MANY THOUSANDS FLOCKING BACK

To the Old World From United States —Steerage Passengers Compelled to Wait —Were Kept Back by Police at New York.

NEW YORK, June 17—(Special)—More than a thousand persons holding steerage tickets for European ports were left behind by the steamer Potsdam when she sailed today with her steerage accommodations filled to their capacity.

Two thousand more who were unable to find accommodation on the ship were told that they would be taken on the next outgoing ship but many of them made determined efforts to get on board the Potsdam.

They were held in check by a large force of policemen which had been summoned to the pier, however, and the best they got was a sight of the ship as with swarming decks she dropped out into the stream and started on her voyage.

PRINCIPAL PETERSON MUCH PLEASED

MONTREAL, June 16.—Principal Peterson, of McGill University, who has just returned from a ten days trip in the Maritime Provinces, expresses himself as more than surprised at the flourishing condition of the Canadian clubs in the various places he visited. He addressed clubs in St. John, Halifax, Truro, Charlottetown and Moncton. They differ somewhat from Canadian clubs as we know them, where, as Kipling puts it "The Club gets together at luncheon and ties its victims to a steak, and then waits to hear if he has anything to say." The clubs are more like public meetings, held in the evening, when members bring their friends, and large audiences congregate.

The Universities are in one way irreproachable, but their great fault lies in their disunion. A population of three-quarters of a million is supporting six universities, all working independently. In his addresses he urged that the three provinces should get together and constitute a board of examiners representative of all interests. The question of the seat of the federated university need not be touched at the present stage of affairs. The Government of Nova Scotia is putting up a big technical college in Halifax that could easily serve the interests of the three provinces. They are also establishing an agricultural college and normal school at Truro which could serve the interests of the three. Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the necessity of concentrating and co-ordination of forces.

Other than in educational matters, Dr. Peterson was struck with the same desire for union manifested to political constitution. He had met with general approval in advocating the amalgamation of three provinces into one. They would then be of more bulk and importance, able to vie with their inland sisters. He thought that the question of each province was often considered before the interests of the national as a whole.

CLERGY AFTER CLOTHING.

LONDON, June 16.—One of the curious results of the great gathering of delegates to the Pan-Abgican Congress is the tremendous rush on London clerical tailors. Hundreds of delegates, especially anxious for the correct ecclesiastical cut of garments, especially bishops, have overwhelmed clerical tailors with orders.

DIVER KILLED BEFORE CROWD.

NEW YORK, June 16. — While hundreds looked on and cheered him for what they believed was a part of his daring act, Joseph Jakobe, a professional diver, lost his life at Bergen Beach yesterday, when the Rope which held his sliding seat on a descending wire broke and plunged him into Jamaica Bay, nearly one hundred feet below.

MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

A special meeting of the City Council was held last night. His Worship Mayor Prowse and Councillor Reddin were the only members of the Board not present. On motion Councillor Rogers was voted to the chair. He explained that the meeting had been called to consider the matter of proceeding with the work of laying down permanent sidewalks and macadamizing streets according to a program prepared for this year by the Street Committee. Chairman Stewart of the Street Committee submitted the following program regarding the streets to be macadamized: Water Street from Great George to Hillsborough, also repairing same from Hillsborough to Weymouth; Queen from opposite Market to Kent to be remacadamized; Richmond from Pownal to Queen, to be repaired; Euston, from Prince to School, to be remacadamized; estimated cost $3800. The following is proposed as regards new concrete sidewalks: east side Great George from Grafton to Euston, 4½ feet wide; west side Gt. George from Kent to Euston 4 feet 10 inches; Queen Street east side, Kent to Euston, 4½ feet; Queen, west side, City stables to Euston, 4½ feet; Euston Street, north side, Queen to Elm Ave, 4 feet. Some discussion took place as to ways and means but it was finally decided to proceed with the work and Councillor Stewart's program was put in the form of a resolution and carried by the Council. The estimated cost for sidewalks is $4000.

SOME NEW EVIDENCE WAS RROUGHT OUT

At the Dougherty Trial Yesterday at Summerside—Stella McDonald Tells that Prisoner Objected to Louis McMillan Seeing Her Home.

In the Dougherty trial yesterday morning the first witness called was Rev. Father Monaghan whose evidence was about the same as that given by him at the first trial. The next witness was Miss Catherine Gillis. In her evidence she gave an account of the visits of McMillan and Dougherty to her house, prior and including May 10th and also the conversation which took place when the prisoner and Miss McDonald returned after the murder, also her conversation which took place at Father Monaghan's all of which was about the same as that given by her after first trial. The only new evidence given by her, was during the time they were walking to Father Monaghan's, just before they arrived there was a statement made by the prisoner in answer to a question either by her or Miss McDonald in which he answered "No dont tell Father Monaghan it was jealousy that made me do it, for it wasn't."

ERNEST ROGERS was the next witness.

He gave evidence as to his conversation with the prisoner on the morning after the murder, which was substantially the same as that given by him at the first trial.

WALTER SCHURMAN was the next witness.

