Alsace Produces Just 190 Fruits

STRASBOURG, France, Aug. 28 (C.P.)—A "Gastronomic Inventory of France," signed by Curmusk, Prince of Epicures, and published by the Alsace-Lorraine Railroads in Strasbourg, contains some interesting facts and little-known statistics about the varieties of food and wine available in the "recovered provinces."

For centuries, Alsace has been called the loft, the barn, the orchard, the kitchen garden and the larder of neighboring lands, and this attractive pamphlet proves it in effective fashion.

For example, it reveals that Alsace produces six kinds of fruit brands (kirsch, quetsch, mirabelle, raspberry, myrtle and elderberry) and 139 distinct wines. Further, Alsace has at least 190 kinds of fruits to her credit, which are divided as follows: 12 species of cherries, 20 of plums, 33 of apples, 36 of peaches and 80 of pears.

Naturally, such rich and varied produce has been reflected in the prowess of Alsatian pastry-cooks and distillers. Curmusk also reveals that there are 42 varieties of "pate de foie gras" that gastronomic marvel which, in English, has the prosaic name of goose liver pie.
