NEW HAT STYLE IS ANTI-BOMBS (Canadian Press) LONDON, July 19.—Newest idea for protecting individuals from the effects of air bombing, the Contra Blast Bandeau has made its appearance in London stores. Resembling a football helmet with the top removed and the ear muffs longer, the bandeau for men as well as women is made of aerated rubber and is designed to guard delicate nerve centres, particularly the ear orifices and the front of the skull. The rubber is supposed to absorb the shattering elements and concussion from bomb blasts and gunfire. The bandeau comes in colors of brown, blue or black and costs about $1.20 in Canadian money. The top part of band must be pulled well down over the forehead so that its base is just above the eyes. The two ear muffs hang below the chin and are held in place when faces attached to the two are tied beneath the chin.

I appeal especially on behalf of my age group for whom the prospect is so dark? "I was taken from school at 16 in the First Great War to take the place of a solicitor's clerk who joined the army. I have an honors degree in German at London University, besides years of experience in clerical work—but in this greatest war of all I can get no work at all. "I sent up my name for national service in April, 1939, was put on the central register and then on two other registers. I have, with rising prices and ever-diminishing savings, the financial position is too clear for it to require comment. "I know what we are called on to endure the present hardships and burdens without complaint. But I repeat my plea—think of the aliens, by all means, but consider first the claims of the competent, fit, and willing British unemployed, whose lives, barred from work, are a misery.

PUTS IN PLEA FOR "OVER 40" (Canadian Press) MANCHESTER, England, July 19.—In the wake of many letters to the papers regarding employment of German and Austrian refugees, a London woman writes to The Guardian, appealing for British who, in the wake of the "disadvantage of being over 40." She says: "Might I put in a word for the British who, it seems to me, have the first claim on their own country for the right to serve it? May

TO BE CHEERFUL MINUS ONE LIMB (Canadian Press) EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., July 19.—A person has to lose a leg to get into the Fraternity that Miss Augusta Weaver and Paul Campbell have organized.

It's the "fraternity of the wooden leg" and its purpose is to give courage and, if necessary, material aid to people who lose a limb. Eventually it hopes to sponsor a project for the creation of more comfortable and efficient wooden legs.

Campbell, who is editor-publisher of a weekly newspaper, talks about wooden legs as though they were something to be envied. He's been wearing one for 25 years and he says it's responsible for his tolerant nature and his sense of humor. His grin is perpetual.

A year ago Miss Weaver, a newspaperwoman of Savula, Okla., lost a foot in an accident and Campbell wrote to welcome her "into the fraternity of the wooden leg."

"She wrote back immediately and proposed that we form such an organization," Campbell says. "We sent out 12,000 circulars to persons with artificial limbs and invited them to join."

Several hundred requests for memberships came right back and the list now is a going concern. It publishes a monthly magazine, "Courage," which hands out advice, cheer and encouragement to people with only one leg.

The War This Week By Don Gilbert Writer Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Nazi leader of Germany brought the 46th week of the war to a close with a last "appeal to reason" — an appeal to Britain not to engage in a struggle that Hitler said could only end in the "complete annihilation" of one or the other of the two adversaries.

It came five days after Prime Minister Churchill had said: "We shall seek no terms; we shall tolerate no parleys; we may show mercy, we shall ask none." Britain's leader said that London, which might well devour a whole hostile army, would be defended to the last, and that Britain eventually would take the offensive.

The two speeches, the one replete with Nazi bombast, the other a calm statement of the British Empire's determination, came in the week's quietest week since the invasion of Denmark and Norway in April. Nazi air activity, which in the previous week had been increasing day by day, fell off sharply, due perhaps to unfavorable weather, perhaps to Nazi preoccupation with plans for the big attack on Britain.

While dispatches from German-occupied France pictured a terrifying array of men and ships along the coast facing Britain waiting for the signal to attack, the Royal Air Force hit strongly at bases believed to be harboring the Nazi preparations and pursued its destruction bombings of the industrial areas of Western Germany.

