WHAT A CHILD MAY EXPECT OF THE SCHOOL.

A child may expect his school to afford him the opportunity for development to the fullest extent to which he is capable, not only mental or intellectual development, but physical and emotional as well.

Now, perhaps you will say that this is a mere truism, but actually as a working practice it is the rarest thing in the world; for while the very term "educate", from the Latin "educare," means to draw out, what many schools are doing is just the reverse. Instead of drawing out the powers of the child, they are endeavouring to stuff something into him—a lot of miscellaneous information called knowledge, which time out of mind has been considered good for people to possess.

And while this process is going on, some rather serious things may be happening to the child's development. The most outstanding loss he may be sustaining is physical. For some years physicians and child welfare workers have been telling us of the direct relation between loss in physical vitality and school life. The school is not merely the greatest single agent for the spread of contagious diseases among children, but the greatest manufacturer of many physical defects as well. The school hygiene movement is reducing some of the risks, and little by little in advanced communities schools are attacking the whole problem in a far more fundamental fashion.

We ought everywhere to permit children to move about more freely in schools; to shorten and vary periods of work and to introduce more play and more work with hands. As we do these things to safe guard our children's health, we shall discover that we are also helping them to develop intelligence.

It is now being held that the emotional difficulties of children are the sources of most adult tangles, and that if we would rid society of its misfits and permanently unhappy people we must begin with the right training and freeing of the emotions in children.

EDUCATION THE FOUNDATION OF SOCIAL RECONSTRUCTION

The recognition that a sound education system is the best foundation for the social and political reconstruction that must follow the war, has resulted everywhere in a willingness upon the part of the people of all the nations to carry increased burdens of taxation for education. The immense sums spent in Canada on its schools, averaging from one-third to one-half of all money raised by local and provincial taxation, are the amazement of Europe.

THE STORY OF OLD ABEGWEIT.

In Old Abegweit, Micmac hunters stared in awe at the long-boats of Jacques Cartier who was the first white man to visit the Island and leave a record of what he saw. Many years after the curtain had been drawn for Europeans, there was neither audience nor actors on this island stage. Then came French fishermen and traders eager to make their fortunes. These men did not stay but fled back to France before the approach of winter. For almost two centuries the land was a place of summer sojourn. Count de St. Pierre who once owned Isle St. Jean founded Port La Joie and St. Peters. Later, De Roma established a colony at Three Rivers (Brudenell Pt.) which was destroyed by the English. The French cleared much land and became rather prosperous. But in 1758 the British seized their home and carried many of the Acadians back to France. For the next four years St. John Island was left pretty much alone with its memories.

In 1763 the Island was ceded to Britain and placed under the rule of Nova Scotia. The Crown refused to agree to a scheme of Lord Egmont's to make the isle a feudal kingdom. Captain Holland surveyed the island and divided it into three counties and 67 lots. The county capitals were to be Charlottetown, Georgetown and Princetown. Then 64 lots were granted to army and naval officers who promised in return to bring out settlers and pay a small quit-rent. St. John Island was made a separate province and Walter Patterson became its first governor. Soon after Charlottetown was plundered by American privateers. Within the next thirty years, 600 Loyalists settled here and Selkirk brought out the Skye Pioneers. Patterson was succeeded by the Loyalist governor, General Fanning. In 1799, the island was re-christened "Prince Edward Island" in honour of the Duke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria.

The next governor was the aged DesBarres who died when he was 102. Then came Charles Douglas Smith, the tyrant, the Charles I. in our history. Smith's belief in the "divine right of governors" got him into a great deal of hot water. This worst of governors was succeeded by our best governor, Colonel John Ready who did much for the farmer and fisherman. During his regime Central Academy, the forerunner of P.W.C., was established, and ice-boats began to carry winter mail across the Strait. Soon after, a little steamer called the Pocahontas began to ply in the open season between Charlottetown and Pictou. Sir Aretas Young was the first governor to live at the newly-built Government House. He rests in his lonely tomb under the chancel of St. Paul's Church. In 1843 the corner stone of the Colonial Building was laid and soon after there occurred the Belfast Election Riot. A popular governor was Sir Donald Campbell of Dunstaffnage, who was buried beside Governor Young's tomb.

