HASTY CONCLUSION. A report that a horse and sleigh gone through the ice off York Point at noon yesterday caused some excitement as firemen, City and Mounted Police hurried to the rescue. When they got there, however, they saw a man cutting ice alongside the horse and sleigh but everything was all right. Apparently the report that some practical joker had resorted to the mean device of sending in a false alarm, were quite satisfied the alarm had been sent in to the Police in all good faith. The woman had only made a mistake which anyone could have made, an R.C.M.P. official declared. It was just a regrettable error in a hurry to prevent a fatal accident.

Dorothy Dix Says—

The next thing that peevish wives is the tightlaced way in which their husbands dole out money to them. A business girl may have given up a high-salaried job to go into a man's kitchen, where she does the work of two or three servants, but that doesn't affect her husband's belief that she doesn't know anything about handling money, or that he supports her, or make him think that she is entitled to a few dollars every month as her right because she has earned it by her work.

How can we make happy homes? say these unfortunate wives, "when our husbands will row over bills, no matter how small they are? What is the use in trying to look nice when our husbands will sneer at our hair-dos and make fun of our hats? I tell you a lot of us wives would drop dead of surprise if our husbands ever paid us a compliment."

Another trait in husbands that causes wives to emit wails of self-pity is the habit so many men have of passing into the silence as soon as they are married. In the days of courtship they were chatty and entertaining and had a line that made girls think that they would be delightful companions with whom to spend the balance of their lives. But no sooner were they married than they were apparently stricken dumb. No sooner had they swallowed their dinners than they barricaded themselves behind their papers and all that their wives, who were hungry for talk, could get out of them was a grunt or an "uh-huh."

HOME NOT A WALLING WALL. Another thing that gets on the nerves of wives is their husbands making their homes a dumping ground for all their troubles and worries, and saying to the helpless women to whom they are married all the mean things they would have loved to have said to their bosses and customers, but that they dared not say.

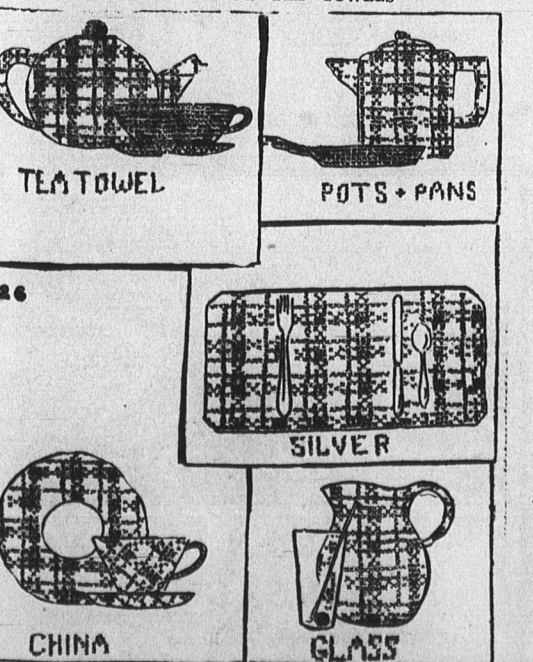

TIDYNESS IS APPRECIATED. There was none of the pleasant comradeship the wife had looked forward to. Only dull evenings spent in a silence so thick you could cut it with a knife, and as far as the wife was concerned she might just as well have married a stuffed shirt as a live man.

Vancouver Daily Papers Commended By City Council. VANCOUVER, March 23.—(CP)—The Vancouver City Council today sent a resolution to the three daily newspapers—the Sun, the Province and the New-Herald—regarding defence measures for the Pacific Coast. The resolution expressing "to the management and editorial boards of the three Vancouver daily newspapers strong commendation for their courageous campaign urging upon Ottawa the necessity for immediate and adequate defence measures for the Pacific Coast of Canada" was passed by the council last night. The Vancouver Sun said today that "members of the city council united to commend the 'effective and forceful stand' taken by the Vancouver Sun on coastal defence matters" and added: "For reasons of policy, however, the official resolution was amended to extend the praise to all city newspapers... Just say the press and you'll know whom you are hitting at," Mayor Cornett chuckled. The Vancouver Sun said reasons for enlarging the wording of the resolution were related to Ald. John Bennett's view that the original text might be construed to apply particularly to a recent series of articles in the Sun on Pacific defence by Alan Morley which are subject to impending prosecution during heavy raiding last year was "in that case," he said, "the matter would be subjudice," the Ministry of Health report stated.