In the Mediterranean, while Italy was still attempting to picture a naval skirmish of the previous week as a great victory, the Australian cruiser, to the bottom, adding to the three destroyers and 14 submarines Italy has lost since she entered the war. The Italian air force raided Hafia, in Palestine, and Gibraltar, causing a few casualties in each.

In the non-belligerent world there were several developments capable of influencing the course of hostilities. President Roosevelt, the friend of the British Empire, was renominated for the United States presidency and in an acceptance speech declared his government would never compromise "with those who seek to destroy all democracies everywhere."

In Japan a government of political adventurers with totalitarian and expansionist tendencies was formed under Prince Konoye. The cabinet turnover came after Britain agreed to close for three months the road from Burma into China over which the Chinese government has been obtaining supplies to carry on the war.

At Moscow, Sir Stafford Cripps, the British ambassador, who is well liked by the Soviet leaders, had a long interview with Joseph Stalin. It is rarely that Stalin makes himself accessible to the representatives of foreign powers and the interview was regarded as important. In Spain, renewed demands for Gibraltar were voiced in celebrations attending the fourth anniversary of Gen. Franco's military rebellion.

Chancing back 25 years: Austro-German armies advancing through Poland, cheer and encouragement to people with only one leg.

Muttart-Murray Wedding A very pretty wedding of much interest was solemnized at St. Peter's Church, Seven Mile Bay, on Wednesday morning July 17th, 1940 when Alberta Muttart, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Muttart, was united to Earle Murray the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Murray, all of Seven Mile Bay Parish. The bride entered the church to the music of Lohengrin's "Bridal March" played by Mrs. Adrian Murray. The bride was given away by her father, she was dressed in pale blue satin and wore a white silk veil and carried a bouquet of roses and maidenhair fern, she was assisted by her cousin, Miss Hilda Muttart, who was dressed in pink chiffon with trimming accessories to match and carried a bouquet of roses, while Miss Velda Muttart carried a large bouquet and was flower girl for the bride. The groom was supported by Mr. James McGuigan, Kinkora. During the Nuptial Mass which was sung by the parish priest, Rev. W. E. Monaghan, Mrs. Adrian Murray played the organ and Miss Mary Garland sang a hymn "O Purest of Creatures" and Mr. Arnold McGrath sang "O Lord I am not worthy" at the end of the mass. The bridal couple then left the church while the organist played the Wedding March, they were showered with confetti, returning then to the bride's home where a sumptuous breakfast awaited them with intimate friends and relatives. They then left by motor car to various parts of the island, returning home in the evening where supper was prepared by her mother, Mrs. Keft Bassett, while Miss Doris Muttart and Miss Mary Garland poured the tea and coffee and Mrs. James O'Connell and Mrs. Leo Warren waited on tables, immediately after Mr. James O'Connell of the violin accompanied by Mrs. Adrian Murray on the organ played the music for the "Wedding Reel" which consisted of relatives. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing until the wee hours of the morning. All departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Murray a happy wedded life.

CLEARING THE ORCHARDS According to the Nova Scotia Government report to the Agricultural Supplies Board, the palling of old and odd varieties of apple trees in the Annapolis Valley is well under way, 60 tractors being routed over definite districts. This year the work takes the form of a war measure, and up to the middle of June, 2,000 trees have been removed already, as against 200 trees pulled during 1939. The N.S. Department of Agriculture is doing the work free. There is also heavy demand for equipment for breaking new land. This is a project that means much for the future and all tractors available at the moment are at work. Later in the season when more tractors can be secured, the work will be extended.

NO LANGUAGE NOT PROBLEM (Canadian Press) LONDON, July 19.—Grimes, London Star artist, devoted a cartoon to the plan to evacuate school children to Canada. Replies the offspring: "Aw, quit stallin', honey—I've been learning the language for years."