In giving his evidence as to the conversation with the prisoner on their way up to Miscouche, in which he, the prisoner, said he fired a shot at McMillan's stomach and then another at his head, and that the prisoner had told him, he was not sure, but he thought Stella, had told him the prisoner, how he, the prisoner had fired the shots. The witness next related what took place during the conversation with the prisoner, at the window of his cell on Monday morning last, in which the prisoner asked him if he did not say to him, when he was telling the witness about the shooting that he had said he was not sure but he thought Stella had told him how he had fired the shots at McMillan.

STELLA McDonald the next witness gave in addition to her former evidence the following. Louis McMillan came home from church with me, a couple of nights shortly before Easter. Lon saw me. On Saturday evening, Easter eve, Louis came home with me. I had left the church alone and met Louis. He walked up alongside me. He wanted to walk home with me. Lon objected to Louis coming home with me.

When we were coming along about 50 or 100 yards from the church, Lon stepped in between us and said, "You are not going to do anything like that, Lou." Louis stepped back and came up again and went to hit Lon. He and Lon stopped there and I went on. I did not watch what they were doing. I don't know whether there was a fight or not. Louis tried to hit Lon. I don't know of my own knowledge that they fought. Lon told me they had a fight. Lon came home with me.

Court adjourned for dinner.

After dinner the evidence of Stella McDonald was resumed.

She told of a meeting at her place last fall at which there were present Patricia Gillis, Louis McMillan, the prisoner and herself, and of their going to the postoffice.

There was a meeting a few nights after, in which, during a conversation the prisoner asked me if I was going to keep on going with Louis McMillan, and said that if I was he would shoot himself.

Asked by the Attorney-General if he took a revolver out of his pocket or said anything about a revolver, the witness replied that as far as she could remember he did not show the revolver or say anything about it. He did not say anything about shooting anyone else. I may have spoken about the conversation to Louis McMillan, but am not positive.

If I did say anything about it, it was to him only.

She further stated that she did not know McMillan had been shot in the head until after the inquest.

During the walk home, she had asked the prisoner why he had done it.

I said to him now Lon tell me the truth, was it not jealousy. He replied, no it wasn't.

She said that during the walk to father Monaghan's Lon said, "now, don't tell Father Monaghan it was jealousy, for it wasn't. Further on in her evidence, in referring to a remark previously made, said.

Sometime last winter Lon said to me, you need not think of going with Joe. McMillan, for I will part you.

Under cross examination by Mr. McQuarrie, she said she understood that the remark made about parting them, was made as a joke.

I heard from others that Joe. McMillan was paying attention to Patricia Gillis. She stayed at our place generally when in Miscouche. Lon and I both knew it. It had been going on for a short time. Joe. used to visit her at our place occasionally She was not at our place on Easter eve. She was there last about the 12th or 13th of May. She was at our place last summer, until New Year's eve. I cannot say positively that Lon said in my presence more than once that he did it in a fit of passion. It was shortly after Easter, that Louis McMillan came home with me.

Louis McMillan was a little officious in seeing young ladies home, especially those who had young men of their own. Lon found fault with me once for allowing Louis McMillan to accompany me home, but only on that one occasion. Once last summer, when Lon came home with me one night from church I told him, I would rather he would not come in with me This was on account of an objection of my own. We continued going together after that objection had been removed. This closed the case for the crown.

Mr. McQuarrie in opening the case for the defense said in part:

It becomes my duty to again address the jury on the question of the defense. You will notice what witnesses saw and the confession made by the prisoner.

It is not the intention to dispute this act of homicide. That is admitted. Homicide is the killing of one man by another. That Joe. McMillan fell by the hand of the prisoner is acknowledged. If one man kills another the party who does it is a criminal and there must be a motive. If no reasonable motive appears then it must strike you as rather peculiar that a man sould commit such a crime, for which he has to give his own life as a forfeit. If no reasonable cause for that act appears does it not strike you as unusual. When a murder is committed for the purpose of hiding a robbery or some other crime there is a motive. Criminals generally have accomplices and seek to conceal their crime.

These facts are perfectly plain. when murder has been committed and when the facts are discarded motive become apparent. The man who commits a murder generally does so because the person stands in the way or he has some grudge against him. These are the earmarks of a red-handed murderer. As a contrast to that take the act of an insane man, a man wno has no control of his powers or who is a mental imbecile—what is the difference between these two acts. This is the matter submitted to you gentlemen. Such cases are rare, but they have to be dealt with. Now, I submit that as far as the acts themselves are concerned they are distinctly different. The ear marks are very opposite—the one hides the body or hides away himself. The other, an insane man, who commits such an act without a motive will tell all about it and will give himself up to justice. The defence, which I purpose to submit to you, gentlemen, is that of insanity,—that the prisoner at the time of the act had no control over himself and was not responsible for his acts.

He then quoted the law as laid down in the statute bearing on insanity.

If you find from the evidence submitted, and from the prisoner's own statement that the crime was committed while irresponsible, then the gallows is not the place for him. How inhuman it would be to punish a man who has no fear of punishment. Should you come to the conclusion after hearing the evidence that the prisoner was not responsible for the act, then your verdict should be to acquit him by reason of insanity. We will submit evidence to you that the family history of the prisoner as well as an injury received in early youth predisposed him to insanity.

