INDIA TRANQUIL SAYS HARDINGE

LONDON, Oct. 6.—(Through Reuters Ottawa Agency).—A special despatch from Simla, India, says:— Lord Hardinge, the viceroy, made an important speech at the conclusion of the autumn session of the Legislative Council. Having briefly reviewed the progress of the year, he emphasized the fact that Great Britain's sea power was a decisive factor in the struggle, and paid high tribute to the magnificent courage and tenacity shown by the armies of Russia.

The viceroy affirmed that in India tranquility prevailed, the Defence of India Act having succeeded in restoring order in the Punjab, which had been disturbed by emigrants returning from Canada and the United States, imbued with revolutionary ideas. His Excellency, in this connection, praised the work of the lieutenant-governor and said he believed the loyal people of the Punjab were thoroughly satisfied with the measures taken.

Frontier posts of India he continued, had often been attacked by ignorant and fanatical tribesmen, but these attacks had always been repulsed, with considerable losses to the attacking parties. Our own tribesmen were absolutely staunch and loyal. The Ameer of Afghanistan had throughout observed the strictest neutrality, which he would continue rigidly to maintain, but the situation in Persia was disturbed by roving bands armed with Austrian and German rifles, who wandered about endeavoring to make trouble.

No one could look back on the last fourteen months and contemplate the part which India had played in the war with greater pride than he; no body could appreciate better the deep-seated patriotism and whole-hearted loyalty of the people of India, which was ever shining as a beacon to illumine the history of the land. But as the war progressed, he presumed, it would be felt more and more, and there might be times of anxiety and depression. If such a time came they must show the world that India is united and that the blood of Englishmen and Indians had not been shed on the field of battle in vain. All attempts to create trouble and sow sedition would prove vain and fruitless.

Lord Hardinge concluded by referring to the question of the extension of his vice-royalty and the desire of many that here remain in office after the next. He said the decision rested with the Imperial Government. He had readily agreed to remain until March (his period of office regularly expiring in November) to meet the wishes of the people of India, to make some slight though inadequate return for their sympathy and affection. He asked them to believe that the decision of the Imperial Government was in the best interest of India and he trusted that by next spring the horrible war would be over.

The viceroy's speech was punctuated with cheers and at its conclusion there was prolonged and hearty applause.

SOLDIERS CROSS QUIETLY TO ENGLAND

The following interesting letters have been received recently by Mr. and Mrs. John McBride, Scotchfort, from their son James, who is now in Shorncliffe, Eng., having enlisted for overseas service about a month ago. The letters tell of his trip across the ocean.

Sept. 4th, 1915. Dear Mother.—Just a few lines to let you know that I am on my way to England. We left Montreal this morning at six o'clock and are now on our way up the St. Lawrence, the lights are fine and are meeting a lot of steamers on the way. We got quite a send-off in Montreal last night. Sir R. L. Borden was arriving home from England and he made a short speech to us, you will probably see it in the papers. Well the steamer that we are on is called the (censored). She is a fine ship. There is 1500 soldiers on her and they are all from the West coast and they are in the West Seroall Camp. The P. C. L. L. have got the second class cabin but officers the first class and the rest are scattered all over the ship. Our quarters are fine. We eat in the second class. I do not know how long we will be going over but I suppose that we will be ten days. Well as we are getting near I think that I will stop. I will write tonight again and put the letter off with the pilot at Father Point tomorrow. I want you to think of men in your prayers, that we will have a safe trip across and not fall in with any enemy submarines as I suppose they will be looking out for us.

My address will be JAS. McBRIDE, 3rd COMPANY, No. 1060 P. C. L. L. T. Army Post Office, Sept 10, 1915.

Dear Father: Well I suppose you know by this time that I am on my way across the ocean and I will now write you an account of our trip. We left to begin with we left Montreal on Saturday morning, Sept. 14th, the weather was fine and has been up to the present. I have not been one bit sick although my head was light for a time on account of the roll of the ship. Note for our trip. Our trip up the St. Lawrence was fine, the lights were grand, and for the most part it was a fine farming country on either side of the river dotted here and there with small villages. We passed Quebec at 9.30 the same night we left Montreal. We did not stop but the city looked handsome all lighted up. There was a flashlight played on us for some time and you could pick up a nickel and the deck it was so bright. After we passed there I went to bed and so ended Sept. 14th.

August the 5th when we got up at 7 a. m., there was a submarine destroyer with us. She stayed with us for three days. I tell you she was a good company. She could go 30 miles an hour and was continually going around and around us. I might here tell you that the ship is in total darkness at night. Of course we use lights in the cabins but the port holes are covered up with blankets, not a light is to be seen from the outside. The destroyer would go around us at night and if there was a light to be seen she would stop the ship. On the third night she left us and we have been alone since. We are on a casual steamer going to Canada or the States but we keep away out of their way. I guess they do not want them to know what we have got on board. I might tell you that there is 1700 soldiers on board and about 400 of a crew making up about 2100 men. This would be quite a prize for the Germans.

Well this is Sept. 11th and everything is going fine. We had boat drill this morning and every company was given their place on deck and their boat. We drew lots for the boats. The Sergeant of our Company drew our boat No. 23 and that is the last boat to leave the ship, that means that we have to swim I guess. Well I don't think I have forgotten how. Tonight they are putting 100 men armed with loaded rifles all around the deck with orders to fire on anything that looks like a submarine, in the hope of breaking the periscope but I don't think that there is much chance.

