A CAUCASIAN MARRIAGE.

A Piece of Sugar Put to Lips of Bride to Sweeten Tongue.

In the Caucasus the marriage ceremonies everywhere are of the greatest extravagance in regard to length and the amount of feasting. In Min and the large tents are erected for the wedding guests, and the smallest number invited comes to two or three hundred. An interesting and pretty ceremony is the going forth of the bride, to whose lips she puts a piece of sugar, wishing her happiness and joy, and hoping that her tongue may always keep the sweetness of sugar. In the marriage procession all the goods and wealth of the family make an appearance. An elderly lady, generally the bride's nurse, plays an important part throughout the ceremony. She sits by the bride, who neither laughs nor eats during all the merriment and feasting. A meal is served in the nuptial chamber, to which the matron conducts the bride. The bridegroom is refused admission until he buys his entry from the matron. This old lady remains a week in the house, and when she departs the bride breaks into loud lamentations. For a year the young couple are full of respect and attention for their parents, never sitting down in their presence and submitting to their wishes in everything.

WHAT IS TRUTH?

Men will believe nothing what they cannot understand.

Truth comes to us only by glimpses. There are some who refuse to receive a partial truth, who insist upon having a clear idea of the whole, or at least upon persuading themselves that they have it, before they yield assent to anything. They will believe nothing which they cannot understand, they say, forgetting that, although we may both believe and understand many things to be true, it is only by occasional glimpses that we can ever discover how they came to be so. For instance, we all believe the wonders of the natural world, the existence and motions of the planets and stars, the changes in the earth's surface, the marvellous growth in the vegetable world, and the still more wonderful development of the animal creation - of conscious life and human intelligence. In believing these things we understand that they are so; but how they came to be so, how they perform their several functions, what are the laws which uphold them and the forces they obey - these things we do not understand, except as study or thought, or participation in their thought, give us glimpses of the truth.

Next Year You'll Have this Motor

This season has shown you the folly of owning any motor but the Imperial. The Imperial is so simple and efficient it takes away all the worry that other motors cause. It is so powerful and light that it adds wonderfully to your enjoyment and it will soon pay for itself on fuel-and oil-saving alone.

Every good boating man claims the Imperial is the best all-round marine motor made in Canada.

You can judge this from our free catalog. Send for it to-day

Couldn't Get the Scotchman.

There was an aged Scotchman who by native shrewdness made a fortune, and he did it without the slightest bit of education. One day he and an acquaintance were talking when the latter said to old Duncan: "Say, Duncan, you don't know enough to go in when it rains. Why can't you even spell bird." "B-u-r-d," said Duncan. "I tell you you don't know anything. Why, if you had to spell to make a living, you'd have been dead years ago. I'll bet you a hundred you can't spell bird." "I'll tak' ye," quickly replied Duncan. After the money was put up Duncan said "B-l-r-d." "That ain't the way you spelled it the first time." "I wasna bettin' then."
