The Penguin Pool Mystery A Laugh Riot

Lady Sherlock Holmes Makes Laugh Riot of Pool Mystery

A serious drama, a brilliantly conceived mystery plot and a laugh packed comedy in one unit, such are the ingredients in the Penguin Pool Mystery now playing at the Prince Edward. The leading roles are played by Edna May Oliver, as Hildegard Marie Whither, the Iowa schoolmarm and Jimmie Gleason as the police inspector. Each is a perfect foil for the other and provide plenty of laughs. The intriguing mystery is finally solved by the spinster school teacher who by sheer force of will and reasoning, compels the inspector to accept her as a partner. If you want a good laugh, see "The Penguin Pool Mystery."

ada. Having a leisure hour to while away he entered a little shop in Montreal where various pictures were on sale. His first look told him these pictures were enlarged photos of many of the most enchanting places in Canada. From one charming scene to another he passed. At last he stood in wrapt admiration before one that brought a delightful peace to his soul. He continued to gaze in silent wonder at this most striking of all the pictures. Finally the proprietor joined him. Mr. Ross at length spoke. Pointing to this most impressive scene he said: "There is no place in the world as pretty as that." The proprietor sensing a sale, gave this information: "That is a picture taken at a place called Georgetown, P. E. Island."
