Dr. J. S. Jenkins Sees Possibilities Of Holiday Trips By Air.

Dr. J. S. Jenkins made the return trip to Moncton, by air yesterday on the Canadian Airways regular passenger plane. He was in Moncton in connection with air transportation matters. The Guardian reporter in conversation with him elicited the following opinions:

"Prince Edward Island is indeed fortunate in having an airport such as Charlottetown possesses, and is even more fortunate in having the Canadian Airways regular passenger service between Charlottetown and Moncton.

"Moncton is well equipped as a central aerial base. It is to be hoped that the Island public will give aviation sufficient support to ensure the continuation of the splendid service."

Dr. Jenkins stated that figures show that the majority of passengers originated on the Mainland. The project was previously undertaken and sponsored, Dr. Jenkins states for Island people, but the people appear to be timid about air travel, do not realize the scenic beauties of the trip, nor understand the time and money saved. Many seasoned air travellers, who have made this Moncton-Charlottetown trip have stated the Swiss Alps, the Rhine Valley and the Canadian Rockies hold no charm equal to the beauties of this route. The route not only holds out interest to the business man wishing to save time and money, but is of equal interest to the vacationist. There is already a booking for a bridal party in the near future. There is no more delightful way to begin a honeymoon than to leave the beautiful Upton Airport on one of the comfortable liners for the Mainland. While the authorities are satisfied with the patronage up to date, Dr. Jenkins points out that unless there is some increase, and that increase maintained, it is doubtful as to whether the people interested will continue to run indefinitely.

Last winter the service proved of great use in cases of sickness and emergency calls to the Mainland, when train travel was irregular. The mail service last winter was also of great benefit and convenience to the people of this Province. It is thought that when the public becomes better acquainted with the charms and advantages of the air-route, that it is possible that two or three planes may run on schedule at least twice a day between Charlottetown and the Mainland.

Dr. Jenkins was greatly impressed with the scenery which he viewed yesterday, during the bright afternoon. The shades of green of the various crops, and the woodland roads like red ribbon, the various hues of green of the coast waters, sea green where the depth is greatest, apple green in the shallows combined to make a gorgeous and ever changing panorama.

The Canadian Airways undoubtedly consider the Moncton-Charlottetown air route one of utmost importance, as they have placed Mr. Ronald George, one of their most experienced pilots in charge of the run. Pilot George has been transferred here from Great Bear Lake where he was engaged in flying operations. Mr. George is a native of Sackville, N. B., and is a graduate of Mount Allison, and is well acquainted with the weather conditions and topography of the Maritimes.

and also in the utilization of the cement mixer. Mr. Marani, the architect, was in the city yesterday and interviewed by a Guardian reporter distinctly repudiated the allegation that there had been a hold-up or any unnecessary delay. He had been speaking with the contractor on long distance and had been assured that everything was going along satisfactorily. The Government also are perfectly satisfied with the progress being made by the Stewart Construction Company. There has been not a word of friction between the Company and the employees since the job started, and the relations with the Government have been equally harmonious. While there have been a few minor delays in getting material here, due to the geographical situation, the only real delay occurred since the commencement of the work was in connection with the change in the foundation of the boiler room in order to utilize locally made boilers and the utilization of hand labor instead of steam shovel, which, as already stated, was done at the request of the Government in order to employ as much local labor as possible. Mr. Marani indignantly repudiated the suggestion that the Stewart Construction Company had given up the contract or that they had any intention of doing so.

"There have been a good many idle rumors circulating concerning the work and the contract since operations started," said Mr. Marani, "and there was not a scintilla of ground for any of them. The allegation that the cement mixer was started on Thursday and then stopped without satisfactory reason is groundless. The mixer started to put in certain footings and stopped when these footings were completed, that is all that there was to that," concluded Mr. Marani.

Criticisms such as have been circulated and published regarding the work of Prince of Wales College are to be deprecated. They are not in any way spoken or printed in the interest of the work nor of the province, and the contractors are entitled at least to the courtesy of being consulted before damaging reflections upon their operations are given publicity.

HOOVER SIGNS HOME LOAN BANK ACT

(Canadian Press)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Placing the seal of approval upon the last great cog in his reconstruction machine, President Hoover today signed the act which will spread a $125,000,000 chain of home loan banks across the United States.

Smiling and genial as he changed this bill into law, the President told newspapermen there was an immediate demand for between $300,000,000 and $500,000,000 in home construction, awaiting only financing facilities.

Incorporation of each bank will be at a minimum capitalization of $5,000,000. The sale of shares will be at $100 apiece, with a fund of $125,000,000 held ready by the reconstruction finance corporation to fill unsubscribed capital.

