CHESS TOURNAMENT

Report says that recent storm conditions have interfered with the bombardment of the Dardanelles' forts. By a strange coincidence the bombardment in the Dalton Rooms has during the same period been greatly lessened. Dignitary firing has occasionally occurred, but seldom accompanied with serious consequences. But shades of Caesar, Mark Anthony, Wellington, Blucher, Napoleon and Togo look down on the carnage to-night. Think ye anything ever was like it? "Dugouts" have been prepared for all the belligerents, which are supposed to be occupied promptly at 7.30. The spirit of goodwill, however, has been engaged to umpire the hostilities, which has prompted the following effusion.

RECONCILIATION.

Remove the vitrol from the heart. The sharpness from the tongue; Let acid deeds and words depart— Let songs of peace be sung.

PROCRUSTATION NOW IS DEAD.

18 MEN DROWNED IN SHIPWRECK

(Special to the Guardian.) LONDON, March 28.—Eighteen members of the crew of the British steamer Trostburg lost their lives yesterday when the vessel was wrecked near Cape Spartel, on the Moroccan coast, at the entrance to the Straits of Gibraltar, according to a despatch from Tangier to Reuter's Telegram Company. The Trostburg was a vessel of 7,000 tons. Reuter reports said 13 men of the crew of seventy had been saved, but the further rescue work was made difficult by the high seas. Three British torpedo boat destroyers and one French cruiser are standing by the wreck.

LOSES MILLIONS IN KAISER'S VENTURE.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 27.—Five million dollars invested in Canadian coal lands by Count Alvo Alvensleben of Seattle is likely to be irretrievably lost because the count was unfortunately enough to have interested with him in his big mining enterprise, less a personage than the Empire of Germany. The count, too, is German. Since the outbreak of the war, he has confined his business operations to the American side of the line. He is the dominant figure in the Issaquah and Superior coal mines of this State. According to advices from Washington, it is known to the British authorities that part of the money he invested in the Canadian mines was the Kaiser's, and it is believed that the title may be cancelled and the property confiscated by the Canadian government. The only question at issue is whether this money belonged personally to the Kaiser or whether he caused it to be invested on behalf of his empire. In the latter event, the property, which has been extensively improved and developed, will revert immediately to the Dominion government.

Much of the property involved, which is situated in the Groundhog anthracite district and at the head fork of the Stikine River, already has been transferred to German-American citizens and the Canadian government is investigating the validity of these transfers. The fact that the property was or is owned by the Kaiser was elicited at Washington in connection with the story of the retirement of Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador. It also has developed, it is said, that the mission of Dr. Dernsborg, the former colonial minister of Germany, who came to this country ostensibly to build up friendly relations between the United States and Germany, was in reality to act as the Kaiser's financial representative in the United States and Canada. It is known that the Kaiser is heavily interested in the Hamburg-American line and in the loans negotiated in Germany by the City of New York. The Canadian properties in which the Kaiser is interested were acquired by Count Alvensleben some two years ago. A railroad had been projected to the Groundhog coal fields, and the hard coal was to have been placed on the American and Canadian markets but, for some reason, nothing was done toward completing the road after the surveys were made and the property had been acquired by the Germans.

FORCEFUL SERMON BY REV. DR. FULLERTON

the unseen? Dives goes to his place, his place of unspeakable torment. Why? Because of his inhumanity. Our standard for measuring sin to-day is wrong. In the light of the teaching of Jesus Christ we can have no sympathy with drunkenness, with licentiousness, but these things meet their hell here now, and these people never deny they are sinners. It is that spiritual sin that Christ deals with. If one rejects the pleadings of the Christ by refusing to make sacrifices for the good of others, if he tramples underfoot the love of God that covers humanity, he must meet his damnation. He dies, he is buried, he is lost, he is damned, he is condemned, he is taught to fear God. At the close of the day to call it. But the whole revelation of Christianity is surely misunderstood unless we realize that when he falls he falls into the limitless heart of a Father, absolute in freedom, in power, in life. They may be lost to themselves, they may be lost to others, but they are not lost to God. For there is no place in the wide universe in which the soul can be lost to Him, whose presence fills all space. "If I go down into hell thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning and fly to the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy right hand meet me." To suffer the damnation of hell is not to be mechanically separated from our great Creator; it is, not to know His nearness, but to wander in penalty in the agony of solitude. However great our torment, God is there unchanging, tireless, patient. God dare not forget the unrepentant; and we say it with all reverence, He dare not refuse to forgive the repentant. There is nothing for the unrepentant but the deepest shame, the keenest agony, by the memory of the accused folly of sin. That limitless capability of soul-suffering can be associated with memory. The Persian poet says, "I myself am heaven and an hell." But there are persons who would rather believe in any hell but that which they make themselves. With our strange misconception of the teachings of Christ, we have been taught to fear God. It is not God whom we have to fear; it is ourselves. No one will be lost whom God can save, but God cannot save men against their deliberate and persistent choice. You cannot live a Dives here and expect to be a Lazarus hereafter in his joy, any more than you can go to sleep tonight as a human being and wake up tomorrow a mineral. When you leave here and pass into the unseen you are just what you were; no more nor less. How will it be with you?"

