

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

NEW MEMBERS AHEAD!

When he's very young, a simple, minimum cost camera is really preferable in most instances, but once he comes under the spell of real snapshotting, he merits—and should have—a modern camera of the better type.

YEAR after year, the idea of cameras as appropriate gifts for birthdays, graduation and other memorable occasions, has grown steadily. Last year, if you'll pardon the personal intrusion, I gave my own mother a simple little camera on her birthday. At first, she was frankly skeptical. She had never used a camera, always relying on my sometimes unreliable self. She was sure she would never master that camera. . . . Now it goes with her everywhere, much to our mutual joy.

To some folks, I wouldn't dream of giving a camera. They're not enough interested in other folks and places and life in general to get any fun out of it.

But there are others—the majority—to whom a camera would mean much.

What kind of camera? It depends entirely on the kind of person who is to receive it. Every youngster should have a chance at a camera, but only of the simplest, most inexpensive sort. By "inexpensive" I mean cameras costing from, say, one to five dollars. They should be of any of the standard makes, using films available everywhere.

Of course, if you have a young friend who has shown more than average interest in picture making and has outgrown his simple little box camera, you can provide vast happiness by presenting him—or her—with a better camera.

Once you get above the five to ten dollar class, the variety of cameras to be had is bewildering. Of recent years there has been a tremendous increase in the use of so-called "precision" cameras—small cameras, beautifully made and equipped with all manner of useful gadgets. Their lenses are masterpieces, their adjustments more accurate than many a professional studio camera. Naturally, they cost money, plenty of money. Beginning at about $25, the prices of these miniature cameras range on up and up and up. If you're really anxious to spend a hundred dollars on a camera, you'll have no trouble at all. However, you can stay in the general neighborhood of fifty dollars and get some amazingly beautiful cameras. By "beautiful" I mean something so expertly designed and constructed that there's sheer delight in handling it.

Many of the miniature, precision cameras use very small-size film. The idea is that the small pictures are kept as records, while enlargements of the best shots are used by the proud owners to show what they've been doing.

Modern, fine-grain film, by the way, makes this procedure possible.

You need not, of course, consider the miniature camera in your gift hunting. For the average person you can select a camera with a reasonably good lens—one that's rated at f.8.3 or even f.4.5—and use a film big enough so that enlargements are not always necessary. The famed "post-card size" camera is a favorite and will probably remain so. There's a reason.

If it has been several years since you last looked at cameras, shop around just for the fun of it. You'll discover that things have been happening.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my aunt Georgie, who passed away one year ago today.

A light from the home has gone, A voice we loved is stilled, A place is vacant in her home, Which never can be filled. Gone from amongst us, O how I miss her dearly her memory I'll keep; Never till life ends shall I forget her;

Dear to my heart is the place where she sleeps. Inserted by her Niece, Murna Inez Hemphill, Pictou, N. S. L-4634-2-18-11.

HOW DO YOU HOLD YOUR SHOULDERS?

How do you hold your shoulder? Whether you are working or shopping, most of your fatigue or jumpy nerves come from shoulder tension.

The effect of posture, and of a well-poised, easy balance of the body on health, nerves, and beauty is a new science of living. But perhaps its most practical application for women lies in what experts call releasing shoulder tension. Shoulders are peculiarly sensitive to outside impressions; loud noise, a draft of cold air, a sudden fright—up they go. And this shoulder contraction spreads nerve tension all the way down your spine. Hunched shoulders may even become a habit with, sooner or later, headaches upward and backaches downward!

Does a day's shopping wear you out? Is it the shopping or is it the energy wasted in clutching a purse tight against your side? Your clamp your shoulder girdle so tightly down on to the rib cage that your lungs are compressed and the blood vessels, which should be sending a steady, refreshing stream through the upper part of the body, are partially choked off. Tight, intent, and half suffocated, you scuffle from shop to shop. The serene, well-poised woman covers the same territory with her head and upper body balanced comfortably upright over her strong shoulder and hipbones.

After shooting her husband, Chicago woman sobbed on his grave "I am going to miss him." She ought to have resolved on that when she aimed.