Loans may be made to individual home owners, provided they cannot obtain the money elsewhere, to building and loan associations, savings banks, cooperative banks, homestead associations and insurance companies.

to widen the margins of preference in Britain's favor with respect to the admission of essential goods not produced in the Commonwealth.

Mr. Bruce's Statement

The statement of Mr. Bruce, in part is as follows:

"Let us at this conference attempt to arrive at agreement as to what we can achieve by our joint effort, and let us also determine to bring to the International solution of the problem the whole influence and strength of a united Commonwealth of British nations."

"I deliberately assert that this conference can help the whole world. It is our immediate task to restore Empire confidence, but confidence is contagious, and if, within the British Empire, we can banish economic fears and doubts of stability and thus set enterprise free our actions will have beneficial repercussions throughout all nations."

Problem of Empire Trade

At this conference our main concern is with the problem of Empire trade. We are concerned with practical issues and seek to restore the prosperity of our countries and to rehabilitate their purchasing power. Australia is therefore approaching the conference in an entirely realistic spirit. We refuse either to belittle or to exaggerate what can immediately be accomplished in the fields of Empire trade.

To Adhere To All Preferences

"Without overlooking the importance of trade between the Dominions, and in order to simplify the issue and to avoid making this statement unduly complicated, it is better for me to discuss our attitude to Empire trade in terms of the trade between Great Britain and Australia."

"I pass on now to the main features of the proposals we are making to Britain at this conference. We intend first to adhere to all the preferences now operating. Next we propose generally to widen existing preferences with a limited number of reservations where Britain has already practically the whole of the trade, and in certain other special cases."

"Then we contemplate, by the further reclassification of the tariff, to make available in a preferential way to Great Britain, protected areas in Australian industry which are not being exploited by Australian manufacturers. These changes should be of considerable advantage to Great Britain."

AN ENVIABLE POSITION

"British industry has enjoyed a remarkable and enviable position in Australia under the tariff as it was in the years before the depression, and I am confident that with the proposed enlarged preferences and other steps I have indicated, Great Britain can confidently expect, as prosperity returns to the Commonwealth, not only a recovery of her previous trade in our market, but also a progressively improving position."

"Thus the Australian delegation, after the most careful consideration and helpful preliminary discussion, feel that they are ready with practical proposals for the assistance of British trade over a very wide range of commodities and with definite though limited request for assistance for our own exports."

"I now propose to indicate the nature of the requests we seek from Great Britain. We are not seeking great or difficult concessions. So little is required to restore Australia to the position of a great market for British goods and a market for far greater potentialities, that we are convinced that such action must be regarded as being highly advantageous from the British point of view."

Rekjavik Iceland, July 22.—Captain Wolfgang Von Gronau, who took off from the Isle of Sykk, Germany, this morning for a flight by stages across the Atlantic to Chicago, landed tonight at Seydijourdur, on the east coast of Iceland.

He had intended to make Reykjavik his first stop, but shortly before he came down he sent a wireless message saying it would be necessary for him to stop short of his goal because of fog and the possibility of fuel shortage.

WICK, Scotland, July 22.—At 3:40 a. m. E.S.T., today Captain Wolfgang Von Gronau, flying from Germany to Chicago by way of Iceland, reported his position as 88 degrees 30 minutes north latitude and 2 degrees 15 minutes west longitude. This would place him at a point just east of the Orkney Islands.

ARMS CONFERENCE

The Frenchman protested. The Italian shouted an answer. Renauld cried: "Down with the assassins of Matteotti!" referring to the killing of Giacomo Matteotti, a Socialist deputy, which was one of the sensational events of the early days of Fascism in Italy. Before the ensuing melee was ended several blows were struck and police were called in.

County Nadolny's threat to the disarmament delegates came during consideration by the conference commission a sort of committee of the whole, of the adjournment declaration. Italy announced through General Italo Balbo yesterday the declaration was entirely too general to satisfy a world which has waited for many months for some definite achievement in disarmament.

General Balbo spoke after Maxim Litvinoff, the representative of Soviet Russia, had tried in vain to work in an amendment declaring for a one-third cut in armaments instead of the "substantial reductions" recommended in the declaration.

The German objection took another tack. County Nadolny, while declaring the declaration to be unacceptable, emphasized the German thesis that she has a right to a position of equality with the rest of the nations as regarding arms. He declared the adjournment declaration takes no account of the German position and that Germany considers the uncertainty regarding this "fundamental problem of disarmament" makes any useful work impossible.

"Therefore," he said, "my government insists that those doubts be eliminated without delay by recognition of the equality of all nations in the matter of national security and in the application of all disarmament provisions."

"We must make it clear that from today Germany cannot pledge itself to continue collaboration here unless a satisfactory solution of this decisive point is found before the conference resumes its activity after the summer recess."