YESTERDAY IN THE BAPTIST CHURCH

IN THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

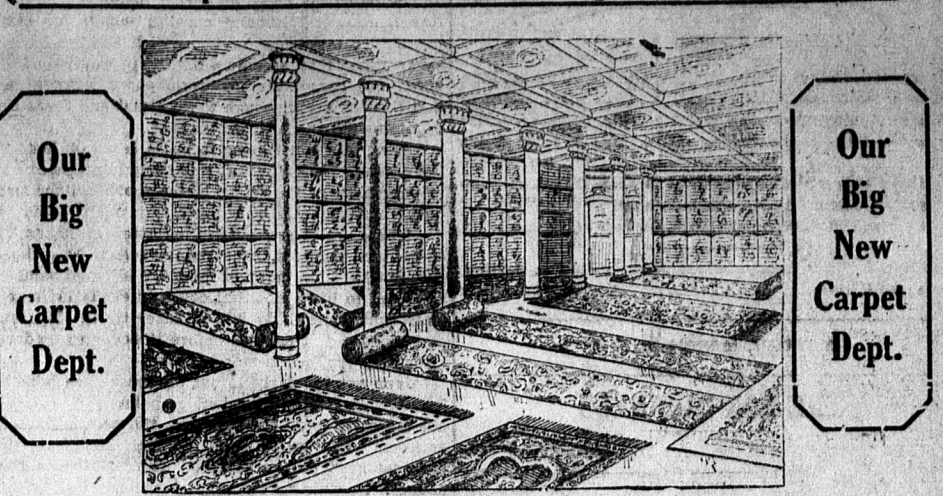

Rev. L. E. Ackland preached to large congregations at the Baptist Church on Sunday. At the close of the evening sermon an evangelistic invitation was given and much interest was manifested. The services this week will be held in the auditorium of the church, beginning at 8 o'clock. Mr. Ackland will preach each night except Saturday. All the services are open to the public. There will be afternoon services this week in the Schoolroom on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, beginning at 4 o'clock. These are for the boys and girls, but all are welcome. The subject of Rev. L. E. Ackland's sermon last night was: "Helpers and Hinders." "Jesus came down from the Mount of Transfiguration with its glory and its fellowship with God to the valley of human failures and unbelief. It was a miniature world that lay before Him with representatives of all the moral groups into which men divided themselves by their attitude toward Christ. 1. The disciples were there trying to help, but they were failing in their efforts. What was the reason of their failure? They had been given powers to cast out devils, they had exercised it and rejoiced because the devils were subject to them. They were powerless now because they were powerless. Moreover, they were out of sympathy with Christ and His plans. Just six days before He had told them He was going to Jerusalem to die. That He was to suffer rather than to reign, and they must suffer with Him. His idea did not strike them as toward Christ. 2. The second group is the scribes, who were questioning. They are representatives of the scoffer who makes it his business to hinder the weak, who sneers at religion, and discourages every good work by his attitude and influence. This is the most despicable business to which a man can lend himself. 3. The third class is the larger multitude, who were looking on. They were ready to lose all faith in Jesus because of the disciples' failure. They had heard much about Jesus. They knew His fame as a wonder worker. They may have seen some of His miracles or those of His disciples, but they were now ready to give up all faith in Jesus because the disciples made one failure. Such attitude is absurd, yet many assume it, when some Christian falls, or some prominent worker appears inconsistent in his life. When a merchant fails in business, do others give up doing business? When someone comes in and says do you give up thinking rationally? If one suicides, should everyone take his life? Why, then, give up religion for one failure, or any number of failures? All the more need for true religion, and consecrated lives. There are enough of spectators in the world; men are needed who will do something. These disciples who were failing then were, after all, the men who, when the Power of God gripped them, leavened the world with the gospel.

