Former Island Lady Dies in Middleboro

The following letter describing the death and burial of Mrs. Christina MacDonald, Middleboro, Mass., formerly of Forest Hill and Dundas, P. E. I. has been received by relatives here from Mr. Peter A. Reilly Boston:

"Dear Folks:

"Having just returned from the funeral of my Aunt Christina MacDonald of Middleboro, it is fitting that I send you this word of information and sympathy, knowing, as I do, the high esteem and fealty, in which you held her in your memory and associations.

"On Tuesday the 13 at 9.05 P. M., her spirit winged its way across the far reaches of eternity, to rejoin in glory, those of her departed kin, and that of her blessed Saviour.

"In the last moments of her consciousness, she seemed to sense the imminent end of her earthly sojourn While in the arms of her daughter Effie, she relaxed her tenseness, looked into her daughters' eyes that were around her bed in tenderness, and in a very low, yet distinguishable whisper bade them all good bye, and said, "please don't look the door on my son Teddy, (he died when very young fifty six years ago) when he calls for me, he may be late getting here, but I just heard him say he was coming with Pa, (he died ten years ago) and they are taking me with them."

"Her head, slumped onto Effie's bosom, and she had departed this life

"Thus, after a long period of ill health, Aunt Christy passed on.

"On, from the trials and tribulations, sorrows and joys, lean years and plenty, that beset the lot of ever human sojourning upon this mundane plane.

"From her early childhood in Forest Hill, and Dundas, P. E. I. to her later years in Boston and Middleboro, Massachusetts where she had established a lovely home on Everett Street, near the centre of the town. Her husband Neil J., predeceased her about ten years. When, at last, she now sleeps, beside her husband, where she was committed to beneath a high mound of beautiful flowers designed to her, by her myriad of friends from all parts of Massachusetts.

"A bright spring sun shone down on the committal to the bosom of nature's mother earth, while a strong east wind, seemed to fan the ceremony with its last rites from her native land, P. E. I., while her many friends stood with bowed and reverent heads, as the clergyman intoned the divine supplications for the dead

"Over fifty automobiles with their mourning occupants, slowly wended their way from the cemetery, as the evening sun was casting its long shadows through the elms, as it too, was sinking into its twilight of rest for another day, in the great cycle of time, that records its history for eternity

"Her daughters, Mrs. Effie Maker Mrs. Earl Raymond, Mrs Charles Farrington, Mrs Tessier, and their respective children, all of Middleboro, are left to mourn their departed mother and grandmother.

"Others from P. E. I. who attended the funeral from various parts were: (maiden names) Maggie MacDonald, Mary Matheson, Bella Matheson, two other sisters, of Forest Hill, Mazie and Annie MacLeod and their sister of Mt. Hope Katie Anne MacDonald and Martha, Ella and Peter A. Reilly of Forest Hill, Miss Hunter of Strathcona, and many others, now of Massachusetts, but formerly of Prince Edward Island

"With best wishes and kindest regards"

Ameche, Bennett Head Strong Cast

Don Ameche needed a valet, Joan Bennett wanted a job. The two got together, causing endless "Girl Trouble" for dapper Don and creating a design for living as modern as love in a black-out. The 2th Century-Fox film, which comes today to the Prince Edward Theatre, is essentially a romance, but previewers seemed to think there were at least as many hearty laughs as heart pangs throughout Miss Bennett's merry misadventures.

Indirectly, the rubber shortage is the cause of it all. Don plays a South American plantation owner trying to interest an American tire magnate in his product. Incidentally, he also tries to interest beauteous Miss Bennett. Circumstances prevent her from spurning his blandishments and, indeed, force her to stretch the point and pose as his maid.

The film is hardly calculated to affect Pan-American relations or the rubber situation. Instead, it guarantees only to provide an hour or so of mirthful rivertisement, a noble function which, judging from the cast and story, it is fully armed to carry out.

Outstanding favorites are featured in support of stars Ameche and Miss Bennett. Frank Craven appears as the rubber tire mogul. Billie Burke contributes an hilarious impression of a fluttering dowager. On hand, too, is Alan Dinehart, of late a truant from the screen and a star on the Broadway stage, who plays a prissy attorney.

Bristol And Vicinity

Friends of Mrs. Georgie Johnstone, who moved to the city last summer will learn with regret she is leaving shortly for Ontario, her former home to reside while her husband is in the armed services. Mrs. Johnstone, before her marrage was Georgie Drake of Bristol. Her husband hails from Ontario.

When Mr. John Lapierre, visited his fishing property at St. Peters harbour last week he found his boat house had been blown to pieces in the heavy winter storms but his boat that was stored in the building was unharmed. Mr. Lapierre, who spent the last three years in Quebec will join the hardy fishers here again this year.

Last week the press referred to the buoys around Charlottetown, which were not lifted last fall owing to the weather. To this list can be added the large bell buoy at St. Peters Harbour. This buoy was left out last fall and the drifting ice dragged it east to Cable Head where its warning bell can be heard in the tossing sea and grinding ice cakes. No doubt it will be placed in its proper position shortly.

Speaking of the bell buoy and its warning sound reminds many old fishers of that terrible storm some fifty years ago when scores of coastal vessels were lost along the north side from here to Nufrage. Nufrage at that time was called shipwreck harbour and one old timer reminds us that scores of human bodies and parts of bodies were scattered all along the shore the most gruesome sight ever seen. The bones of scores of those fishermen are today resting in the old grave yard near Nufrage. Many of their names were never known as their mangled bodies were washed up in that raging north easter that lashed the coast for days and nights without let-up. The old resting place unknown to the younger class is near Monticello School on the left side of the main road along the north side. So terrible was that storm that many thought the end of the world had come with the howling winds and tide that rushed inland for miles. Mighty trees were torn out by the roots like daisies in the field. The sight that greeted those living along the coast will never be forgotten as long as any old timers are left to tell about it.

Many friends in this vicinity will learn with sincere regret of the very serious illness of Mr. Phillip Rossiter, in the Charlottetown Hospital. Mr. Rossiters old home is in Morrell, but he has been in business in the city for many years now and spent several years travelling for Rogers Hardware.

Mr. W. A. O'Brien, of the staff of Holman's was in this vicinity this week on businesss for his firm.

Mr. E. W. McKinnon, Supt. and John Howatt, Road master C. N. R. were in Bristol, a short time ago to investigate a report that the water at the Lot 40, crossing was flooding Mr. Currans cranberry grounds.

Mrs. Geldard wife if the late Capt. Geldard, will arrive in Bristol, this week to dispose of all her late husband's fishing gear and property. Capt Geldard passed away from a heart attack very suddenly last fall on the street in Dartmouth, N. S

Miss Mary Sinnott, who was confined to her home with a severe cold for a week has resumed her teaching duties at Sinnot road.

Mrs. Walter Connolly has arrived from Boston to be with her brother Mr. Phillip Rossiter in his serious illness. Mrs. Connolly was foremly Mary Rossiter from Morell.

HOW TO HELP MR. GOLD SEAL MAKE GOOD

You can get added wear out of your Congoleum floors with very little effort. Brush and mop them regularly and renew the brightness of their surface with an occasional waxing. Make sure too, that the floor underneath is smooth and free from crevices or knobs. If it's a rug, move it every few months to "spread" the traffic. Yes, a little care will pay big dividends.
