Malpeque

The Western Union of the Young People's Society of the United Church held a most successful convention in Malpeque on Friday last. The sessions were all well attended and the reports from the different groups. Dinner and tea was served by the young people of Malpeque and thoroughly enjoyed by all visitors who were all loud in their praises of the splendid and kindly entertainment received from the Malpeque group. In the evening a large congregation was present and enjoyed the fine addresses by the different speakers. Closing hymn and Benediction brought this interesting and helpful gathering to a close. Much credit is due to Rev. and Mrs. MacMillan for their untiring efforts to make this the success it was.

The Maple Leaf Hockey Club, together with friends of Sea View, gathered in the hall at Sea View on the evening of the 29th to tender Albert MacGougan, one of the team, a farewell reception, as he is leaving shortly for St. John, N.B., where he has obtained a position. When all had assembled, Mr. Jas. R. Murphy was asked to preside and in a fitting speech, explained the nature of the gathering and spoke of Mr. MacGougan's worth as a player of their team and how they regretted his departure from among them. Mr. K. Duggan, on behalf of all present, then made the presentation of a purse of money to which Mr. MacGougan acknowledged thanking all for their kindness. All joined in singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The remainder of the evening was spent in music and social chat.

A most enjoyable evening was spent in Darnley Hall on Thursday when the people of this community, together with the friends of Miss Cora Champion, who is to be one of the season's brides, and in whose honor this gathering was held. After all had assembled Mr. Arthur MacKay was asked to preside and in a few pleasing remarks explained the nature of the gathering. A table laden with parcels of various sizes held a place on the platform and these were opened by Miss Annie Woodside and Miss Charlotte, and the humorous verses were read by Miss Dorothy Thompson, while Miss Murel MacKay arranged them on the table. Miss Champion acknowledged the gifts and thanked all for their kindness. The gifts were many and varied of linen, china and silverware and many other household necessities. A bountiful lunch was served by the ladies and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, the music was furnished by Mr. Russell MacKenzie.

Many a Man
Has escaped a nervous breakdown
It is now becoming generally known, By word of mouth from one person to another, That scores of nervous, worried business men Attribute their escape from nervous collapse To the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Business cares and worries of recent years Have made men old before their time. Almost daily you read of prominent men dropping out In the very prime of life. Others have survived, because they learned in time Of a way to restore nerve force to the body. As a result weak, halting vital organs Have again assumed their natural functions. Rest and sleep have become possible, And mind and body have been restored to normal. If you find yourself slipping Ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. In almost every family there is some one Who has profited by use of this modern restorative.

The many friends of Mrs. Bruce MacNutt, Malpeque, are indeed sorry to learn of her illness which necessitated her removal to the Prince County Hospital for an operation.

A host of friends will be glad to learn that Mr. Edwin Donald, Sea View, has returned to his home much improved in health after his recent operation in Prince Edward Island Hospital.

Mrs. Gladys Keyes and her brother Gordon MacKay of Revere, Mass., are spending a pleasant holiday with friends in Darnley and surrounding communities.

Mr. George Crozier left for his home in Worcester, Mass., after a brief holiday with friends in Darnley.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Bearisto are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a new baby girl in their home.

Mrs. Elmer Taylor has returned to her home in Malpeque after spending a few days pleasantly in Kensington, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Gillie Ramsay.

The School Fair, which was held in Sea View on Tuesday afternoon was a decided success, on account of the frequent showers of rain the exhibits had to be displayed in the hall there, as it was too wet and cold for the people to stay in the skating rink as had been planned. The schools represented were Fresh-town, Park Corner, Darnley and Sea View. The school work from each district was a splendid display and all worthy of commendation. There was a large crowd of visitors present and all expressed praise for the splendid exhibits in all classes. The judging was done by Mr. Wright of Bedouet, the live stock and poultry, Mrs. Tait the fancy work, cooking and flowers, Mr. J. R. Murphy and Mr. Williams supervisor, the school work. Mr. Preston Campbell made a fitting speech complimenting the pupils and teachers on their splendid work and urged the parents to take a deeper interest to encourage the children to greater efforts. Mr. Williams also, after words of praise and encouragement, gave some helpful suggestion for the benefit of all concerned. The National Anthem then brought to a close this part of the program when all retired to an adjoining field for the sports. This was much enjoyed by both young and old. An account of the size list in order given will appear later.

