SECOND PRIZE ESSAY Why I Like Summerside

There ought to be various reasons why one liked or disliked any particular place and since we are asked to tell why we like Summerside I must try and tell of all the virtues I know the place possesses. Judging from the standpoint of an admirer, rather than that of a critic, many beautiful and complimentary things might be said about our town. In the first place I like Summerside because I cannot help it. There is a certain magnetism about the place which draws one toward it,--back to the Homeland and this little town, which can produce as much, if not more, happiness and contentment than any other place on the continent. And this is the main purpose in living, to be happy and content. It may be on account of the people for there are a great many good people in Summerside, people who are ever ready to help and comfort those who need their assistance in times of sickness and sorrow.
In this town there is no need of poverty. Those who are industrious might never be idle where so much work is waiting to be accomplished that any ambitious man or woman may earn an honest livelihood. In Summerside there are stores, second to none, where the needs and fancies of the most fastidious individual can be satisfied and where courteous merchants are ever anxious to please their customers.

In Summerside the air is wholesome and the breezes off Bedeque Bay as invigorating as could be desired.
We have a new hospital where patients receive the kindest care and attention, a new armoury where young men are being trained to protect our country in future if need be. Two semi-weekly newspapers are published, in our town, which give full accounts of the happenings in the local, general and political worlds. Summerside also possesses a host of lawyers whose ability and skill almost equals that of the proverbial Philadelphian of the same profession. Summerside is truly a most desirable town in which to live happy and prosperous.
Yours truly,
MRS. BESSIE McCLURE.

THIRD PRIZE ESSAY Why I Like Summerside

Because of its nice situation, facing the general south, its back to the north and its feet in the waves.
Because the town has excellent water, efficient sewerage and good facilities for extinguishing fires.
For gardening, Summerside has the very best soil and trees grow with unwonted luxuries.
Because its name recalls the season of roses, violets and long afternoons.
The natural condition for health in the town are superior; in summer a breeze off the water carries away all floating germs and impurities.
Because the town is a seaport, its harbor affording facilities for boating, moonlight excursions and for a morning dip in the brine.
Because the town is young, go ahead and progressive. When one compares the Summerside of twelve years ago with the present he must admit that it is moving forward with a fine swing of success.

Because the town has good facilities for transportation by steamer and rail, also more speedy and pleasant communication with the outside world than any other part of the Island.
Because Summerside is surrounded by a fertile, beautiful section of country which is continually pouring wealth into the town.
Because Summerside is headquarters for the Prince Edward Island Oysters, which are admitted to be unequalled for their excellent quality.
Because Summerside is a cheap place to live in and that conditions are favorable for the average man.
Because Summerside has no tramps and but few loafers.
Because the principal stores of the town are in all things up-to-date and one can deal in them to better advantage than anywhere else at home or abroad.

Because Summerside has an excellent hospital, good schools and a good municipal organization.
Because Summerside people are friendly, sociable and not stuck-up as if each owned a ranch of blue foxes.
Because Summerside is an orderly town where the Police do their duty.
Because in Summerside the various Christian denominations live amicably together without contention or jar.
Because the people of Summerside attend to their proper affairs in other words, mind their own business.

Churchill, P. E. I.