The following witnesses were then examined for the defence:—Wm. Reeves, Joseph Locke, Wm. Jenkins, and the prisoner's father.

The evidence given by them was substantially the same as that given at the first trial.

The court then adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning.

STRANGE BUT TRUE.

Sir:—In October last, eight months ago, the late Judge Burbridge held an Exchequer Court in Charlottetown. Some of the school-land belonging to Murray River School District was expropriated by the Railway This and several other cases were tried and Messrs Mathieson and Macdonald attorneys at law were retained by the defendants. A number of witnesses were summoned by Mathieson and Macdonald to appear in Charlottetown to give evidence. A number of witnesses were also summoned by Premier Haszard and G. S. Inman, Esq., to give evidence in behalf of His Gracious Majesty King Edward and the crown. All the witnesses had to furnish their own private funds to defray travelling expenses and over a week's board and lodging in Charlottetown. The parties subpoened by Mathieson and Macdonald are paid in full and their money refunded but the witnesses summoned by Premier Haszard and Mr. Inman are not paid yet.

Can you Mr. Editor, give any explanation for the cause of this? It is rather hard to be compelled to travel forty or fifty miles, find your own means, stay over a week in Charlottetown, until the Court is over, and wait eight months and the dear knows how much longer without getting paid. There must be something wrong, as King Edward never intended that his loyal British subjects would be used in this manner. Everybody wants what is justly coming to them in these hard times.

Yours truly
INQUIRER.

A SENSATIONAL SOCIAL EVENT

Daughter of Lieut. Governor Tweedie Married To Coachman, A Fine Looking Young Scotchman—Parents Learn it by Telephone.

ST. JOHN, June 17—(Special)—Lieut. Governor Tweedie who with Mrs. Tweedie is in the city, having come here to attend a wedding at the home of Chief Justice Barker, tonight received a telephone message from James Stevens of St. Stephen that his daughter Minnie, aged 18, who has been her guest for several days, was secretly married in Calais yesterday to David McEwan, until a short time ago coachman for the Governor in Chatham.

The news came as a great surprise to the young girl's parents.

It is understood the friendship between Miss Tweedie and McEwan, who is fine looking young Scotchman, has been ripening for some time.

Yesteray afternoon she left Mrs. Stevens' home and met McEwan in Calais, where they were married.

After the ceremony they separated, Miss Tweedie going to the home of her hostess for the night.

Today she told Mrs. Stevens what she had done and shortly after the couple left for Montreal.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. McCully, for thirty years pastor of the Congregational Church in Calais.

The bride gave her occupation as house maid and McEwan as coachman.

SUFFRAGETTES IN THE "FLIES"

LONDON, June 16—Mr. John Burns had a bout with the Suffragettes at the Theatre Royal, Oldham, recently when they interrupted him from beneath the stage and from an entrenched post in the "flies."

Miss May Gawthorpe afterwards explained the Suffragette ruse. "Together with Mrs. Baines, I was challenged by a steward at the entrance to the stage. I told him I was an artiste in next week's programme. 'Oh,' he said, 'pass on,' and we walked up a spiral staircase to the 'flies.'

"We barricaded ourselves off, and by a code of signals interrupted Mr. Burns at intervals, and the ladies and gentlemen on the platform looked helplessly about them, wondering where the voices came from, but in vain. At last, however, we were discovered, and a policeman and angry stewards mounted the 'flies.' Putting on our coats, we descended the stairs having achieved our object satisfactorily."

REVIVALS AT CENTRAL CHURCH

A crowded house greeted the evangelists at the Christian Church last night. Mr. Bilby rendered one of his impressive solos and Rev. Mr. Mitchell delivered an eloquent appeal to his auditors to shun sin, from the subject "The Meanest Thing in Charlottetown." He took for the basis of his sermon Jas. 1: 13-15, saying that it had been suggested to him that liquor selling and drinking, or profanity, or religious indifference, or some such thing was the meanest thing in town, but that all these things were simply the outcome of that thing known as sin; the trouble in overcoming sin is that it is dealth with abstractively. He showed the fallacy of charging God with being the author of sin, the error in saying the devil was the cause of it all, and the difficulty with laying the blame on Adam. He referred to the abuse of the liquor law as evidenced by cases coming under his observation since being in the City, complimenting Charlottetown, however, upon its apparent freedom from the graver immoralities usually found in cities of this size but in his judgment, the greatest danger of the age is self satisfacion; he demonstrated that morality is but a part of Christianity, that as a man may be moral, but not a mason or odd-fellow or a member of any of the fraternal brotherhoods in which morality is made a chief thing, so could he be moral and not be of the Kingdom of Heaven. Jesus unfolded this truth to Nicodemus a good moral man when he said "You must be born again or you cannot see the Kingdom of God." According to the Bible, morality alone can save no man, but there must be a recognition of the claims of Christin making up man's dificiency. The subject for tonight is "The Best thing in Charlottetown." Special music at every service.