The dispute which broke up the session of the interparliamentary union moved Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary General of the League of Nations, to inform the organization that it could not continue to use the League building unless the incident was amicably settled.

The Italian representatives withdrew from the conference and demanded an apology before they will come back. M. Renauld declined to apologise and the conference remained suspended.

ARMY SINCERE

"Australia, however, recognizes that if she is asking for consideration in the British market it is essential that she should take every possible step to reduce her costs of production and increase her competitive power. This Australia is doing, and there can be no doubt of the sincerity of her efforts in endeavouring to restore her financial and economic position."

"The country has faced its economic crisis. A drastic plan of retrenchment, curtailment and taxation was agreed to by the Commonwealth and State Governments. This, known as the Premier's plan, is being carried out. We have reduced very substantially our costs of production."

"It is clear to us that Great Britain can give effective assistance with those commodities, the Empire production of which falls short of Empire requirements—that is to say—goods in which the Empire is a net importer. I refer to such commodities as meat, dairy products and fruit. On the other hand, the possibility of obtaining effective assistance is much less with those commodities in which the Empire is a net exporter."

"Australia's requests for preferential rebate principally to the products of agriculture, which term I use in its widest sense."

"The outstanding product of Australia, on which her prosperity largely depends, is wool. The industry of Australia is in a most precarious position, owing to the extremely low level of prices in the world markets. Wool is one of the commodities of which the Empire production is far in excess of Empire requirements, and the great bulk of our wool clip must necessarily be marketed outside the Empire. We cannot see that the position of the wool grower can be improved until wool prosperity is restored and wool values improve materially."

"Wheat is Australia's second major industry. Through the progress of research and its intelligent application by the growers, and through the rapid development of efficient harvesting machinery, a highly efficient industry has been established."

"Wheat growers in the Empire have suffered perhaps more than any other group of primary producers by the calamitous fall in prices. The desperate plight of the United Kingdom growers has been recognized, and steps have been taken by the British Government to maintain and stimulate production through a quota and a guaranteed price for home grown wheat."

"As far as preferences are concerned, the position of wheat is so far not succeeded in formulating a definite proposal, but we shall look forward with interest to discussions upon the most important Empire product with the British and Canadian delegations."

"There is, however, one phase of the wheat problem which I would wish to reserve for discussion at a later session of the conference, because it is of grave concern to the wheat-producers of Australia, and

Urge War With Paraguay

The federal government extended until September 15 the period of grace for bills payable in foreign currencies. From Sao Paulo, capital of the rebel state, came news that banks had been reopened after being closed for several days.

Meanwhile lines were drawn tighter in another of the conflicts disturbing South America. The newspaper La Republica at La Paz, Bolivia, announced that the government had authorized it to say that negotiations in Washington to compare the differences between Bolivia and Paraguay over the Gran Chaco region were considered terminated. The newspaper, an opposition organ, editorially urged war with Paraguay.

As Assumption, the Paraguayan government announced that its delegates had been asked to return to Washington and resume discussions of a settlement. The Paraguayan representatives broke off from the conference because of what they called Bolivia's offensive acts.

At five o'clock this morning a squad of soldiers entered the home of Hugo Heimansberg, chief of the Berlin police, tumbled him out of bed and placed him under arrest. The charge was vague. It dealt with "suspicion of having contravened the Presidential decree imposing martial law." A police major and a member of the Reichsbanner also were arrested. Heimansberg was arrested for an hour or so yesterday when he and Albert Grosser, the Commissioner of Prussian police, refused to relinquish their jobs at General Von Rundstedt's demand. They were liberated quickly.

the officer, under the criminal code of Canada with an international aspect, is likely to be undertaken.

Norman Grandemire, of Vancouver, Me., and Frank Mosley, a resident of New York State, were apprehended yesterday by game warden Armburg near Tuttle Brook, on the New Brunswick side of the line, who seized firearms they had in their possession, under the provisions of the N. B. game law.

Warrants for the arrest of the couple have been sworn out by the provincial Department of Lands and Mines, charging the illegal carrying of firearms.

After confiscating the weapons, Armburg started on his way home by boat over the international lake waters of the locality. Meanwhile, young Grandemire and Mosley had returned to the United States side and reported the seizure to Fay Grandemire, father of Norman and the owner of sporting camps on the Maine side of the international waters.

Fay Grandemire, accompanied by Mosley and a third party pursued Armburg and overtaking him, wrested the fire arms from his possession.

New Brunswick authorities state that the interference of Grandemire, Sr., and his associates has seriously complicated the case and made them liable to charges more serious than those placed against young Grandemire and Mosley in the warrants.