George Coles and Edward Whelan are our best examples of public-spirited statesmen. They were the Fathers of Responsible Government in P.E.I. and gave us our free schools. Both also tried to get those dogs-in-the-manger, the absent landlords, to sell the land to their tenants, but the Land Question was not solved until the island entered Confederation and got the help of Canada. The one score years before Confederation was a glorious age of sail for this island, a time when our ships and sailors were to be found in all ports of the world and every harbor, creek and bay echoed to the sound of the shipbuilder's hammer.

On September 1, 1864, the Charlottetown Convention held in the Colonial Building, gained for this city the title of the "Cradle of Confederation". But on the street, at the fireside and on the platform, the people of this proud, little sea-girt province said repeatedly that they did not want union. Then in 1871, the first sod for our snake-like railway was turned, and the pen that signed the Railroad Bill wrote FINIS to the Island's independence. For, spurred on by the thought of a large railway debt, the enemies of union with Canada became its friends and journeyed secretly to Ottawa to get the best terms that they could.

Then James C. Pope, the man who had introduced the Railway Bill, laid the terms of union before the Assembly which quickly gave its consent. On July 1, 1873, Charlottetown celebrated Dominion Day with the waving of flags, the booming of guns and the pealing of bells. As twelve noon struck the Dominion flag was run up on the Provincial Building, telling all the world that Islanders had become Canadians and that henceforth the story of P. E. I. was the story of Canada.

Sterner Penalties Against Intoxicant Drivers Advocated

(By The Canadian Press)

SACKVILLE, N. B., June 10—Resolutions regarding intoxicated drivers and gambling were adopted today at the Maritime Conference of the United Church.

After B. S. Messenger, stipendiary magistrate of Bridgetown, N.S. declared conditions were "unsatisfactory" concerning use of alcohol by drivers of motor vehicles in public use, the Conference recommended:

"That the drivers of all motor vehicles in the public service, including buses, taxicabs, transport trucks, etc., be abstainers from the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage.

"That the existing penalties for operating motor vehicles while intoxicated and for having care or control while intoxicated be increased.

"That a pronounced smell of liquor on the breath of an accident-causing driver brought to trial be evidence of intoxication and unfitness to drive a motor vehicle."

The Conference endorsed a recommendation of St. Luke's Church, Sydney Presbytery, that churches be not exempted in gambling laws, and adopted the following resolution.

"This Conference declares itself opposed to all forms of gambling, whether conducted on the race track, the stock exchange, by means of slot machines, or any other device, and we commend the Dominion Parliament on the defeat of the proposed bill to legalize sweepstakes. We urge that the existing legislation regarding gambling, particularly that part dealing with bazaars for church and charitable purposes, be interpreted and enforced as the law directs."

The committee on education and students recommended the following young men for ordination here Sunday morning:

Warren Langille, Springhill, N.S.; Carl Ward, Springhill; Clair Johnson, Summerside, P.E.I.; Stanley Beveridge, Musquodoboit, N.S.; William Rodger, Rothesay, N. B.; Edward Simm, Sackville; Samuel Walsh, Newfoundland; Peter MacDonald, Greenhill, N. S.; Francis MacPherson, West Cape, P. E. I.; Lewis Murray, Orwell, P.E.I.; Harold Wright, Charlottetown; Tilley Asbell, Sussex, N.B.; William MacDonald, Fourchu, N.S.; James Beveridge, Truro, N.S.

The Conference adopted a resolution that "we favor a national paper for the United Church of Canada and would recommend that a possible amalgamation of the United Churchmen and other papers of the church be considered by your committee during the coming year, details to be discussed with the commissioners of the general council."

Opposition to such amalgamation was voiced by Rev. A. K. Reynolds, Mulgrave, N. S., and Mrs. L. W. Parker, the latter expressing opinion it would not be supported by the Women's Missionary Monthly.

British Plan Naval Base In Portugal?

LONDON, June 10—(CP Cable)—The Admiralty tonight told The Canadian Press that a report published here to the effect Great Britain was considering the possibility of building a naval base on the southern Portuguese coast was "highly speculative."