LENTE SERMONS CONCLUDED

The last of the Lenten sermons in Saint Dunstan's Cathedral was delivered last evening by Rev. Father Gauthier, D. D., Palmer Road, on "Confession." The reverend doctor took his text from the Gospel of Saint John "Whoso sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven and whoso sins you shall retain, they are retained." and in a masterly and eloquent manner gave a most instructive and helpful discourse. There was the usual large attendance.

CANADIAN TELLS A GRAPHIC STORY OF LIFE IN TRENCHES.

LONDON, March 26.—A Canadian lieutenant in the hospital here furnishes striking personal proof of how men may be laid aside, although perfectly untouched by the enemy's missiles. He was in the trenches when a shell burst in the neighborhood. Although not struck he was incapacitated with concussion of the brain. "It is utterly impossible," he said, "to give any adequate idea of conditions at the front. The atmosphere in a double sense is perfectly unearthly in the literal meaning of the term. The atmosphere to begin with is permeated with a faint odor of chloride. When the artillery is not active, you have a perfectly peaceful countryside, but you know that right under the earth for miles and miles are thousands of men. It is perfectly ghastly at night; every now and then great blue stars burst in the sky. I got lost outside the trenches on one of the earliest nights. I had gone forward to reconnoitre when a German star burst. I fell flat at once. When it was dark again and I was able to get up, I was utterly unable to remember which direction our trench lay. I moved along, cautiously for some time and then heard low singing. The voices were English so I called out and crawled over the parapet of the trenches, which incidentally, look tremendously formidable from the side facing the enemy. If a German star had burst when I was crawling over I would have been picked off for certain. We had a queer experience once when our trenches were within fifty yards of the Germans. A voice called out: "Hallo, Canada, how's Vancouver looking?" It was evidently a German who had rejoined his colors when the trenches had been picked over. The German system of intelligence is perfectly marvellous. We were first relieved the British troops, some who were coming back told us that the Germans had asked if the Canadians had already arrived, or were due next day. I was in the hospital in France with several German prisoners. They were well educated and intelligent. All were convinced that London was already in German hands, and had not the least doubt the general body of the Ger-

AUSTRIANS FEAR INVASION OF SOUTHERN TYROL.

LONDON, March 27.—A Rome despatch to the Daily News says that half a million Austrian troops are massed in Southern Tyrol and Trentino, indicating a fear of invasion. Virtually all the villages between Suggana and Lake Garda have been evacuated by their inhabitants, and many houses along the frontier have been blown up. Batteries have been posted at every point of vantage, and heavy guns have been mounted at an altitude of about 7,000 feet.

CARE FOR THE WOUNDED ON BOTH SIDES.

LONDON, March 25.—The American volunteer motor ambulance corps, now operating with the French army, has been ordered to report for duty with the British army. It is to be enlarged, so that the work which it has been performing with the French Forces may be continued. The American corps was organized under the British Red Cross, and was loaned to the French army because its services were not required by the British at the time. Although formed under the British Red Cross, the organization is neutral, and cares for wounded on both sides. It undertakes to keep an automobile and driver in the field at a cost of $125 monthly.

Gained 30 Lbs. in Few Weeks Never Felt So Well

Was Pale, Weak and Thin, and Had Nervous Headaches Before Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is truly wonderful what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does for women who are weak, weary and run down in health. New, rich blood is what is needed in nearly all such cases, and because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new blood — it brings cure — not mere relief, but actual cure — in the great majority of such ailments. With an abundance of rich, red blood coursing through the veins the nerves are strengthened and vigor and vitality are carried to every organ of the human body. With the nerves properly nourished and neuralgic pains disappear, appetite improves, digestion is good, you sleep and rest well, and gain in strength and weight.

Mrs. H. Laich, Cannington Manor, Sask., writes:—"You will remember me writing you last spring. Well, I gave up my doctor and began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This treatment cured me rapidly and I was soon myself again. I was pale, thin and weak, suffered from stomach troubles and liver complaint, and frequently had sick, nervous headaches. "I was surprised to find that in a few weeks' time I had gained 30 pounds in weight. I never felt so strong and well in all my life. Headaches never bother me any more, and I am grateful for the cure. If people would only give this medicine a fair trial they would certainly be cured." Everywhere people are talking about this great food cure, which cures in Nature's way, by supplying the ingredients to form new blood, and so overcome weakness and disease by an abundance of vitality. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, in a box, 4 for $2.50, all dealers or Edmanson, Baker & Co., Limited, Toronto.
