewart, for years one of the League's colorful figures and high scorers, are expected to provide Americans with considerable goal-getting powers. Dutton hasn't decided definitely who will work along the right boards with these two. Dutton can choose other forwards from the following: Normie Himes, Happy Emms, Dede Klein, Ty Olliver, Lloyd Jackson, Fred Hargetts, Tommy Anderson and several amateurs who have impressed the New York manager in training. Several of them will play with Rochester's International League team.

Defence help will be recruited from Joe Jerwa, purchased with Stewart from Boston; Al Murray, an experienced amateur and Red Doran, who also has spent some time with the Americans. It will be the first American team in years without Rabbit McVeigh, released when the Dwyer search for new help got under way. Sentiment doesn't count any more in the New York club, Dutton is paying off on ability that will lead to the playoffs next spring.
