RIFLES AND BULLETS SEIZED AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 12.—Government agents today arrested three men on a steamer, tied up at an East River pier, following the discovery of 350 rifles and 100,000 rounds of ammunition in boxes addressed to Tomacco, Colombia. The agents said the rifles and ammunition had been secreted in boxes labelled "hardware" and "cotton batting." The men, who said their names were Enrique Cenarro, Vincent Gonzalez and Harold Teters, were questioned by Assistant United States Attorney Frank Cattinella, who said later he believed a South American revolution had been hatched in the bud. The Federal men declined to give the name of the vessel pending further investigation.

SOBRIETY OVER HOLIDAY PROVES 'G. C.' JUSTIFIED

TORONTO, July 11.—"The result over the holiday has justified the expectations of the Liquor Control Board," said Chairman D. B. Hanna, speaking of the few cases of intoxication reported from every centre in the province. "It shows the people of Ontario are sane and sensible. The business has settled down now, and people who find that they can obtain liquor under respectable conditions for use in their own homes, will not abuse the privilege." Hon. Dr. Maslin stated that throughout the western portion of the province there are few, if any, complaints, and those that have been made are anything but of a serious character. Commissioner McClellan and Maslin commented on the fact that in Ottawa, where there was a great celebration in connection with the Diamond Jubilee of the Dominion, there was not a single arrest for drunkenness.

things to deal with. Is the cheque a forgery and did the prisoner know it was.

It is evident it is a forgery as it has been signed by a mythical George Brown. The evidence of Mr. Hyndman, the expert witness for the Crown is very positive. All the circumstances attending the cheque present no difficulty in concluding this a forgery.

Did the prisoner know it was a forgery. If you must take that into consideration. If you cannot believe his story, then your verdict will be for the prosecution. Chief Justice Mathieson, in the course of the Attorney General had made a fair and balanced charge as becomes an officer of the Crown. The prisoner, McDonald, Teacher of South Lake he stated, was fortunate in having his mid-summer holidays. James from the court, who has made an excellent presentation. The people being presented in a splendid manner of South Lake, are to be congratulated on securing the services of going to the Criminal Code in regard to Freda Stewart and Mildred McDougall. The many friends of George Brown, who are in the various branches of the Department of fit of that doubt. Education, were Jean McDonald and Agnes McDonald. Prizes were awarded to those pupils having the highest standing in the different terms. The jury then returned, reporting the pupils with a gift and the women of the Institute and some others treated the pupils to a generous supply of fudge.

While the jury were deliberating upon the Lawlor case, Edmund Byers and James Gormley, indicted on the charge of shop-breaking and larceny were arraigned.

An unusual procedure had to be adopted before a jury was chosen for the case. The tally having been exhausted, His Lordship Chief Justice Mathieson, instructed the sheriff to take the names of twelve men from out of the audience of the court. The prisoners challenged separately.

The following names were taken: Edward C. McDonald, Andrew Murphy, Nelson Whitlock, Henry Laphorn, Ebenezer Wheatley, R. J. McNeil, Rankin McKinnon, John Conway Peter McConnell, James Patrick Murphy.

After about thirty had been challenged, the jury was finally chosen: Edward Hughes, (Foreman); Joseph Power; Peter McQuaid; Joseph Innis; Rankin McKinnon, John Conway, Andrew Murphy, Peter McConnell, John M. McDonald, Roderick Steels.

Court then adjourned to meet at 10.30 this morning. The witnesses examined in the Lawlor case were: Ronald J. McNeil, Charlottetown, a grocer on the corner of Filzroy and Cumberland St., testified that he knew the prisoner, who lived near his store with his brother Frank. The witness loaned him money on two occasions, $7 the first time and $4.50 the next. On Dec. 24th in the evening the prisoner presented a cheque to the witness for the balance of the money. He identified the cheque produced in court. The witness said he told the prisoner he would risk ten dollars on the cheque. The prisoner told him George Brown was alright. Brown belonged, he said, to Hazelbrook. On Christmas Day the prisoner came back to borrow $5 more. He got it. He gave him in all $25.50. The witness took the cheque to the Bank of Nova Scotia. Shortly after word was received from Bank of Nova Scotia that cheque was turned down at the Bank of Commerce. In the course of the cross-examination, he stated he didn't see Lawlor endorse the cheque. He didn't have the notice about the dishonoring of the cheque. He couldn't remember Lawlor calling on him for the balance of the money. He told Lawlor that the cheque was dishonored. The prisoner said that Brown must have been trying to put something over on him. The witness and prisoner went to Magistrate Martineau to see the cheque. Mr. Martin kept the cheque and kept it until the hearing. The witness thought that he and the prisoner went again to Mr. Martin at his office.

Mr. Roy Murray, Manager of Bank of Nova Scotia, testified that R. J. McNeil had an account at the bank. The witness gave evidence on the cheque produced in court, stating that the writing might have been done by a person writing in a cramped position.

Mr. Scarth, Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, testified that there is an account of George C. Brown, Experiment Farm. That is the only George Brown that could be found that had an account at the Bank. Payment of the cheque was refused as there was no account to charge it to.

George Brown of St. Avard's, employee at the Experiment Farm, testified that he had an account at the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The cheque produced in court was not his. He did not know the prisoner.

Matthew W. Wood living in 48, Trader in farm stock, said he knew nearly all the men with several names and knew no George Brown in Pownal or Hazelbrook.

Mr. Hyndman, Manager of the Royal Bank, said that the cheque produced in court would easily arouse his suspicions. The endorsement "Fred Lawlor" was written as thought by the same person as signed the face. The "Fred" on the face of the cheque is the same as the "Fred" on the endorsement.

Mr. McGuligan cross examined the witness as to the difference in the handwriting on the cheque.

Fred Lawlor, the prisoner age 31 testified that the man who was born in Charlottetown, his mother died 20 years ago. He was born in 1907 and stayed there about two years, after coming back for eight years in the upholstery trade. His wife is dead about three years. He came back

During the cross-examination the prisoner said he left the Province in 1914. He went to Boston in March 1919. He worked in the upholstery business about eight years. He kept no books in his business here. He burnt his papers on Dec. 28th. He didn't remember the dates when other furniture was taken in for re-asked Mr. McNeil for $5 to pay his board. On January 6th Mr. McNeil called him into the store and said the cheque was alright but George Brown forgot to put the number on it. He was in McNeil's store between Dec. 24th and Jan. 6th, looking for his money. On Jan. 6th he wrote to George Brown, Hazelbrook, in regard to his pass-book number. He got no reply to that letter. About two weeks later Mr. McNeil sent for him. He told the prisoner that the cheque was no good. McNeil advised on cheques every day. Being shown the cheque produced in court. He didn't think the names of the payer and endorser were written by the same person. One writing is of a different style, some of the letters not being formed the same.

Cross-examined he said he was never actual manager. He was accountant before that. The volume of business in comparison to the Provincial Bank branches is three times in favor of the Royal Bank.

It Pays To Get The Facts

A large proportion of all the nerve energy generated in a normal body is expended in the act of seeing. Eyes are often found to be defective so that although vision is still good, they are consuming twice or three times their allotted portion of nerve force, thus robbing other vital organs of their motor power.

The result is serious physical disorders—often in remote parts of the body. Two out of every ten people are in this fix, yet the real cause of their trouble is often not even suspected until a thorough examination discloses the facts.

If there is any reason whatever to suspect eye strain, the common sense thing to do is to have a thorough examination and GET THE FACTS ABOUT YOUR EYES.
