Is Three Million Dollars in Debt

(NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—) Doing his own cooking Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., is grinding out magazine articles and motion picture scenarios in a tiny Fifth Avenue apartment as part of a "fight back" plan. He is $3,000,000 in debt. His tools are a portable typewriter, shifts of copy paper and a pocket full of pencils. The former newspaper publisher works day and night. "I am going to pay off every penny I owe if it takes me fifty years," Vanderbilt said. "I am determined that no one shall lose a penny from having trusted in me and my ventures." Vanderbilt may come into some of the family fortune in time but he is not banking on that now.

THE MARKETS

(Canadian Press) OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—(Eggs)—A healthier tone is reported from Vancouver today, the reduced prices having increased local consumption and improved the demand for outside shipments. Montreal reports Toronto: The local market is unchanged with imports of States jobbing here at 46 for fresh and 39 for dry shippers extras 46 to 47; firsts 42 to 43, seconds 37 to 32, delivered Montreal. Prices to retailers have undergone a further decline with present sales being made at extras 51 to 52, firsts 49 to 50, putlets extras 48, seconds 46 to 47, putlets extras buying only in small quantities and the market is dull. A carload of United States storage which passed as seconds are jobbing at 39 to 40 and great at 48. Dealers continue to quote for ungraded eggs extra 47 to 48, firsts 42 to 43, pullet extra 42 to 43, seconds 37 to 32, delivered Montreal. Dealers are quoting country shippers extras 35 to 37, firsts 33 to 35, seconds 27 to 30, receipts are sufficient to take care of local demand with some British Columbia stock still moving but merely in a cleaning up way. Vancouver: The market is firmer with heavier local consumption and increased orders from northern and prairie points. Dealers are quoting producers extras 30, firsts 28, pullet extras 26. Three carloads have been sold recently, extras 37, firsts 25, pullet extras 33. Receipts are lighter on account of the starting of the incubation season and the recent unfavorable weather. Halifax: The egg market is weaker due to increased supplies. Dealers paying country shippers delivered Halifax extras 45, firsts 40, seconds 30.

Dairy Interests Seek Embargo on Can. Milk & Cream

(Special to The Guardian) WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Advocates of the Lenroot Tubercle milk and cream bill today predicted the Senate would pass the bill when it is voted upon at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. Little delay in getting an agreement with the house over the amendments was expected, and it was predicted that President Coolidge will sign the measure. The question now is whether the proposed law will be administered in such a way as seriously to curtail shipment of milk from Canada. In some quarters the belief is that the protests of cities like New York, Boston and others using Canadian milk will prohibit the Department of Agriculture from going to extremes in embargoing shipments of Canadian milk and cream. In the Senate the bill is being brought out, that United States dairy interests are seeking to have the tariff rates on milk and cream increased 50 per cent. This means they are working for a virtual embargo on all milk and cream from outside the United States.

British M.P. Says Britain Will Not go To War With China

(NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—) Britain will not go to war with China because the "English people wouldn't allow it," Commander Joseph Montague Kenworthy of the British Royal Navy and member of parliament declared today on the eve of his return to England after a month spent in Zionistic, Labor and Economic studies. Commander Kenworthy, gave his view of the reasons for the present Chinese disturbances as explaining that thousands of Chinese students in America and European universities absorb western ideas and resent foreign shackles on their country. "China has taken seriously President Wilson's fourteen points, and especially that point which deals with self-determination of peoples," he added.

THE FIRST CHINESE FAN AND LANTERN.

From an Old Chinese Legend By Alice Wetherell Oh, the lanterns! lanterns! lanterns! Flickers fitting in the dark; Oh, the lanterns! lanterns! lanterns! Golden globe and silver spark; Red and blue and green and yellow, Dragon lanterns crawling low; Birds and beasts of silk and bamboo Swinging, swinging, swift and slow; From China comes the legend that thousand of years ago there lived a father with two newly-married sons. Now, in China, it has always been the custom for married sons to bring their wives to their father's home to live. And so it was in this case, but the brides were very young, and often very homesome to see their families again. Their young husbands might have allowed them to go somewhere to visit their old home. But in China the husbands' fathers and mothers still remain the rulers. And in this case the father would not hear of it. "Why should they be homesome with everything so comfortable here?" was how the father argued. "Please, please, let us go, if only for a few days," the young wives would plead. "The father-in-law would not consent, but it made him uncomfortable to be refusing always. Finally, as they still continued coaxing, he thought out a plan to keep them from bothering him. "Yes, you may go," he surprised them one bright morning, when they asked him again. Then he turned to his wife and said, "Bring me a paper, unless you bring fire wrapped in paper," and to the other, "you must bring me wind in a paper." The two young wives were so eager to see their families that they did not think of what was said, but started off for their old home. They had their visit, and were on their way to see their husbands once again, before they suddenly remembered what their father-in-law had said. "It is impossible," said the older one, "to wrap up fire in paper." "No more impossible than having wind in paper," said the younger. And as they were very tired from walking, they sat down, where they were and began to weep. "What's this, what's this?" it was the voice of a young girl who was passing by. "Why sit down and weep, when you can make a lighted fire if you only try, and also keep up your courage." "But we can't possibly," the wailing young wives cried almost with one voice. For they had begun to think that never again could they go back to their husbands. Then they told their sad story to the girl. "That is easy," laughed the new friend. "Let me come with me." When they came to her father's house, the young girl found a piece of paper, and folded it again and again, mysteriously. Finally, she held up what we now know as a "Chinese lantern." She had put a lighted candle in the bottom of the lantern. "There you have fire in paper, have you not?" she said. The two young wives said, "Yes, but we cannot return unless you bring fire wrapped in paper." "I'll see my husband now," then her face became quiet and she added, "But I'm afraid my sister's task will be much harder." But the new friend was already busy folding paper once again. This time she fastened little wooden slats in it. "Isn't that wind in paper?" she asked, as she whisked a little Chinese fan before their faces till the breeze was so strong that they had to turn their heads aside. So the legend goes, the two happy

Prince Asserts His Cello Is Mysterious

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—Prince Joachim Albrecht of Prussia, second cousin to former Emperor William II, who will soon go to the United States to direct a series of symphony concerts, is not only a composer but a virtuoso as well. His instrument is the cello, and he has frequently assisted at charity affairs and court functions in the role of cello soloist. "My cello," he told The Associated Press, "was built in Berlin by the brother of my teacher. But all experts whom I have consulted agree that it is the equal of the best of the old Italian instruments. There is something mysterious about my instrument. One day an old instrument maker came to the master who built my cello and told him he would 'blow something into the instruments' by which they would acquire the properties of the old Italian masterpieces. Whatever that 'blowing something in' process may have been, it did the trick. To interpret Own Works "Just before his death a few years ago this old fellow revealed the secret to the man who built my instrument, but the latter declared he will take the secret down into his grave. All my attempts to persuade him to leave the formula to posterity have failed." Prince Joachim Albrecht expects to direct concerts in about a dozen leading cities of the United States. He will confine himself to directing and interpreting his own works, which are chiefly in the nature of rhapsodical fantasies. He has also written considerable ballet music. Besides orchestra compositions, he has composed songs for baritone voice, programmatic music for the piano, and melodies for the cello. His latest orchestral work is entitled "Fantasia amorosa." Since the war, the prince has conducted concerts in Baden-Baden, Vienna, Budapest, Zurich, Breslau, Linz, and Bad Gastein. The prince does not think much of jazz and other modern music. Automobile driving is his favorite diversion.