A most enjoyable evening was spent recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tanton, St. Eleanors, when the people of this community and other friends gathered to tender a shower to Miss Linda Creswell in honor of her approaching marriage. The bride to be was ushered into the room by Miss Sadie Mills, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Mrs. P. D. Crosby. The gifts were opened by Miss Doris Bernard and Miss Edna Rogers, the verses being read by Miss Carrie Cannon. The humorous verses caused much laughter. Miss Creswell was the recipient of many gifts of linen, china, glassware, silver etc. The bride-to-be was thanked by kind friends in a few well chosen words for their generosity. Then all joined in singing a few songs. Music for the evening was furnished by Mrs. Crosby and Mr. Garnet Proff. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by girl friends of the bride-to-be. At a late hour all departed to their homes after wishing Miss Creswell many years of wedded bliss.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, Charlottetown, when Miss Dorothy Linda Creswell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Collins Creswell, of St. Eleanors, became the bride of George Simpson Mulrhead, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mulrhead, of St. Eleanors. The bride looked charming in a gown of old blue satin with white accessories. The happy couple will make their future home in St. Eleanors.

Mr. Borden Mulrhead has returned to Malpeque after spending a two weeks vacation with friends in St. Eleanors.

Mr. Robert Ferry, Malpeque, has gone to Bedouet, to spend the winter months with Calvin Leard.

Mr. David MacGougan, Malpeque, and Mr. Albert MacGougan, Sea View returned to their homes after an extended trip to Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.-M.

Elegance Minus In Cycle Dress

LONDON, Oct. 9.-The smartness of modern feminine dress has come in for criticism from Dr. J. D. Jones, 72 year old English clergyman, and president of the International Congregational Church Union.

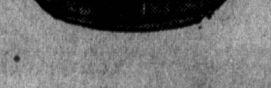

Dr. Jones comments in his church magazine: "I confess to feeling a bit shocked to see women go about the street in bathing dresses or in dresses with no backs to them. It may be that the Victorian women have gone to the other extreme and wear too little."

In the matter of girl cyclists wearing shorts, the English pastor is no less disapproving. "I have no doubts but what shorts are comfortable for cycling, but they certainly do not add to female elegance."

THEY WERE FOREWARNED
First Guest-Say, those cakes of Mrs. Jones certainly were hard.

Second Guest-I'll say they were. Maybe that's why she said "Take your pick" when she passed them around.

BANK OF ENGLAND'S FIRST 25-NOTE A GIFT

LONDON, Oct. 9.-The first 25 note issued by the Bank of England will shortly come again into the Bank's possession, after being, nominally, in circulation for 142 years.

This note, which is dated April 15, 1793, returns to the Bank as a legacy to the Governor and Company from the late Charles Daniel Higham, former Actuary of the Bank and the Society of the Bank of England.

A friend of Mr. Higham stated that the note is of considerable historic interest. In the collector's market, however it would not be valued highly, according to one authority.

"The value of such notes," he stated, "is usually little more than their face value, as there is not a great demand for them."

"This one might be worth between 25 and 50. The fact that it is the first note adds interest and if it were to come up for auction, it might fetch 200 if anybody were anxious to acquire it."

Mrs. Higham stated that the note had come down to her husband through family associations. The Bank of England stated that they could give no information about the note until they had received it.

MANY ROMA RELICS FOUND AT CANTERBURY

CANTERBURY, Oct. 9.-What are believed to be the remains of a Roman riverside quay have been unearthed during the excavations for the Canterbury automatic telephone exchange.

Two thousand years ago the Stour was navigable to the city, and here Romans probably unloaded stores from galleys.