We are having sports on board every day but the afternoon finishes them up. We are getting a more serious turn on now but I think that tomorrow when I will finish this letter there will be a destroyer with us. I have been on special police duty for four hours each day since we left Montreal, that helps to pass the time.

Well this is Sept. 12th and the sports are over and the Pat as the all us won five prizes out of eight so that is good as there are only 350 of us and there is 1400 of the rest, of I think that we did good. Last night passed all right. I went to bed at 10 o'clock in the daytime. They ballasted the ship with water and all night they pumped it all out and let her go to full speed which is 25 miles an hour, but in daytime she is down to 8. They tell us that we will be in England tomorrow afternoon if things go well and I hope that we will for I am getting tired of this laying around. We can not get any exercise now for there is a room. When we cannot go on deck. Will finish this tomorrow.

Well here is Sept. 13th and we arrived in Plymouth this morning. Met two destroyers last night at 5 p. m., and felt quite safe after that. Did not see a submarine at all. We are still on the boat. I think that we will go to Shorncliffe tonight, so now I'll tell you how we got an account of our trip across, so I'll close for this time. I am quite well hoping that you are all the same.

From your affectionate son, JAMES.

P. S. The sights are fine around here, I can hardly content myself to write. We are lying out in the stream there are all kinds of boats around and people waiting to know how things are in Canada.

Sept. 14th, 1915. Shorncliffe, Dear Mother.—Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and getting along fine. We arrived here last night. This is a dandy place all Canadians and everything is in the best of condition. We are living in sheet metal houses lined inside with boards and painted. I never thought that they would do so much for soldiers but everything is up-to-date in every way.

One can see all kinds of sights here and glimpses of every description. The Germans were around here and London last night with their Zeppelins. We could not see them but we read about it in the papers this morning. We get excellent grub here, a good bit better than we got in Montreal or on the boat. Of course you get your rations but that is more than we can eat. The worst of all is we see the grim realities of war here in the hospital. We saw our first sights this morning but we will have to forget about that. 2000 Canadians left here between yesterday and today and it was a fine sight to see them go.

Well I will be expecting some mail pretty soon so I guess that I will stop for this time. Hoping to hear from you soon. I remain your affectionate son, JAMES, No. 1060, 3rd University Co., P. C. L. L. Army Post Office, London, Eng.—D.

REV. H. R. GRANT IS THE NEW MODERATOR

ST. JOHN, OCT. 6. The opening session of the Maritime Presbyterian Synod was held last night in St. Andrew's church, and the chief interest was focused on the election of Rev. H. R. Grant, of Halifax, secretary of the Nova Scotia Temperance Alliance, as moderator. Rev. Donald MacDonald, of Grand River (C. B.) retiring moderator, delivered a powerful sermon along spiritual lines, in which he touched, briefly but strongly, on the evil of drink. His pointed reference was brought to bear in the nomination of Rev. Mr. Grant and in spite of requests to have his name withdrawn the temperance worker of Nova Scotia was prevailed upon to accept. A civic welcome was extended to the more delegates present by His Worship Mayor Frink, on behalf of the citizens.

Judging from the sway of the meeting and the inclination of those who spoke, it could be surmised that the liquor question will cause a good deal of attention during the session. The retiring moderator made reference to its evils; the nominators of the temperance advocate put forth the most energetic workers in the cause of temperance in the maritime provinces and he was acclaimed with enthusiasm by the meeting.

Following the recommendation of Rev. Dr. W. P. Archibald, his sponsor, and the synod should place him in the moderator's chair got only on account of his personal qualifications and the service he has rendered the synod, but because of the support which the synod had at this crucial period to the great principle which he represents.

The session opened at 8 o'clock with prayer and praise by the retiring moderator, Rev. Donald MacDonald. Following, he addressed a scholarly sermon to the delegates, dealing for the most part with matters of spiritual import. It was styled, "The Glory of The Cross," and in it he pointed out how the spirit of Christ is necessary to overcome the great application in referring to the two great questions of the present day—the German menace and the drink evil—and he charged that these great questions, too could be surmounted by the spirit of Christ. He dwelt for a short period on each of the great world wide issues. He believed that the ambition of the military power to dominate the world will be checked by the power of God, which is employing the armies of the Allies to subdue it.

Much attention was directed to the drink evil, and despite the difficulties offered to solution, the spirit of Christ, he believed, would overcome it. He furnished figures to impress the danger of the evil, saying that during a period in which 40,000 British soldiers were killed in the way, a number equally as large met death, directly or indirectly, as the result of alcohol in the British Isles. He referred also to the epigram of David Lloyd George: "He regretted that England was backward in the spirit of the liquor legislation. Russia made amends, he pointed out, have made amends and the result have been wonderful."

Following the sermon by Rev. Mr. MacDonald, nominations were opened for moderator. Rev. H. R. Grant was nominated by Rev. W. P. Archibald, and his motion seconded by Rev. F. J. Jobb. Both laid emphasis on the liquor question and cited their nominee as the logical choice of the day. They thought the synod should signify its support of the reverend gentleman's cause by elevating him to the moderator's chair. Rev. J. A. McLean, of Mahone Bay, as nominated by Rev. F. W. Murray, seconded by G. A. R. McKean, and Rev. Thomas Stewart, D. D., church agent, was nominated by Rev. H. R. Grant.

Each one of the three desired to retire from the field, and Mr. Grant was most forcible to be excused from office. It was decided to put it to the meeting and he was the unanimous choice. He then took the moderator's chair.
