SMILES What The Gray House Hid

He: Do you know you've made me the happiest man on earth? She: On earth? Every other fellow I accepted said they were in heaven.

L. M. P. Cunius: I'm up against it. I must have money but I've no idea where I can get it. N. O. Keyne: Glad to hear that - I thought perhaps you had an idea you could get it from me.

THE USUAL BRAND Tricky wiles, fleeting smiles, Teardrops mixed together; Cloudy skies, balmy sighs - Same old April weather.

Need: You look anxious, what's the matter? Ted: Back in my dues to the Don't Worry Club and it's got me up in the air.

"You said Nokoyne was a grafter, but he paid me that twenty-five he owed me last night." "Fine - then you can lend me five." "Can't. Nokoyne borrowed fifty this morning."

End Piles Quick

No Salves - No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause - bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts - and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this - an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonard, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this City, that Geo. Hughes says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile agony or money back.

"It's that Mucker," Mary said. "The idea!" "Smucker," Hanby corrected. "I had forgotten all about him. Tell him I'll be there in moment."

"He's got his nerve!" said Junior. "Besides, the people who gave the feast before Waterloo won the battle. Dad, I hate that man! I wish you'd fire him. Whenever I go to the office, he tries to head me off from seeing you."

"He wishes to save me money," said Hanby, rising. Mary descended wrathfully on Smucker. He was conscious that his intellectual superiority was lost on her. In the slangy, expressive phrase of her class, she gave Smucker her opinion of him.

"Who are you, to butt in like that?" she demanded finally. Hanby came into the room, and she backed out.

"Forget all about you, Smucker," Hanby admitted. "It was a birthday party. What is it?"

"I wish to see Mrs. Hanby, too," Smucker returned. "It's a matter of life and death."

Hanby saw that the fellow had been drinking, and that the unaccustomed stimulant had let down some of Smucker's barriers of restraint. He had always known that his employee disapproved of him.

"Be Quiet," She Said, "You Disgust Me!" but he was unprepared for the hate that glared from the red-rimmed eyes. It came as something of a shock.

"Mrs. Hanby is busy," he said. "Also I don't propose to inflict any business troubles on her. I may say that you behaved in very questionable taste in shouting what you did just now. It's none of your d-d business whether I have a few people in to dinner, is it?"

"A matter of life and death," Smucker went on. "I am wasting my time, alarming my own wife, and spending car fare, all for your benefit, and you insult me. I might have expected it!"

"It's nothing to do with office business, then?" "A matter of life and death, Mrs. Hanby must hear it, too." Hanby paused a moment.

"All right! I'll send for her." Dina Hanby had long ago known that in Smucker her husband employed a disaffected and unpleasant sort of man. She bowed coldly to the intruder, who found in her fresh fuel for his wrath. He saw a lovely woman of forty, who looked no more than thirty. He hated her.

Blossom of Canada Flour

LAKE-SIDE MILLING COMPANY, LIMITED, FOOT OF PRINCESS STREET, TORONTO, CANADA

For that, Mrs. Smucker was not dowered with beauty. He saw a splendidly dressed woman who held herself regally. He considered that at forty a woman should be a good cook. Mrs. Hanby outraged his sense of feminine proportion. She was slender and graceful. Once, in the office, when the light had been poor, he had mistaken her for Celia. "I am the death's head at the feast," he said pompously. "You have been imagining yourself the mistress of a great mansion. It is a house of death and disaster!" "Oh, Hill!" she cried. "What does he mean?" What the red-faced man had told him an hour or so earlier, Smucker now wore into an intensely dramatic narrative. Mrs. Hanby, listening eagerly, learned that the house in which she and her children were to live had, since its erection more than a hundred years before, been the tomb of all young people who inhabited it. There was a superstitious strain in her, and Smucker could see that she grew uneasy. It irritated him to see Hanby immune from fear. "Is this true?" she asked her husband. "The river, I suppose," said Mrs. Hanby, puzzled. "It will be a river of blood some day, from Albany to the sea. It will be reddened with the blood of corrupt politicians, of the officer caste trained at West Point to enslave us. It will be red with the blood of New York capitalists. His blood, your husband's blood!" Dina Hanby looked at him with flashing eyes. Why did this vindictive little creature hate a man who had kept him on year after year simply through pity? "Be quiet," she said, "you disgust me!" She turned from him and met her husband coming in. "The taxi's coming," he said. "Let me know tomorrow what expense you've been put. Good night!" When Smucker had gone, Dina put her hands on her husband's shoulders. "Dear," she said, "you've always been very good to me. You've given me everything that I wanted and much more than I deserved. I want to ask a favor." "It is granted," he replied; "even unto the half of my lands and forests, my lakes and lordly manor houses, and the small change I have in my pocket." (To be Continued)

JAMES ROBERTSON At Pownal Lot 40, P. E. Island, on Monday June 29th, 1931, James Robertson a wellknown and respected resident passed to his eternal reward. He was a son of the late James Robertson and his wife Mary Murray, and was the last of that family. He had always lived in Lot 40, and did much today, from Albany to the sea. He was married Caroline Jenkins who passed away in February 1930. Since her death he began to fall in health but continued to attend to many duties until a few weeks before the end came. He was confined to his bed for about a week. He is survived by four sons and three daughters. Myrtle the wife of Daniel McCallum of Cross Roads, W. C. Robertson of Pownal, Rev. E. C. Robertson late of Woodstock N. B. Hiram Robertson of Mount Albion, Miss Venetta, Miss Annie, and Milton at home. Mr. Robertson was a life long member of the Church of Scotland, and for many years held the office of elder. He was strong in his convictions, and fervent in his devotions. Though compelled to retire from active duties within the last year, he was able to speak to those who visited him in words which bore testimony that he was growing in the Grace of God and in Knowledge of his Saviour. These words and discourses of comfort continued to the last and he was most wonderfully reconciled to the will of his Father in Heaven. The members of his family were greatly comforted to see his dear father depart in such happiness. The funeral was held on the afternoon of Wednesday July 1st, and was very largely attended. His pastor Rev. Ewen MacDougall

I have been using "Blossom of Canada" for some months and I must say I hope I will always be able to procure it. In having a small party at my house the women all wanted to know what flour I used, so I told them I used "Blossom of Canada". They said they found that after their bread got three days old it got dry and tasteless. I advised them to try "Blossom of Canada". Of course I did not know anything about the prize being given at this time, but I certainly could not do anything else than give it a good name. Mrs. W. G. Shubenacadie, Hants Co., N.S.

I am a user of "Blossom of Canada". It's dandy flour. Can recommend it to anyone. I hear my neighbors saying it's the best flour they have had for years. Mrs. M. Seaville, N.B.

I have been keeping house for 39 years and have used all grades of flour and "Blossom of Canada" is the best I have ever had in my house. Have recommended it to my two dealers, and their families. Would not have any other grade if I could possibly get "Blossom of Canada". Mrs. William H. Lamberville, Deer Island, N.B.

I am a user of your flour and find that it excels all other flours I have ever used. I make and sell home cooking. So I use a hundredweight every two weeks. Mrs. Charles H. Brooklyn, Ont.

I have been keeping house for over forty years and bake all my own bread. We were ten of a family, and for the last fifteen years I have been keeping boarders by times, and I must say that the "Blossom of Canada" Flour is as good a flour as I ever used, both for bread and pastry. Mrs. John Maria East, Bonaventure Co., P.Q.