The discoveries, which were made at a depth of 20 feet, include a high bulk of oak and other beams bearing the original axe marks and the fragments of Roman pottery, tiles and children's sandals, and a large quantity of bones and teeth, probably of wild boars and similar animals.

Everything has been remarkably well preserved in the black river mud. Nearby is a ford where Watling Street crossed the river.

Feather In Her Hat

from the top of the Washington monument . . . . . Ann was so startled that she actually jumped.

"Which explains why I was late," Lee commented. "I had half the police department searching the monument and the mall for two hours . . . Now I understand I was the victim of a practical joke. Bill tells me my call was the third in a gruesome hoax."

The night was unusually warm for September, but Ann felt suddenly chilled. "Do you mind if we go in?" she asked as casually as she could.

They were just approaching the steps when Bill came out on the porch, obviously excited.

"Lee . . . ." He came down the steps. "Don't tell my Ann . . . Well, they've just pulled Roy, Ann . . . body out of the reflecting pool . . . When Ann grinned, he added, earnestly, "No, no. This isn't a fake. The police want the Senator to come down and identify the body. Carl's talking to headquarters now. The Senator was strangled . . . with a strand of copper wire . . ."

CHAPTER 7

Never, never, so long as she lived, would Ann forget the horrors of that night, her second in Washington.

Now, however, there was no opportunity for reflection for Carl had come out on the porch and he and Bill stood a little way off and conversed in low tones.

Lee Monday put a hand on Ann's shoulder and said soliloquously, "You're shaking, Ann. Hadn't you better go inside?"

Ann nodded. "I'll run up and get my coat," she told him. "You won't run away?"

And what, she asked herself as she hurried up the steps, could she have been thinking about to ask such a ridiculous question? . . . She rejected the answer that instantly suggested itself, but she knew it was true. The pressure of Lee's hand on her arm had somehow quieted her nerves. It had been assurance that in all this excitement some one to be aware of her now.

For this ghastly thing had come as a seeming confirmation of that sense of impending tragedy which had been a gnawing fear all afternoon, and her courage had been shaken.

As she passed through the door and turned toward the stairs, Ann had a glimpse of Selma and Deane Runbrecker standing just inside the drawing-room door. Selma had a hand on Deane's arm and was leaning a little forward as if whispering. Deane's face was strangely grave and—Ann thought—a little pale.

"Ann . . . Don't come up. I have your things," Rita had appeared at the head of the stairs, hat and cape on, and Ann's hat and light coat on one arm. She came down quickly, a vision of loveliness peculiarly in harmony with her luxurious setting.

"Your lunch wasn't so foolish after all, was it? . . . Did you hear why Lee was late?"

Ann nodded. "He told me about the message." She slipped into the coat and followed Rita to the porch. Lee was talking to Bill. Bill said, "I think you'd better stay here, Ann."

There passed into rest recently at his home, 16 Eastman Road, Somerville, Massachusetts, Wm. Amos Szymeist at the age of forty-nine years. The deceased was a native of Murray River, P.E.I., the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Szymeist.

When quite young he went to New England where he prospered in business and established a comfortable and commodious home in the town of Somerville. He enjoyed the respect and confidence of the whole community and was a man of integrity and high principle in all the relations of life.

There survive to mourn for him his devoted wife, Sarah Hume, daughter of Mrs. Catharine Hume, and the late Joseph Hume, of Cambridge, Mass. together with five sons: Edmund, Joseph, John, Wm. A. and Munro; and two daughters, Jessie and Catherine Elizabeth. A member of the Scottish Kirk of Cambridge, he served for many years as an elder in that congregation and was affectionately regarded by his brethren and by the members of the church. A brother, James, of Murray River, and two sisters, Mrs. Garfield MacArthur and Mrs. Collin Acorn, both of Somerville, survive him. His funeral service conducted by his pastor, Rev. R. A. Westaway at the Kirk of Cambridge, was attended by a very numerous company of sympathizing and sorrowful relatives and friends.