The Leftist periodical "The Week", in publishing the report, said Gibraltar could no longer be defended against German heavy calibre guns mounted nearby and along the Spanish Moroccan coast. It asserted authorities were studying the possibility of building a supplementary naval base at Faro, South Portugal.

A British military and naval mission still in Portugal after a stay there of several months, might sound out the Portuguese Government in that connection, but the Admiralty pointed out the mission was not empowered to conduct diplomatic negotiations.

INTERESTING FEATURES AT GRAND BAZAAR

Biggest Program Of Week At Big Fair In Market Building Tonight.

Preparations were under way last night for the final night's program at the grand bazaar at the Market Building in aid of the Charlottetown Hospital. Tonight the 7-day fair will conclude with the drawing for the grand prizes, totalling in value $1200.

An additional feature of the program will be that it is the last opportunity to hear Dr. Doney, described as Canada's most pleasing baritone. Last night this artist sang "The Floral Dance," "The Crocodile," "Let Me Be Born Again", and "Bachelor Gay", from the Maid of the Mountains. Each number was a treat in itself but Dr. Doney really excelled in "Let Me Be Born Again", a Negro spiritual. Mr. A. R. Kendall is accompanist.

Band music was supplied by the League of the Cross Band, directed by Mr. W. J. Brawders. Their contribution to the program was indeed a pleasing feature.

Winner of the door prize was Miss Mabel Murphy, Great George Street. It was a $5.00 bill. Tonight another valuable door prize will go to the holder of the lucky ticket.

This afternoon a special program will feature items of interest to children. Centre of interest will be the bicycle which will be given free.

Government Holds Stafford Seat

STAFFORD, England, June 10—(CP)—The Stafford House of Commons seat remained in the Government column today as counting in yesterday's by-election showed G. E. P. Thorneycroft, Conservative, elected to succeed Lord Harlech.

The successful candidate, who obtained a slightly larger majority than did Lord Harlech—then William G. A. Ormsbygore, colonial secretary—in the 1935 general election, called his victory a vote of confidence in Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy.

He polled 16,754 votes to 12,846 for P. G. Lloyd, Labor in a straight party vote.

It was the government's third straight triumph after a series of losses of seats to the Labor opposition.

Interesting Display At Prowse Bros.

Sponsored by the firm of Prowse Bros., the Wabasso demonstration which opened in their store on Wednesday afternoon was largely attended, the affair proving a complete success.

The demonstration was conducted by Mrs. J. D. Duval, an attractive French lady from Three Rivers, Quebec, the home of the Wabasso cottons. The large reception room on the second floor of the store was attractively decorated for the occasion by Weston Whitlock of the store sales staff and Walter Bear, the local representative for Wabasso Cottons.

The furniture was kindly loaned by Holman's Ltd.

Among the display was to be seen household draperies, bedroom ensembles, bags, rugs, etc., while dresses, aprons, bathing costumes and sports wear were gracefully displayed on living models.

Mrs. Duval, who is a pleasing speaker, interested her large audience with vivid descriptions of the costumes worn, and the articles on display all of which were made from Wabasso Cotton Company products. The materials included printed cottons, voiles, broadcloth, prints, piques and lawns.

The senior girls who so gracefully displayed dresses, etc., were Misses Eleanor Belcher, Helen Lawson and Anna Hughes, while the juniors were composed of Misses Fairley Prowse, Barbara Rupert, Marlyn Rupert, Roberta Sutherland and Nancy Simpson.

Another demonstration was given yesterday afternoon and the concluding demonstration will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Attention Cream Patrons

We will take delivery of your cream every day of the year at the DUNSTAFFNAGE CHEESE AND BUTTER COMPANY or you may leave it at the CASH AND CARRY STORES. Our average price for butterfat for the whole year of 1937 was 30 4-5 cents per pound.

We pay every patron the same price—For May month it was 30 cents per lb. for butterfat hauled from the farmer's gate.

From now on we will meet or probably better any competitive price the higher the better as it will give the farmers more money to buy groceries and meats at our Cash and Carry Stores. We feel we are doing a great service to operate our factory for the profiteers of cream and our records will show that every patron gets the same price.

Owing to unforseen circumstances re the price of butterfat for May month, rebate cheques are being mailed to all patrons today.
